Davidow wrote that "when Luis Corvalan, Communist Party of Chile declared the appeal was unanimously adopted, the delegates broke into prolonged applause."

The unanimously adopted resolution also called for the boycott of transportation of troops, weapons and supplies to the free Vietnamese (but no boycott against troops, weapons and supplies for the communist aggressors) and invited "progressives" the world over to join with the Communists to "stop U. S. aggression."

Communist Rumania, which likes to boast an "independent communist line" was one of the official 75 communist and workers parties at the Moscow convention. Upon the return of Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, Secretary General of the Rumanian Communist Party Central Committee, a plenum of the Central Committee issued an official statement which declared that "the plenum fully approves the activity carried out at the conference by our party's delegation . . . activity which has received the unanimous approval and complete support of the party organizations, of all the communists, and of the working people of the entire country." The "plenum" especially praised the Rumanian delegation for its "contribution . . . to the development of the relations of solidarity with the communist and workers parties in the spirit of trust and mutual respect, on the basis of the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism."*

* This important element in communist theory and practice—"Proletarian Internationalism"—will be discussed at length in a forthcoming issue of the WASHINGTON INTELLIGENCE REPORT.

While expressing "reservations" with the documents approved at the international communist conference, the Rumanian Central Committee plenum rubber stamped the Moscow declarations, and pledged its "determination to work firmly in order to contribute to the achievement of the basic objectives of the anti-imperialist struggle."

Upon their return to the United States from the Moscow meeting, Communist bosses Hall and Winston told a gathering of the pro-Soviet faithful in New York that they had held "a number of meetings with fraternal parties, among them the Communist Party of Cuba." As a result, Hall and Winston said, they will lead an official delegation of the C.P.U.S.A. to Cuba for a two-week visit in August.

All of the evidence from the meeting of 75 world communist organizations in Moscow show that they were united, indeed enthusiastically united, in their common and never-changing goal to one day destroy the United States as a free nation, and to impose a communist dictatorship over the people of America. There was not one shred of evidence to be found in anything said or done at the international meeting of communists to indicate the slightest dissent or disagreement by any communist party in any country that it was not their intention to work together toward that goal.

Yet there exists in this country, in certain circles, a dangerous unrealism which holds that communists don't exist, or that if they do exist, they pose no danger to the free nations of the world.

According to press reports, at a hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Washington, witness Dr. Karl Menninger told of the employee who threw scraps of yellow paper on the railroad tracks. When he was asked why, he said that it was to ward off elephants. Someone said there were no elephants around there. He said, "See, it is already working."

One newspaper story said, "Fulbright (Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee) to a full round of applause and laughter from the audience, chimed in, 'And is that why we are about to deploy the Anti-Ballistic Missiles?'

" 'You said it, Senator,' Dr. Menninger grinned."

Rational people will agree that the Communists, by their own statements and actions over the past 53 years, pose a grave danger to any free society. Far more dangerous to the security of the world, however, are those individuals who think that Communists, like Dr. Menninger's mythical elephants, don't exist.

Delegates to Moscow

Most of the "liberal" newspapers and columnists in the United States, if they mentioned the meeting of the communist international at all, went out of their way to emphasize the very few communist countries who were not there—such as Red China, Communist Albania, etc.

Herewith, from official Communist sources, is the list of communist delegations who were there.

* Communist Party of Australia,
* Communist Party of Austria,

Albanians Persecuted by Tito

It has been known for some time that Tito's secret police constantly harass Albanian victims of communist tyranny who happen to dwell in places like Kosovo iMetohija, etc. There are frequent reports of beatings and severe repressive measures against Albanian victims.

Two specific cases of such persecution are told in the June 12, 1969 issue of the MACEDONIAN TRIBUNE. The first victim, Seide Kreize, 40, an Albanian, was sentenced to seven years of solitary confinement. His "crime" was that he had expressed his opinion that some parts of Montenegro and of western Macedonia belonged to Albania, and that the rest of western Macedonia belonged to Bulgaria, since there has never been a "nation" of Macedonia.

The second "criminal," one Feta Elmazi, age not reported, residing in Kicevo, was also accused of publicly declaring that a Macedonian nation did not exist. Mr. Elmazi also was charged with holding the "dangerous" idea that most of the South-Eastern Macedonia area belonged to Bulgaria.

These outrages prove that the propaganda alleging Tito to be a "good communist" is false. Tito is a Communist, and like all other Communist dictators imposes upon the people a ruthless policy of thought control which makes criminals out of men not because of their deeds, but because of their opinions.

Inherent evil is built into Communism. There never has been, nor can there ever be, such a thing as "good" Communism.
