

DEAR FRIEND

THANK YOU FOR YOUR

INTEREST IN THE WORK OF THE

FAMILY RESEARCH COUNCIL.

The Family Research Council (FRC) was founded in 1983. In 1988, the year I became its president, FRC merged with Dr. James C. Dobson's Focus on the Family. In 1992, FRC was launched as an independent, 501(c)(3)(h) nonprofit organization, which it remains today.

Through the following pages, you'll be introduced to the philosophy, goals and policy plans of the Family Research Council. To put it simply, FRC exists to defend three priceless treasures: "Family, Faith and Freedom."

Each of these treasures is a gift from God, and it is incumbent upon us to be good stewards of the riches He has showered upon us. It is the legacy of family, faith and freedom which allowed our parents and grandparents to build this great land, and I believe it is our responsibility to pass that heritage along to our children intact.

Such is the mission of the Family Research Council. I hope you will join with us to advance this timeless cause.

Sincerely,

Gary L. Bauer
President
