

and to provide the physical facilities whereby certain persons may concentrate their efforts and be more productive through specialization and division of labor.

The Foundation, as an institution, takes no "positions." Resolutions in its name, bearing on public policy, are never even contemplated. Ideas, facts, points of view, evidence—never partisan politics or political recommendations—are the Foundation's stock in trade.

The author of each publication is held responsible for the views expressed therein. The Trustees, Donors, and individuals on the mailing list are never implicated. While staff members testify as best they can to the intellectual integrity of the author of each publication by reason of their authorization of its release, even they do not necessarily concur in all the views expressed.

This individualistic, as distinguished from committee, procedure is considered to be more conducive to the intellectual leveling-up process on which the advancement of freedom depends.

THE TRUSTEES

Here follows a list of the Officers and Trustees—persons who bear the prime responsibility for the Foundation. They are men of leadership in education and business. The functions of the Board Members are (1) to lay down the general policies incumbent on the staff in studying the problem and presenting the ideas and the facts underlying the freedom philosophy; (2) to select the chief executive and other officers; (3) to keep themselves intimately apprised of staff administration, so that they can report to others on the integrity of the operation; and (4) to serve as consultants to the staff. The Trustees do not sit as an editorial body.

OFFICERS, 1951-52

FRED R. FAIRCHILD, Chairman of the Board

LEONARD E. READ, President

JASPER E. CRANE, Vice President

CLAUDE ROBINSON, Secretary

THOMAS I. PARKINSON, Treasurer

TRUSTEES, 1951-52

GEORGE CHAMPION

Senior Vice President, The Chase National Bank,
New York, New York

J. REUBEN CLARK, JR.

Director, Utah State National Bank, Salt Lake City, Utah

T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE

Chairman of the Board, United Fruit Company,
Boston, Massachusetts

JASPER E. CRANE

Wilmington, Delaware