

does not need one more such ruin. It needs, for the first time in all the twenty-four civilizations, a people who will be really secure and enduring, as far as mortal life is possible — secure and enduring because each member of the society is a person who accepts his and her responsibilities as duties, and asks only that the state act to keep the avenues of freedom open. That will come, not by copying the ruins of the past, but by a free people rising to meet the challenge of a free society, putting their trust in freedom because their faith is in God.
