The National Religious Training School

"I cordially commend the school’s interest and needs to all who believe in the Negro race and in our obligation to help promote its intellectual, moral and religious uplift."

REV. DR. CHARLES H. PARKHURST, New York City.

IT IS MORE THAN A MERE SCHOOL
IT IS A COMMUNITY OF SERVICE AND UPLIFT

Its influence is destined to be felt in all sections of the country in improved Negro community life wherever our trained workers locate.

Settlement workers, missionaries for home and foreign mission fields, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. secretaries and district nurses receive a comprehensive grasp of their studies under a Wellesley graduate and experienced co-workers and actual every-day practice through the school’s SOCIAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT.

We aim also to create a better qualified ministry.

Industrial training, advanced literary branches, business school.

Thirty-two acres; ten modern buildings; healthful location.

We can accommodate a few more earnest, ambitious students.

Communities requiring social workers should write us.

OF INTEREST TO VOCALISTS

Tone-Placing and Voice Development, With Supplement Co-ordinating with Original Chapters

Highly recommended and endorsed by well known Choral and Musical Societies, Directors, Vocal Teachers and Musical Publications, as evidenced by the following extracts selected at random from those who know:

Pedro T. Tinsley of Chicago is the first of the voice teachers to realize the possibilities of Tone-Placing and Voice-Development, as applied to music, and will soon be reaping his reward in the knowledge that he is helping thousands to a thorough musical education where he previously helped but hundreds.

THE MUSIC TRADES.

I highly endorse your Book Tone-Placing and Voice-Development as being in a class by itself. This is my fourth order and will be able to use quite a number of additional copies very soon.

G. W. WILLIAMS, B.M.A.,

1214 Pease Ave., Houston, Texas.

"Dear Mr. Tinsley:

"I take great pleasure in commending your very useful and succinctly written book on 'Tone-Placing and Voice-Development.' Your own appreciation of the psychology of singing and the fundamental principles of the art you have cleverly reduced to a simple system.

"Cordially yours,

"Father WILLIAM J. FINN, C. S. F., Director Paulist Choristers of Chicago."

From "Musical Courier," N. Y.: "A very practical little book is 'Tone-Placing and Voice-Development,' by Pedro T. Tinsley. It contains some very excellent material and vocal exercises, and should be in the hands of all vocal students."

"Accordingly this 'Practical Method of Singing' is a most concise and practical little manual, containing many valuable vocal exercises. It cannot fail to be helpful to all ambitious vocal students."

PRICE $1.00

MUSIC AND ART

THE Fisk Quartet was heard in a program of spirituals and modern numbers at the second anniversary of the Y. M. C. A. in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Estelle Ancrum Forster appeared in an organ recital at Haynes Hall, Boston, Mass. She was assisted by Mrs. Paul Lawrence Dunbar, reader; Miss A. MacDonald, soprano; Mr. Charles W. Forster, baritone, and Mrs. Clarence Cameron White, accompanist.

Miss Helen Hagan gave a piano recital at the colored Music School Settlement in New York City. She was assisted by Miss Reba Fairfax, soprano, and Mr. J. Rosamond Johnson, basso-cantante. Miss Ethel Richardson was the efficient accompanist.

Hampton Quartet, after appearing at the San Francisco Exposition for one month, sang groups of Negro melodies at a large meeting held in Symphony Hall, Boston, Mass., in the interest of Hampton Institute.

The five hundred dollar prize for the best sculptured piece on “The Immigrant in America,” submitted in a contest held in the studio of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, New York City, was won by a young Italian student of the Art Students’ League, Beniamino Bufano. Bufano did not picture America as a “land of the free.” The sentence at the base of the group of thirty figures reads: “I came unto my own and my own received me not.” The work is described as showing “oppressed people who seek the promised land, and finding it, find oppression there—at the head is placed a sturdy youngster in defiant pose as if in challenge to prejudice which ranks all aliens as ‘Dagoes,’ ‘Chinks,’ ‘Polacks’ and ‘Niggers!’”

Mrs. Maud Cuney Hare, pianist, and Mr. William H. Richardson, baritone, of Boston, Mass., began their winter concert tour at Montclair, N. J., in January.

Mme. Anita Patti Brown is appearing successfully in recitals in the British West Indies.

GENERAL

ACTION on the treaty extending a financial protectorate over Haiti has been deferred by the United States Senate.

The trustees of Tuskegee Institute are appealing to the Negroes of the United States to raise $250,000 toward a $2,000,000 Booker T. Washington Memorial Fund.

A memorial meeting to the late Booker T. Washington was held at Carnegie Hall, New York City, February 11th. Music was rendered by Hampton and Tuskegee Quartets, and a chorus of one hundred and fifty voices from the Music School Settlement. Distinguished speakers took part.

Work among Negroes received $1,104,000 from white Presbyterian mission societies last year.

President Wilson has told Bishop Walters that he will not appoint a Negro as Recorder of Deeds because the appointment would precipitate a discussion of the race question in the Senate. In an open letter to the President, Bishop Walters still urges the appointment of a Negro for this position.

Dr. J. K. Polk is the first Negro to become a member of the Board of Health at Indianapolis, Ind.

Squire Gilford Troup is the only Negro Justice of the Peace in Alabama. The new constitution of 1901 deprived many Negroes of the right to vote. Troup appealed to his white friends and they re-elected him.

At Madison Square Garden, New York City, Howard P. Drew finished first in the seventy-yard race equaling the world's record. Roy Morse, another Negro, finished second.

Dr. J. B. Reeve, for forty-three years pastor of Lombard Street Central Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, Pa., is dead. He was eighty-four years old. An account of his life appears in the Crisis for September, 1915.

Louis A. Fenderson won first honors at a test held in the New Haven Post Office by the National Inspectors to determine the volume of mail handled by carriers.

C Carroll Van Court, a Negro of Los Angeles, Cal., has designed a "Safety First" kitchen utensil which combines a carving fork, cooking spoon, graduating spoon, graduating half-gallon measure, ice cream freezer, half gallon churn, safety spoon and fork.

C Martha Washington, a former slave 72 years old, has been attending the West Side Evening School, Cincinnati, Ohio, since its beginning, 15 years ago. She hopes to continue until she is awarded a diploma on merit.

C John R. Baker, a junior in the Central High School, Harrisburg, Pa., won the first prize of $25 for his oration, "Siberia, Its Struggles and Its Promises." He was the only colored contestant left from the elimination contests, there being seven whites and himself in the final contest for three prizes.

C George Gabriel, an Abbysinian who speaks eighteen languages, is a porter at the Grand Central Terminal, New York City. He was called upon recently to interpret after the official interpreter had failed with his eleven languages. Mr. Gabriel succeeded.

C Bishop William Quayle has subscribed $100 toward the fund for a "Welcome Hall" in St. Paul, Minn., for colored people.

C Mr. Harry Warwack has been drawn for grand jury duty and Mr. Fred Johnson for petit jury work in Montgomery County, Ohio. They are the first Negroes to appear on jury work in this county.

C Former Assistant United States Attorney General William H. Lewis is taking a prominent part in the Mohr murder case, Providence, R. I., in behalf of the Negroes in the case.

C Miss Emma S. Brown, who is 61 years old, has been in the employ of the Federal Government fifty years. She has 105 employees working under her in the Trimming Department of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, D. C.

C J. Myron Crawford made the highest average in the examination of the Missouri State Board of Embalmers held in St. Louis. Thirty-four colored and white applicants took the examination.

C The appointment of Charles Redmon to the police force in Knoxville, Tenn., gives the Negro race its fourth representative in that department.

C Mr. and Mrs. David Newsom, said to be the wealthiest couple of Hertford County, N. C., passed away within twenty-four hours of each other at the ages of 94 and 60, respectively. They were victims of pneumonia.

C J. J. Cleveland, an elderly Negro farmer near Brooksville, Okla., has a cornfield of twenty acres averaging three ears to a stalk. His whole crop yields 125 bushels to the acre.

FOREIGN

Chief George Moshesh of Basutoland, South Africa, a son of the great Moshesh, is dead at the age of eighty. He was one of the greatest living leaders of black men in Africa, speaking both French and English, and being a man of shrewdness and power.

Sir Thomas Fowell Burton, member of a celebrated family of English abolitionists and for many years President of the Aborigines Protection Society, is dead.

GHETTO

MISS JANE R. BOSFIELD, after being discriminated against in her position as stenographer at the Medfield State Hospital, Mass., has finally been dismissed on account of color. The superintendent has asked for a "white" stenographer.

An attempt has been made in Los Angeles, Cal., to prevent a colored police officer, Mr. H. L. Garrott, from occupying his own property on the ground that the deed restricted occupation to white people. The matter is before the courts.

The Colored Board of Trade, Miami, Fla., sends us this report: A segregation ordinance was brought before the City Council to be placed on its passage. The open protests of the Colored Board of Trade have "about" killed it, to the extent that they are now receiving many communications from white civic organizations, begging us to allow it to pass upon the promises of many concessions thereafter.

A bill has been passed in Virginia amending the Norfolk Segregation ordinance.

An attack has been made upon the moving picture theatre at 2351 Market Street, St. Louis, Mo., because the white proprietor employs colored help instead of white union labor.

The colored people of Dallas, Texas, are fighting segregation in that city.

J. J. Beal and Frank Guinn, election officials of Blaine County, Okla., who were convicted two years ago of intimidating Negroes and preventing them from voting under the Grandfather Clause, have been given a complete and full pardon by President Wilson.

Greeley Square Amusement Company in New York City has been fined $500 for discriminating against Negroes.

Ben Higgs, a well-known white man of Milwood, Ga., has been sentenced to 95 years in the penitentiary for the murder of Martha Anderson, a Negro woman aged 59. Higgs tried to hire her to pick cotton for him; when she refused he shot her.

Claud Pennel, a descendent of both colored and white parents, is under sentence of twelve months on the county roads of Kingston, Va., for marrying a white girl, Caro Jones. The girl is to serve an equal length of time in the county jail. Pennel is said to have means to fight the case.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has decided against "Athens" George, who tried to discriminate against Negroes in his theatre.

Clyde B. Hayes has been awarded a verdict of $125 by the courts of Wayne County, Mich., against the white proprietor of a restaurant who refused him service because of his color.

The following lynchings have taken place since our last record:

December 29th, Reddick, Fla.—Seventeen year old Negro, unknown; alleged attempt to assault white girl.

January 12th, Goldsboro, N. C.—John Richards; alleged murder.

January 20th, Albany, Ga.—For the murder of Sheriff Moreland in the home of Felix Lake when he tried to make an arrest: Lake, Felix, father; Lake, Frank, son; Lake, Dewey, son; Lake, Major, son; Keith, Rodius.

January 25th, Boston, Tex.—W. J. Mayfield (white), alleged murder.

January 25th, Livingston, Ala.—Richard Burton; burglary and stabbing owner of premises.

January 31, Hot Springs, Ark.—Will Warren; accused of chasing white boys.
Men of the Month

A CIVIL

February a year ago Thaddeus
SERVANT

W. Wheeler was appointed Cost
Clerk of the City of Dayton, Ohio.

He comes of one of the oldest and best colored families of the city, having been born and educated there, and a graduate of the Steele High School. In 1903 he was made
Deputy Clerk of the Common Pleas Court, a position which he held until 1909. He then went into the real estate business and afterward became Engrossing Clerk of the State House of Representatives. He gained his present position under the Commission
Government through Civil Service examination.

He is a charter member of the local Branch of the N. A. A. C. P.

A JUDGE

Judge Edwin J. Barclay is well-known throughout the Republic of Liberia. He was born there in 1882 and is a nephew of ex-President Arthur Barclay. He is a graduate of Liberia College and was admitted to the Bar in 1904. He has served the Republic in the Educational Department, the Department of State, and has been Judge of the Circuit Court since 1912. In addition to all this he has written some poetry and furnished the music for the most popular patriotic song sung in Liberia.

AN ASSESSOR

Thirty years ago Fred F.
Smith was a Boston boot-black. Last December he was made First Assistant Assessor by Major Curley with a salary and fees as Appraiser of Property.

Mr. Smith has been in the Assessor’s office for twelve years and has twice before been certified for the position of First Assistant by the Civil Service Commission, but color prejudice barred him from the appointment.

This year he stood at the top of the list and the Mayor said: “They do not want you in this position simply because of the fact that your skin is a little darker than mine, but you deserve it, have honestly won it, and are perfectly competent to fill it, and in spite of the opposition to you on account of your color I am going to appoint you.”

A LEADER OF

General Andrew S. Burt,
COLORED SOLDIERS

who died last year, was for ten years Colonel of the 25th United States Infantry, composed of colored soldiers. He was a veteran of the Civil War, an Indian fighter for thirty-two years, and took part in both the Spanish-American and Filipino Wars. Before a committee of the United States Senate at the time of the Brownsville affair he testified in glowing terms of the bravery and discipline of the colored soldiers.

A YOUNG

Many colored folk saw and enjoyed the Progressive Westerner during its brief career. The guiding spirit was Eleane S. Dickson, who died last July at the age of twenty-two.
Miss Dickson was educated in Denver and Seattle and graduated from the High School at seventeen. She was a cheerful, energetic girl who is sadly missed.

AN INSPIRER

Mr. A. H. Glenn, Oberlin ’02, OF YOUTH

has been connected with the
Washington, D. C., Public Schools for the past ten years. He is secretary of the Board of Examiners and head of the Department of Languages; but perhaps his really best work and the work least known is the personal encouragement which he has given to colored college men. He has secured scholarships for M Street High School graduates as follows: Amherst, 3;
Bowdoin, 1; Brown, 1; Harvard, 3; Pittsburgh, 3; Syracuse, 3; Williams, 3; Dartmouth, 4; Iowa State, 1; Yale, 1. Many of these universities had never before offered such aid to colored youth. Nearly all these young people have made or are making fine records, and a considerable percentage have been elected to the Phi Beta Kappa.

A LAWYER

George H. Woodson has long been one of the best-known colored lawyers in the West. He was born in Virginia in 1865, graduated from Howard University, and has practiced at the Iowa State Bar for twenty years. He has handled chiefly labor litigation and personal injury cases. He has been a judge of the Sixth Judicial District of Iowa and ran for the Legislature on the Republican ticket in 1912. Mr. Woodson is a charitable, public-spirited man. He is a thirty-third degree Mason and an Odd Fellow, and was one of the strongest supporters of the original "Niagara Movement."

224

DREW

Howard Drew the celebrated colored sprinter has recently been covering himself with glory in New York City. First he equalled the world's record in the seventy yards dash and finally at the New York Athletic Club Games, Twenty-second Regiment Armory, he beat the world's indoor record for one hundred yards running it in ten seconds flat. Roy Morse, another colored lad who holds a world's running record, ran second, and behind these two came the vaunted Loomis of Chicago, a white man. Loomis beat Drew once in California and has been boasting of it ever since.
ADELAIDE CRAPSEY writes in the New Republic:

And if the many sayings of the wise
Teach of submission I will not submit,
But with a spirit all unreconciled
Flash an unquenched defiance to the stars.
Better it is to walk, to run, to dance,
Better it is to laugh and leap and sing,
To know the open skies of dawn and night,
To move untrammeled down the flaming noon,
And I will clamor it through weary days
Keeping the edge of deprivation sharp,
Nor with the pliant speaking on my lips
Of resignation, sister to defeat.
I'll not be patient. I will not lie still.

The December number of the American Economic Review has a review of Census Bulletin, Number 129. Professor Kelly Miller writes on the "Practical Value of Higher Education" in December Education. The Living Age for January 8th has an article on the late Booker T. Washington. Articles on African missions, entitled "Black Sheep," by J. K. Mackenzie, ran through the October, November, December, January and February numbers of the Atlantic.

The most interesting literary occurrence of the month has been the appearance of the Journal of Negro History edited by Carter G. Woodson. This is a quarterly magazine of ninety-eight pages, excellently printed on good paper. It contains four leading articles together with documents and book reviews. It is twenty-five cents a copy and one dollar a year at 2223 Twelfth Street, Washington, D. C. The New York Evening Post welcomes this magazine editorially as "a new and striking note in the advance of the black man."

Miss Werner's new book on the languages of Africa ("The Language-Families of Africa," by A. Werner, London, 1915, 149 pp. The Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 3 s 6 d.) is one of the most valuable of recent contributions to Negro history and ethnology. She makes five groups of languages: the Sudan family; the Bantu family; the Hamitic family; the Bushman group; and the Semitic family. The first group contains some two hundred "isolating" languages like the Chinese, and is peculiarly West African. The second family, of some three hundred languages, is "agglutinating," while the Hamitic languages are inflected. The Semitic languages are, of course, Asiatic, and the place of the Bushman has not been exactly determined. Miss Werner insists upon the importance of the study of African languages and of their highly organized grammar.

Mr. J. W. Work of Fisk University has done us good service in his book on Negro folk-songs (Folk-Song of the American Negro, by John Wesley Work, 131 pp. Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.). The chief value of this collection of folk-songs is Mr. Work's personal knowledge of the exact way in which the Negroes sing them. On the other hand Mr. Work's knowledge of African music and African sociology seems exceedingly vague, and his almost naive religious faith rather spoils the scientific value of his otherwise interesting work.

CRUCIFYING CHRIST

THE Rev. Francis J. Grimké of Washington, D. C, is determined not to allow the hypocrites of the white Christian church to succeed in their unchristian policy of color discrimination without protest. He says in a recent leaflet:

"I have a friend who is at the head of an educational work. In the interest of his school he had occasion sometime ago to travel a little in seeking to raise funds. During this tour he stopped at a certain town and called upon one of the wealthiest, if not the wealthiest man in the town, who is also a prominent member and officer in one of the churches of the town. This friend is a college graduate and an alumnus of one of the leading theological seminaries of the country; his manner and bearing are also that of a gentleman. He finally succeeded in getting an interview with this wealthy church member, and, in introducing himself, said, ‘I am Mr. B—— of such a city,’ and proceeded to state the purpose of his mission. When he was through, this Christian gentleman said to him. ‘I must tell you frankly that I am losing my interest in your race. Most of the leaders of your people are very assertive; they want to be the social equals of the white people. You have come here, and look how you have introduced yourself to me. You said, ‘I am Mr. B——.’ Now what do you mean by that? You mean simply that you are my social equal, and I don’t care to have anything to do with a colored man who feels that way.’ This friend said, for a moment he was dumb with astonishment, but soon recovered himself and, although he felt at first like telling him just what he thought of him and leaving his house, he held his temper, and finally told him that if it was more pleasing to him to have him drop the word ‘Mr.’ in speaking of himself, in the future he would do so.

“The point particularly to which I want to direct attention is that this Christian gentleman who could not bear to have a colored man use the word ‘Mr.’ in speaking of himself was at that very time being considered for the chairmanship of the General Evangelistic Committee of one of the greatest denominations in the country, and was afterwards appointed its chairman. Now I am not holding the denomination responsible for that appointment, for it knew nothing of this incident of which I am speaking, but think of the man himself, feeling as he did, acting as he did, permitting himself to be considered for the chairmanship of such a committee. Before God, I ask, ‘Was that man fit to be at the head of an evangelistic committee—a committee that sought to hold up Jesus Christ before men with a view of accepting Him, of following Him?’”

Further proof of the extraordinary hypocrisy of white churchmen is shown in an article “By the Rev. Edgar A. Lawther, West Virginia Conference” in the Christian Advocate. After stating that “it is the present consensus of opinion among the majority of the leaders in the South that the segregation of the races is a fundamental hypothesis of southern civilization,” he says: “This conclusion does not deny the ‘one blood’ doctrine of Saint Paul, for racial intermingling is one thing and racial brotherhood is another. If the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is wrong in its attempted solution of the Negro problem, then also is southern statesmanship wrong and the conscientious and able leaders of the ‘new South’ are guilty of injustice toward their colored neighbors and brothers.”

When we reflect that “southern statesmanship” has lynched 2,812 untried colored men in thirty years beside disfranchising the race and instituting “Jim-Crow” cars and other methods of public and private insult, we wonder if the Church could not find slightly better model. Not so, however, with the Rev. Edgar:

“We need surrender no vital principle in advocating the organization of a separate fraternal Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America. Our colored constituency would doubtless favor such a move.”

In the same breath he continues:

“We need not talk about larger movements of church federation till we can have unity and union in our denominational families. In God’s name, let us earnestly strive for a united Methodism in America.

“We shall pray earnestly to God, whose providence watches over these two great churches, that as we look toward the General Conference it may not be that our hope for union will be shattered, but that our bishops, ministers and laymen shall strike hands with the bishops, ministers and laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for a more determined effort in the work of our world parish.”

Or in other words, let American Methodists unite by kicking out the “Niggers.”

The St. Paul Appeal adds this similar thought:

“Said Secretary of the Navy Daniels at Washington recently, at fraternal night ceremonies:

“I pray to God that the day will come in Methodism when there will not have to be any fraternal night.’ The Secretary added that he hoped that the day would come when there would be no Northern or Southern Methodist churches, but there will be but one church.

“Of course he did not exactly mean that. What he meant to say was that he hoped the time would come when there will be but one WHITE church and that the yellow, black, red and brown Christians be forbidden to enter."

What is—what must be, the inevitable, logical result of such an outrageous travesty on the teaching of Jesus Christ as these remarks reveal? Is it not such horrors as we hear from the war in Christian Europe? Listen to the wail from Poland:

"Hundreds of thousands were forced from their homes on a day's notice, the more fortunate being packed and shipped as freight—the old, the sick and insane, men, women, and children, shuttled from one province to another, side-tracked for days without food or help of any kind—the less fortunate driven into the woods and swamps to die of starvation. Jewish towns were sacked and burned wantonly. Hundreds of Jews were carried off as hostages into Germany, Austria, and Russia. Orgies of lust and torture took place in public in the light of day. There are scores of villages where not a single woman was left inviolate. Women, old and young, were stripped and knotted in the public squares. Jews were burned alive in synagogues where they had fled for shelter."

Listen to the cry from the Belgian Bishops:

"There is not an honest heart that is not swollen with indignation. While we hear our own Government saying to the face of the world, 'That one is twice guilty who, after violating another's rights, tries still, audaciously and cynically, to justify himself by imputing to his victim faults which he had never committed,' our own people can only by doing violence to themselves stifle words of malediction. But yesterday a countryman in the suburb of Malines learned that his son had fallen on the field of battle. A priest consoled him. And the brave man answered: 'Oh, for my son, I give him to our country. But they took my eldest son, the cowards, and shot him down in a ditch!'"

THE ART OF BEING JUST

Now and then our conscience hurts us, particularly under the plain speaking of foreigners. Mme. Elsa de Pierrefeu, of the French Red Cross, has been speaking in Boston:

"We think nothing of lynching in certain states. How about our treatment of the Negroes and the fostering of race prejudice and hatred? Have we not all the seeds of war right in our midst? Terrible war of neighbor against neighbor. America's hour is about to strike, for she stands as guilty as any nation in Europe. Her only hope of regeneration is through suffering."

The National Rip-Saw says:

"An incident is reported from Fort Worth, Texas, that makes us feel that the twentieth century is but a dream and that we are really living in the dark ages.

"When the Liberty Bell on its return from the Pacific coast stopped at Fort Worth, the school children were permitted to gather around the old relic, touch it with their hands, and kiss it with their lips, and then it happened. It was a frightful thing to happen in a civilized community and no wonder the people were thrown into a panic and narrowly escaped riot and bloodshed. A Negro school child tried to kiss the bell. That settled it. The mob spirit was aroused in that civilized white community as if by an electric shock and instantly the blood of ignorant fanatics was fired and they threatened to drive every colored man out of the city. For shame! When I think of that Negro child I blush scarlet for my race. If the kiss of that child was an insult to that community then the Liberty Bell had no business there. The first blood shed in the war of the revolution which ended in the independence proclaimed by the old bell was the blood of a martyr with a coal-black skin.

"I was not surprised to learn that the Negro child that caused the near-riot was the child of a poor workingman. Let us apologize to ourselves for being human beings!"

John Randolph Cooper, a white Georgia lawyer, said recently before a Washington court:

"I have defended Negroes in Georgia, Alabama and Florida, and where a white man and a Negro are on opposite sides of a case in these states it is impossible for the Negro to get a fair trial. The Fourteenth Amendment was supposed to have been passed for the uplift of the Negro race, but it is used for the benefit of the railroads. The Negroes do not benefit by it..."

"In Georgia Negroes are prevented from registering and I contend that whenever by any action of a state, whether through its legislature or through its courts, or through its executive or administrative officers, all persons of the African race are excluded, solely because of their race or color, from serving as petty and grand jurors in the criminal prosecution of a person of the African race, the equal protection of the laws is denied to him, contrary to the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States."

The South is undoubtedly restive under this unanswerable charge. The Louisville Courier-Journal says in this choice English:

"Congress will be asked to pass a segregation law for Washington to prevent the encroachment of Negro property owners in residence sections occupied chiefly by white persons.

"Well, Congress will not grant the request.

"Washington, a half century after Appomattox, is Exhibit A to prove the fallacy of the theory of the rabid advocates of race equality that race prejudice was unreasonable and erodable.

"Washington has the best Negroes in the world. They are, speaking generally, intelligent and educated, well dressed without being swaggerers, and quite easy to meet and greet without injury to anyone's feelings. The relations between whites and blacks in the National Capital might be described as being mutually respectful, and, as between individuals who are acquainted, agreeable and even cordial. But the color line remains drawn as clearly in Washington as in Georgia, where there is, in some sections at least, a mutual lack of respect based upon outrageous conduct of lawless individuals of both colors which provides each race with the excuse for attributing to the other a shocking lack of character and decency.

"Congress will undertake no such delicate, difficult task as segregating the Negro residents of Washington or deliminating blocks in which they live. Neither a Republican Congress nor a Democratic Congress would risk it. Soothing a wildcat or stopping a circular saw with the bare hands would be a task for woman in comparison with it."

A Southern white man writes in the Montgomery Advertiser:

"In the mistaken treatment of the Negro in the outset we proceeded on the basis of certain theories which operated on us with all the force and effect of facts, yet these theories have gone to naught in the light of development. So far from yielding good to the race of whites these theories have only brought forth evil, not to the Negro only, but the white race as well. One of these dominant theories of the past was that of withholding from utterance or expression any commendation of the Negro lest he be lifted above himself and be emboldened to assume undue consequence to the detriment of the white race. Yet, where the opposite course has been pursued as it has in many localities in the South, the results have been to the contrary. That is to say, plainly and unequivocally, that where the Negro has been properly respected, becomingly treated as a man, has been duly recognized as worthy of consideration by according to him a fair chance and simple justice, he has never failed to become a valuable asset to society. On the other hand, where there has been a studious effort to suppress the black man, to mistreat him, to establish one standard of justice for him and another for the race of whites, there have inevitably been disturbance, demoralization, backwardness, and much else to the detriment of the public good.

"Another theory has been that of the exercise of force toward the Negro rather than that of suasion and the gentler methods of treatment. Few thought of treating a Negro gently, and few of the exercise of suasion as a means of amendment of race conduct. No, he must be forced to do, hence there were kept before him the terrors of the nightly lash, the jail, the chain-gang, the penitentiary, and especially the vengeance and violence of mobocracy. It need scarcely be said that this is the reflection of the regime of slavery."

Albert Leon Guérard, who teaches French in a Texas institute, speaking "to the men and women of the South," says:

"The time has come when you can afford to be just—to frame such laws that the illiterate, the drunkard, the criminal, be excluded from the privileges of active citizenship; whilst all desirable citizens, whatever may be their sex, race, color or previous condition of servitude, will be welcome to the full exercise of American liberty. I do not know whether these words of mine will not be resented. I am no platform virtuoso, and I have not come here to sing old words to an old tune. Think for yourselves, young men and women: do not allow your grandfathers to do your thinking for you."

For the gaiety of nations we add the comment of a dyed-in-the-wool Bourbon, the Augusta Chronicle:

“There is no question but that the courts should deal impartially, and while it ushers in a condition that has, frankly, been to a certain extent, disregarded heretofore, it will have a wholesome effect in one way, and beyond doubt establish distinctively high standing for the courts of the entire country, furnishing an incentive and precedent upon which justice may be impartially dispensed everywhere.

“One element of doubt as to the prudence of it clings around this action, but that should be no hindrance and cannot influence the courts. This lies in the danger of the ignorant and ruthlessly criminal Negroes arrogating to themselves an unwarranted degree of importance and trespassing upon the rights of others as citizens. Evidences of this nature have been manifested, from time to time, on occasions where measures according them fair recognition were given. It is one of the unfortunate features of Negro civilization.”

The above somehow reminds us of the solemn dignity of a drunken man. “Negro civilization” consists apparently of “ignorant and ruthlessly criminal Negroes,” while white civilization consists of the Congregation of the Saints.

A LYNCHING “TALK-FEST”

EVER year the American people from the comfort of their arm chairs read over the list of mob murderers (or at least the list that looks most respectable) and then after a lot of real indignant talk they have dinner.

The Boston Herald thinks it “fortunate for our national reputation that Russia is more than occupied at present with war. Otherwise, certain barbarous Russian newspapers in the exclusive circles of St. Petersburg and Moscow might be commenting today upon the chaotic condition of darkest America.”

The Brooklyn Eagle follows: “In a Georgia town two Negroes were lynched for the alleged offense of speaking saucily to a white woman. Let the good work go bravely on. If it is persisted in the black folks of Georgia will soon be giving etiquette lessons to the elite. Elsewhere in the United States no race has been trained to courtesy by making impoliteness a capital offense.”

The Boston Post says: “This is rather worse than anything that has been told of atrocities committed in the fury of the European war. It is inconceivable in a free community under conditions of peace.”

The Pittsburgh Leader says:

“While the angry tide was still swelling and threatening against the Mexicans, a crowd of American bandits murdered some other American citizens in our own country, right at their own homes. And the American public, gritting its valiant teeth at its helplessness to go down to Mexico and shoot that country clear off the earth, paid no attention to the lynching of five Negroes, or if it did it was either to ignore the murderous act or to applaud it.

“It is just this intellectual national cross-eyededness and near-sightedness that is making a world laughing stock of America and Americans. What looks real to us is silly and shortsighted and unintelligent to people who keep their feet on the ground.”

Secretary Lansing is recommending “as an act of grace” an appropriation of $41,080 for the lynching of certain Austrians, Greeks and Turks in Omaha, Neb., in 1909; which proves the advantage of being a hyphenated American.

We think much sympathy should be shown Professor Josiah Morse of the University of South Carolina (“white”), who “holds no brief for lynching,” but gravely suggests in the Philadelphia Public Ledger that we should count “occasions” of lynching, and not merely the unimportant number of victims of each mob. In this way he would be able to prove “little or no” increase in lynching! He insists that “irritability” on account of the fall in the price of cotton is a respectable cause of killing “darkies” by Southern gentlemen, and finally concludes with this gem:

“May I add what I have elsewhere written, and what every intelligent Negro knows to be true—that among no other people on this planet would the Negro have fared better than he has with the people of the South."

If this is true we certainly need to be thankful!

The editor of the Independent, Elizabeth City, N. C., has more common sense and deeper insight:

"I shudder when I think of the price the white race must some day pay for its sins against colored peoples. The day of reckoning is coming, it must come, and it may be nearer at hand than the more far-seeing suspect.

"There are probably more than ten million Negroes in the United States. Under the vicious leadership of intellectual brutes like Thomas Dixon and Thomas Watson, the troglodyte population of the Southern States has made these ten million or more Negroes hate the country in which they are forced to live but in which they are denied the rights of citizenship. The average Negro is docile, patient, kind and polite. He knows his place, he keeps his place, and bows and smiles when he meets a white man. But deep down in the heart of every black man is a grievous knowledge of all the insults and abuses and infamies heaped upon him by men who would not for a moment pass as his superiors if their skins were not white. The Negro realizes his inferiority of numbers and his lack of organization and leadership. Meekly he takes the humble place assigned to him and tries to be happy, light-hearted and content. But his heart is heavy, his soul is oppressed, his vision is blurred by the welling springs of grief within, and he cannot love and respect the great white race. If we do not find a better way of dealing with the Negro, if we do not put down the wild mob of barbarians in the South who kick and cuff and burn and lynch black men upon the slightest provocation, we are going to some day lose one of our best friends, and just at a time when we shall need him most."

But commend us to the Macon Telegraph for purblind blundering. Heavy with dignity, and a grave sense of unlimited responsibility, it deserves a tomb beside the Charleston News and Courier:

"There is a mistaken idea in the minds of so many white people in the South that 'uplifting the Negro' means putting him on the same street to live, abolishing Jim Crow cars, admitting him to white hotels and theatres and generally puffing him up so that he will become intolerable to live with because of his social aspirations. Nothing could be further from the real aim in effective education and training of the Negro, nothing could be further from the actual results achieved up to the present time. Tuskegee has proved one thing conclusively—that the trained and equipped Negro is taught, among other things, to realize his limitations as a race, and that the individual, even if mentally qualified, must never take himself conspicuously outside those limitations even if he is fitted to do it and feels he would like to. The trained Negro is an ideal servant, an ideal artisan, and ideal worker generally—properly handled. But it takes an intelligent white man to do it. It's beyond the narrow-headed roughneck of the Caucasian race to get along with the Negro under such conditions, but the trained Negro is a more efficient instrument than the untrained white man, and no matter how careful the Negro may be to keep his qualifications from becoming obvious, the unequipped white man senses it himself with such quickness and accuracy that a 'situation' develops at once. There is an element of white people who find expression of race superiority only in keeping the inferior race as stupid, unformed, and inefficient as individuals as it is possible. Their adoption of this course is spontaneous and it is inspired by the first flash of an unthinking instinct for self-preservation without sitting down intelligently to figure out how best to accomplish it. To so fit themselves that they can turn the increased efficiency, the high standard of the apparently encroaching inferior race to their own profit, comfort and increment and the general enrichment of the community, does not occur at all. The only impulse is to kill what appears to be a dangerous competitor. It is unthinking, suicidal and disturbingly stupid."

"Disturbingly stupid"! That is the word, and we doubt if it fits the "narrow-headed roughneck" any better than it does the editor of the Macon Telegraph and his ilk. Harper's Weekly says of the Tuskegee lynching statistics: "How much more effective these facts are than any talk about them can be."

Of course. "The Germans recently invaded Belgium." "The Jews are excluded from the Yale Skull and Bones." "There was an execution recently on Golgotha."
THE CRISIS

THE LURE OF THE TROPICS

SAMUEL L. PARRISH, in a pamphlet entitled "Self-Government in the Tropics," declares that if one girdles the world with the parallel lines of the thirtieth degrees of North and South latitude one will embrace the populations unfit for self-government because of their inefficiency, etc. Mr. Horace White points out in the New York Evening Post that in the first place, most of this region consists of water and desert; that in the second place it includes the birth place of Simon Bolivar, and St. Augustine, and comes very near including Moses, the Prophets, and Jesus Christ. It also includes the great Republic of Brazil.

Mr. White is much too modest in his claims. This part of the world is responsible for the whole Egyptian civilization with its mightiest Pharaohs, and its culture extending over four thousand years; for the Ethiopian and Sudanese Empires, for the main part of Chinese civilization, and for the civilization of India. Mr. Parrish lays down the rule that stable civilizations must have "an incorruptible judiciary" to impartially administer the law. Mr. White points to the mob murders in Georgia, and says: "Instead of vaunting our superiority over tropical countries in this self-satisfied way we might better call upon the mountains and rocks to cover us."

The new Herald, published in the Danish West Indies, declares that laborers are lured to the Islands by false pretences as to the kinds of work and the amount of pay, and says: "That the field laborer in Santa Cruz, if the truth in all its fulness be told, is no better treated than the laborers in the rubber districts in the Congo, or even in the Putamayo regions in South America, over which so many protests arose."

The Herald is being violently attacked for its disclosures of the "misery, the filth, and the dreadful conditions under which these poor laborers live."

C. R. Enock, in his book on the Tropics, shows how the small and beautiful native industries of the colored races have been systematically driven out by debt bondage, the culture of one staple, and forced or contract labor. Says the New York Evening Post:

"Nothing but the enrichment of estate owners has dictated the establishment of monoculture of coffee, cocoa, cotton, rubber, and so on. Mr. Enock points out that in nearly all the African colonies and territories, whether Negro or Mohammedan, the natives carry on small manufacturing operations. The same fact is true of India, Mexico, South America, and almost every tropical land. In Africa and India, for example, clever native smelters have never owed anything of their knowledge of the working of iron to Europe; nor have the expert makers of textiles. Wood-carving, gold and silver working, stone masonry, are as far advanced. Yet the almost indefensible operations of wholesale manufacturers and traders are tending to drive out these native arts. Even travellers and students appear to regard them as instances of curious savagery and native cunning, rather than as the nucleus of a possible economic culture."

THE VOTE OF THE DISFRANCHISED

OKLAHOMA is trying to get around the decision of the Supreme Court. "We elect officials," says the Muskogee Times-Democrat, "because they stand for better government and in opposition to Negro activity in governmental affairs:"

The Oklahoman says: "That amendment must be one that provides for a literacy test, and the execution of its provisions must be placed in the hands of officials who realize that this is a white man's state and that it must forever remain a white man's state."

Meantime, the Governor in calling the special session of the Legislature, mentions every subject except the one for which the Legislature is really being called.

"The governor cannot well be blamed for being ashamed to mention that subject. It's not one that should appeal with particular pride to a party that calls itself democratic," says the Wichita, Kan., Eagle. "Probably a majority of the people of Oklahoma do not object to an educational qualification that will honestly disfranchise all those unable to meet its provisions. But an educational qualification meant to disqualify all Negroes regardless of education and to qualify all Indians and whites, however ignorant, is another matter. Governor Williams is not to be blamed for approaching the subject with the utmost caution. He is one governor whose situation we do not in the least envy."

Meantime the Raleigh, N. C., Times is looking to the far future:
“Without considering the professional element of Southern Republicanism, with whose fate no one is concerned, this political setting adrift of the Negro is fraught with the element of change in the South of the next decade. In that time it is to be expected that illiteracy, so far as the right to vote is concerned, practically will have been eliminated from the Negro as well as from the white race. The Negro, too, will have lost with education and with the stoppage of Republican nursing that thoughtless and dangerous habit of voting en masse which, more than anything else, has made him a political menace. It must be remembered that with the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States adverse to the ‘grandfather clauses’ and with the expiration of the time limit of those clauses, the South is under no regulation of the suffrage other than that of poll-tax and educational requirements. Thousands on thousands of Negroes are now competent to vote, who remain silent by choice. It is inevitable that some day they will begin to vote.”

The East Tennessee News, a colored paper, is preparing for this day by a strong plea against the custom of buying and selling Negro votes.

The Knoxville Journal and Tribune thus holds up the hands of its colored contemporary:

“It is a well-known fact, that there have been a large number of men of the colored race in Knoxville, who have been voting for a price. In the days of slavery, their progenitors may have been bought and sold without their consent; but men who vote for a price sell themselves for a small pittance.

“We are sorry to have to make the admission; but there are a good many white men here, as many as there are of the colored race perhaps, who admit that their souls are not their own, by selling their votes on election day, for a price far below that accepted by Judas Iscariot for his historical betrayal.”

THE COLORED PRESS

Strange indeed that wherever crime is committed by Negroes, every detail is published broadcast and the fact of color is most prominent in the details, but when uplift and preventive measures are planned our welfare workers are neither consulted or considered.

“Seventy-five thousand colored citizens are studiously ignored. Again the question, is it indifference or prejudice? or both. And echo answers, which and why.”—Chicago Broad-Ax.

“And thus the President, a Virginia Christian gentleman, eighteen months after his removal of Henry Lincoln Johnson, keeps his words to the Negroes of the country who supported him. It is very plain that Woodrow Wilson does not expect the Negroes who vote to vote for him. In truth, he doesn’t want the Negro vote. He will certainly not get the German vote. He will not get the Republican vote; and next November will retire the man who gave his word and refused to keep it because those to whom he gave it are too weak to compel him to keep it. Taft couldn’t keep his word either! Where is he today?”—The St. Luke Herald.

“In the course of an address at the opening exercises of the new annex to the John T. West School, Mr. T. C. Walker of Gloucester County, made the statement that ‘Negroes would not pay enough taxes in ten years to cover the cost of such a building,’ or words to that effect.

“Let us see. The building Mr. Walker referred to cost $34,500. The assessed valuation of colored property in Norfolk is $1,462,650, which is assessed annually by the city and State $29,252.60. Besides, the Negroes of Norfolk pay their proportion of poll taxes, corporation taxes, liquor licenses, court fines, etc., from which funds for education are derived. Figure it out for yourself. Mr. Walker of Gloucester is good at compromising, but in this instance he excelled himself.”—Norfolk, Va., Journal and Guide.

“The licensed bullying of the white color over the black, propensity to subject them to a position of inferiority and contempt throughout the human age, the most scornful language pouring upon him even from the personages apparently well-bred and cultured, the growing habit of murdering with impunity and lynching, are the vices which the foreign adventurers under the assumption of Africanders, have transformed into habits manifesting heroism to the white races and are politely described as the only practical policy which make the natives remain subordinate.

“It is upon this degrading policy that the white supremacy is built.”—Mochochonono, Basutuland, South Africa.
THE Louisville News records this interesting occurrence:

"It happened on a south-bound Fourth avenue car. At Chestnut street an unusually large number of passengers got on, and among whom was a well-dressed, elderly man whose appearance and bearing bore the stamp of the Kentucky Colonel. He was not unlike those lithographic pictures of the Kentucky gentleman about to partake of Kentucky cheer, and his ruddy complexion indicated that he had been cheered quite frequently. As he is the hero of our story this rather intimate description may be pardoned.

"Before boarding the car he stood aside with that courtesy for which the male of the State are noted, to allow the ladies to precede him. Among those waiting to get on were three colored ladies, but the Colonel, feeling no doubt that to permit them to precede him would be carrying courtesy to a ridiculous extreme, pushed unceremoniously past them and entered the car. He found a seat and was soon busy with his newspaper.

"When the car reached Breckinridge street our hero had occasion to look up from his paper and found his vision obstructed by a most charmingly proportioned young lady. Her back was toward him. She was dressed in the extreme of fashion and wore a veil.

"For a few moments our hero gazed in silent admiration at this exquisite creature, and then, realizing that one of Kentucky's fairest was standing, he smoothed out his whiskers, removed his hat, rose from his seat, and, with a bow that would have made Lord Chesterfield turn green with envy, said: 'Accept my seat, lady.'

"The lady did so; and when she raised her veil and turned to thank him our hero almost collapsed when he found himself looking into the winsome countenance of a chocolate brown."
THE BEGINNING OF SORROWS
A Story
By LEE WALLACE

At her teacher's call Selena rose and limped carefully out from the shade of her mother's whitewashed shanty. Ordinarily she would have taken the cinder path to the gate at a hop-skip-and-jump pace.

"I've got me a sore toe," she volunteered dolefully. One skinny bean-brown foot with its squirming bare digits was thrust forth for Miss Ellis's inspection.

Miss Ellis having long been a victim of the imaginative genius of small children, knew just how little of Selena's microscopic injury to attribute to sand-burr prickles and how much to "make believe." She tactfully expressed her sympathy with the hopeful suggestion that the crippled member would sufficiently recover to allow it to be shod for the Sunday school picnic to be held the next day. Whereupon Selena pirouetted about joyously, displaying an agility worthy of a little girl with ten sound toes. In her swift whirl the cloth strips of many colors and textures tied to her own tiny braids swung wildly around her head.

"I see you've got long hair this morning, Selena," remarked her teacher.

"Yessum," answered Selena gravely. She searched Miss Ellis's face keenly, but that dignified dark countenance expressed neither ridicule nor merriment.

Some of the "hair" hung so that it blew across the child's face, whipping into her eyes, and this she put back with a toss of her head and a graceful brush of her hand after the manner of a fine lady annoyed by superabundant and disobedient locks.

"Mine's only playin' like," she confessed frankly. "That little girl next door's got sure 'nough long hair, though—way long an' curly. But then she's white."

"Selena, where's your mother?" asked Miss Ellis irrelevantly.

"O, she's gone out to wash," returned the child.

The question was wholly mechanical. Miss Ellis knew the answer before it was given. She knew, too, if she had made the same inquiry of almost any other of her half-a-hundred small pupils she would have received that same unconsciously pathetic reply.

"What time will she be here this evening?" she pursued.

Selena was evidently in a mood for what her mother rebukingly termed "actin' a monkey." She pursed her lips and puckered her shiny forehead with the dismal querulousness of crabbed old age; she bowed her thin legs distressfully outward and stooped her hipless midget of a body as if leaning palsiedly on a cane.

"Gawd knows, honey, fo' Ah don't," she mouthed, shaking her head with an inimitable show of solemnity.

Miss Ellis told Selena "good bye" rather hurriedly, promising to stop in on her way back later in the day. She resolved to take Selena to task then for making a mockery of the aged and infirm as well as for breaking the third commandment, but just now with the ludicrous mimic before her she realized her own inability to be properly censorious.

Selena grew sober in earnest as her teacher turned to leave her.

"Miss Lelly, won't you come back quick, please?" she pleaded, "Mama said for me not to go 'way while she's gone an' I haven't had a single comp'ny to-day. I wish school would hurry up an' start again."

The genuine appeal of this childish complaint set Miss Ellis off at her favorite occupation of erecting a day nursery for the washerwomen's children. It was a roomy structure supplied with competent attendants and surrounded by spacious playgrounds—a refuge for the school children during vacation and for the younger ones every working day in the year.

She was again engrossed in her architectural day-dream as she returned from her errand. So much so that she might have forgotten her promise to Selena if she had not heard shrill, happy laughter as she approached the whitewashed hut. Selena had "a comp'ny"—a freckled mite of a girl with pale blue eyes and a mass of wiry, light-colored ringlets. Obviously this was the possessor of "sure 'nough" long hair.

The two children seated side by side upon the ground were chattering together with a contentment that implied an amiable solution of the race problem for all time. They were busy over the toilette of a foolish, pink-cheeked, yellow-haired doll, Selena's most valued possession. Miss Ellis had an avowed liking to see the children of her people with dollies that were black or brown like themselves. In her race-jealous eyes a black mother with a white baby was hardly more incongruous than a black child with a white doll.

"Am I invited to the party?" she called, entering the shutterless gate.

The assent was enthusiastic; the two children scrambled apart to make room for her to sit between them.

"We've got dinner," announced Selena, indicating several rust-eaten tin dishes on the ground before her. "This," lifting one containing a mound of green grass blades, "is puddin', an' this"—displaying a cake of dried mud sugared over with sand—"is ice cream pie. an' this is strawberries." The last "this" was a jagged-mouthed can filled with small lumps of coal.

"Goo' bye, S'lena!" she wailed yearningly, "Goo' bye," and then once more before she went on "S'lena! Goo' bye!"

Selena sat gazing after her lost little playmate with the deep, wordless hurt and mortification of a grown-up in her baby eyes. When the tiny figure had passed out of sight she turned her whole attention to one of her naked feet, laying it across the other knee and seeming to examine it with minutest scrutiny.

"I—c—can't play with you any more," she sobbed despairingly, groping for her discarded sunbonnet.

"'Cause—you're colored," came the half-drowned reply.

When she reached the gate again she turned her wet face back toward Selena and waved the soiled pink bonnet she carried in her hand.

"Goo' bye, S'lena!" she wailed yearningly, "Goo' bye," and then once more before she went on "S'lena! Goo' bye!"

Selena sat gazing after her lost little playmate with the deep, wordless hurt and mortification of a grown-up in her baby eyes. When the tiny figure had passed out of sight she turned her whole attention to one of her naked feet, laying it across the other knee and seeming to examine it with minutest scrutiny.

"I've got me a sore toe," she murmured lifelessly.
“I’ve got me a sore heart,” declared every woebegone lineament of the brown little face.

“Dinner’s all getting spoiled, Selena,” reminded Miss Ellis gaily—“See here we haven’t eaten a bit of the pudding.”

“Why are some folks white an’ other folks colored?” demanded Selena abruptly.

“For some wise purpose, I suppose,” replied Miss Ellis inadequately, “but you needn’t bother about that just now.”

“But sposin’ you love somebody that’s white?” persisted Selena.

“You mustn’t love them,” returned Miss Ellis grimly, “They don’t love you.”

“She does love me,” averred Selena fiercely.

“Well, she won’t when she gets older. But never mind; come on and let’s eat up the strawberries.”

Selena looked down at the nuggets of coal and pushed out her full little lips in sorrowful disdain. The corners of her small mouth drooped with the bitterness of undelusion.

“Oh,” she said wearily, picking up the jagged-mouthed can and deliberately spilling its contents upon the ground, “They’re only playin’ strawberries.”

JUST A LITTLE TIRED

By KATHARINE GILLIARD

Just a little tired, waiting
Through the night
For the new day to be breaking Into light.

Just a little tired, yearning
For the blest
In the land of no returning
God—and rest.

Just a little tired, trying
Yet again—
To smile and cease the crying
Through the pain.

Just a little tired, bending
’Neath the rod,
Though the rough, bleak way is wending
Up to God.

Just a little tired, facing
Blows that fall
Unexpected; tired placing Trust in all.

Just a little tired, falling—
Blund’ring here.
Ideals gone beyond recalling
Friends once dear.

Just a little tired, waiting
Through the night
For the new morn to be breaking
Clear and bright.

ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS and its friends are today fighting for life and breath. It has been a fight not simply against the enemy, but also an inner fight. This is as it must be, although most of us forget it. Most of us assume that the colored people know their rights and want them and are ready to fight for them. On the contrary, what slavery means is that its victims should be uncertain as to their place in the world; as to just what they really want; and as to their readiness to strive for the satisfaction of those wants.

This was the case in St. Louis. When the segregation proposal came up the masses of the colored people were indifferent. "We are already segregated," they said, "and what, pray, is the difference between customary segregation and legal segregation?" A large number of business men openly and publicly favored segregation when they scented a monopoly of colored business.

Only a few, then, were willing to start the active campaign. Most of the ministers came to the rescue and opened their churches; contributions were made to a campaign fund; literature was printed, lawyers hired and by and by headquarters were opened. An auxiliary committee of prominent white people was finally gotten together consisting of a former president of the City Club, a Unitarian pastor, a city judge, a secretary of the City League, several prominent lawyers and the secretary of the City Club. The election was set for February twenty-ninth. The colored people were finally aroused, registered in large numbers and voted against segregation almost to a man. Yet there were only 15,000 colored voters and considerably over 100,000 whites. Thus is the colored American in the hands of his white friends.

The Post Dispatch said in a closing editorial:

"Undoubtedly the conditions now existing, in cities particularly, create a problem difficult to deal with. Race prejudice is a fact, not a theory, and some concessions of strict principle have to be made to avoid trouble in emergencies. But serious as the consequences of the mixture of the races sometimes are, we do not believe it to be wise to violate the principles of liberty and justice in order to save a few individuals from loss and trouble. The present conditions entail loss to individuals, but the enforcement of segregation affects fundamental principles and thus may bear upon the welfare of all the people.

"Self-interest and prejudice may make segregation popular enough to carry, but we do not believe it will survive. We believe that in the long run temporary victory for segregation will end in permanent defeat. Certainly intelligent people who see the significance and the inevitable drift of such a measure should vote against it."

It is peculiarly fitting that Major Charles Young should be the second Negro American to receive the Spingarn medal.

Major Young was born in Kentucky and educated in Ohio, as we have already noted in the pages of THE CRISIS. He is forty-eight years of age, strongly built, and physically fit. He has just been assigned command of the 2nd Squadron of the 10th Cavalry stationed in Arizona. Every MAJOR CHARLES YOUNG, U. S. A.

Commanding 2d Squadron of the Tenth Cavalry. SECOND SPINGARN MEDALIST, 1916, for distinguished service in Liberia effort was made by the State Department to retain him in Liberia, where his work was invaluable, but the Department of War refused to make an exception in his case under the "Manchu" Law; and this was well. We hope yet to see Major Young at the head of the constabulary in Haiti.

But it is not because of this man's military career that he was chosen as the recipient of the Spingarn medal; nor was it solely because of his brilliant civic service in Haiti, in Liberia and in California; but rather because of a certain unusually fine quality of spirit.

Few people know what Major Young suffered at West Point. There was no refinement of cruelty and insult that was not heaped on this black boy by his white fellows in the first three years of his career to drive him out of the institution. The same kind of social difficulties and temptations faced him during his early career in the army. He has faced insult as he has faced his daily bread, and with the same imperturbable balance and determination.

He has not only faced death in war, but—what is much more difficult—he has faced it in peace. When he last returned to Africa after an unusually severe attack of Black Water Fever not one of his friends expected to see him alive again. It was a piece of bravery almost foolhardy; but he went and won and comes back strong and ready for further sacrifices.

The Liberian Government has expressed its "grateful appreciation of the most valuable services by Major Young," services "which will always stand as a monument to the Major's name in the military annals of the Republic."

The Adjutant-General of the United States says of the Liberian frontier: "It has been only with the most careful advisory supervision of Major Young that peace and order has been maintained."

Leonard Wood, Major-General of the United States Army, says that Major Young's "service in the army has been highly creditable to his race from every standpoint."

This is the man whom this Association is honoring itself by honoring.

PREPAREDNESS

In the presence of a world gone stark mad it seems of little use to talk of anything but war. Yet we wonder if a voice out of the South may not possibly call our war-mad President back to the kind of preparedness that some of us expected of him when he took the presidential chair.

The University Commission of Southern Race Problems sends a letter to college men about the horror of lynching. Surely President Wilson has read these paragraphs from a letter signed by white college professors in eleven Southern states:

"These are the terrible facts. Is there no remedy? Have we not sufficient legal intelligence and machinery to take care of every case of crime committed? Must we fall back on the methods of the jungle? Civilization rests on the obedience to law, which means the substitution of reason and deliberation for impulse, instinct and passion. It is easy and tempting to obey the latter, but to be governed by the former requires self-control, which comes from the interposition of thought between impulse and action. Herein lies the college man's opportunity to serve his fellows; to interpose deliberation between their impulses and action, and in that way to control both.

"Society has a right to expect college men to help in moulding opinion and shaping conduct in matters of this sort. It is their privilege and duty to co-operate with others in leading crusades against crime and mob rule and for law and civilization. The college man belongs in the front rank of those fighting for moral and social progress. For this reason the University Commission makes its first appeal to you and urges you strongly to co-operate with the press, the pulpit, the bar, officers of the law and all other agencies striving to eliminate this great evil, by speaking out boldly when speech is needed and letting your influence be felt against it in decided, unmistakable measure and manner."

Is there any "preparedness" for Christianity, for human culture, for peace or even for war, that is more pressing than the abolition of lynching in the United States? Alas! We have little hope of reaching the ears of the President. He is too busy yelling for the largest navy in the world.

STONE

We do not want to appear ungracious or hark back to forgotten things, but we cannot refrain from reminding certain gullible northerners of a prophet that appeared in this land something over ten years ago, yclept Alfred Holt Stone.

Mr. Stone was a Southern planter and a genial gentleman withal. He came to about the same conclusions as most white Southerners of conventional type do, when discussing the race problem; but he came to his conclusions so suavely and with such evident regard to utter necessity, that he quite captured the American Economic Association and other organizations of the kind. He told of plantation experiments with Italians; he shed tears over the positively unthinkable shiftlessness of black folk and he showed that economically the free Negro was going to the dogs because he simply would not work.

Then came the Census of 1910.

We have not heard of Mr. Alfred Holt Stone since. We have missed his learned articles and his genial presence. The reports of the American Historical Association have known him no more and we simply rise to ask if Mr. Stone has run out of facts, or if the business of prophecy is as poor today as it always used to be?

Meantime, the lazy Negro is plodding along and buying up the waste acres of the South.

BRANDEIS

HERE seems to be a chance to put a modern man on the Bench of the Supreme Court. We have had some fine Judges there. We have had a few men like the late Justice Harlan who stood straight as an arrow for human rights; but there can be no doubt that the deeper causes of human right and justice as developed in the modern world have received from the Supreme Court of the United States scant consideration. It looked as though for a while it was going to be utterly impossible for any Supreme Court decision to take account of the rights of the Negro as men and as workingmen; even the "Grandfather" decision was but an inadequate sop.

With the nomination of Mr. Brandeis we have a man who, as a Jew, knows what it is to be "despised and rejected of men"; and especially as a friend and advocate of laboring men he knows what the curse of poverty means and what its abolition involves.

THE SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT

It hardly seems possible that six years have rolled around since the "National Negro Committee" issued its first call to arms on the one hundredth anniversary of Lincoln's birth. Yet here we are at our sixth milestone with a record of accomplishment that is really astonishing. Never before in the history of the Negro in the United States has there been so effective an organization to fight for his rights; and to those pessimistic persons who believe that "nothing can be done," and that it is "no use to resist," we urgently recommend a reading of the terse sentences of this remarkable record of effort. It ought to hearten the slowest and most pessimistic.

FORTY-THREE THOUSAND

The Crisis this month publishes forty-three thousand copies. It is needless to say that this is the largest edition that we have issued and a good deal more than twice as large as the edition of any colored periodical devoted to colored people has ever been. It is fair to add, however, that this is not a normal edition. Our normal edition this month for our regular readers would be about thirty-seven thousand copies; the extra six thousand copies have been ordered on account of the Annual Report of the Association.

Nevertheless our continued and on the whole steady growth is evident, and we have to thank very sincerely our friends and supporters for this evidence of their appreciation and belief.

MOHR

The decision in that sordid murder trial in Providence, R. I., was perfectly American. Americans as a mass regard women as imbeciles and Negroes as criminals. When such persons come to trial, acquit the imbecile as irresponsible and lynch the "nigger!"

THE NEGRO PUBLIC SCHOOL

A phrase in the December Crisis has led to some inquiry as to what we mean by the "decline" of the Negro public school. Perhaps our meaning can best be illustrated by two or three references. The Christian Herald, for instance, says: "It was early recognized by those responsible for the education of the Negro that an education which would fit him to associate with the whites on equal terms was an education which would only disappoint him and which would leave him unfitted for anything. The main effort, therefore, was put upon the development of schools that should give to the Negro an education that would fit him for the occupations and manner of living which he could expect to follow. This meant vocational training."

To this we may add the information from the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier that in Rock Hill has been established a school "for Negro servants" and that the public schools of the town are being used to co-operate in this work. This we maintain points to the decline of Negro schools and it indicates a widespread movement. Whenever a public school system is used not for disseminating intelligence and giving the keys of knowledge, but rather for the establishment of caste, then the school is missing its purpose. It may well be that at a particular time and a particular place the caste feeling is so strong, the race hatred so potent, that the only school possible is a school which will keep the hated in their places; but manifestly under such circumstances there is not only room for but crying need for a propaganda to attack caste; to say that it is not right to build up a public school system in order to furnish menials for the rich. In the schools of no other group in the nation beside Negroes have persons dared to enunciate such an object for the public schools, no matter how much they may have thought it. If we would build real democracy in the United States we must make such daring impossible in the case of Negroes.
Section 1. Our Reasons for Being

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was first called into being on the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

It conceives its mission to be the completion of the work which the great emancipator began. It proposes to make a group of 10,000,000 Americans free from the lingering shackles of past slavery: physically free from peonage, mentally free from ignorance, politically free from disfranchisement and socially free from insult.

We are impelled to recognize the pressing necessity of such a movement when we consider these facts:

The lynching of 2,812 prisoners without trial in the last thirty years.

The thousands of unaccused black folk who have in these years been done to death.

The widespread use of crime and alleged crime as a source of public revenue.

The defenseless position of colored women continually threatened by laws to make their bodies indefensible and their children illegitimate.

The total disfranchisement of three-fourths of the black voters.

The new attack on property rights.

The widespread and growing discrimination in the simplest matters of public decency and accommodation.

All these things indicate not simply the suffering of a people, but greater than that, they show the impotence of American democracy.

And so the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People appeals to the nation to accept the clear and simple settlement of the Negro problem, which consists in treating colored men as you would like to be treated if you were colored.

The definite program and purpose of this organization has thus been stated:

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People seeks to uplift the colored men and women of this country by securing to them the full enjoyment of their rights as citizens, justice in all courts, and equality of opportunity everywhere. It favors, and aims to aid, every kind of education among them save that which teaches special privilege or prerogative, class or caste. It recognizes the national character of the Negro problem and no sectionalism. It believes in the upholding of the Constitution of the United States and its amendments, in the spirit of Abraham Lincoln. It upholds the doctrine of 'all men up and no man down.' It abhors Negro crime, but still more, the conditions which breed crime, and most of all the crimes committed by mobs in the mockery of the law, or by individuals in the name of the law.

"It believes that the scientific truths of the Negro problem must be available before the country can see its way wholly clear to right existing wrongs. It has no other belief than that the best way to uplift the colored man is the best way to aid the white man to peace and social content; it has no other desire than exact justice, and no other motive than humanity."

Section 2. Two Paths of Duty

Two lines of action are necessary for the emancipation of any individual or group or nation.

First and foremost, the unfreed must himself strive, equip himself and advance. Secondly, the path before him must be cleared of dangerous and unfair obstacles.

It will not do for the slave or the serf to sit supinely before his obstacles without making an effort to remove them. On the other hand, the modern world is too well aware of the tremendous power of organized society to believe that any individual or group can prevail against it, if the nation is deliberately and consciously determined to oppose advance.

In the United States, therefore, we must ask ourselves so far as the American Negro is concerned, where does the present danger lie? Does it lie in the Negro's refusal to exert himself, or does it lie in the obstacles which are deliberately or thoughtlessly put in his path?

Any fair-minded American can easily answer that the second case is the true one. It has been proven beyond peradventure that the effort of American Negroes in the last twenty-five years to better their condition in all possible ways has been, so far as the experience of men goes, unusual. Illiteracy has decreased, thrift and wealth have increased, health has improved, and there has been a notable advance in self-respect and self-expression.

Not for a moment would we deny or seem to deny the tremendous work of social uplift still to be accomplished from within by a poor and ignorant folk but a generation removed from slavery. The point is, however, that as human improvement goes the American Negro is moving forward with unusual speed and unaltering persistence.

The real danger in the Negro problem lies today not in the apathy and shiftlessness of the Negro but in the way in which his advance and attempts to advance have been met by the nation and the world. These efforts have been met by no decrease in racial prejudice but by an actual increase in its manifestations; by definite proposals for a caste system and by very little disposition to relax disabilities originally invoked against ignorance and inefficiency, but now held in spite of intelligence and ambition.

Section 3. Theory of Inaction

The attitude of most intelligent people toward this situation falls under one of two heads. Some deny that there is any material or noticeable obstruction to the advance of the colored race in America, which is not the natural difficulty encountered by all rising groups and races. It is difficult to become intelligent, it is difficult to save money, it is difficult to gain respect among one's fellows; but these are all human and natural difficulties. They must not be attributed to race, although racial differences may modify them. What is needed, therefore, is simply to insist upon striving on the part of colored people and to discourage mere complaint and agitation.

Other people admit and admit frankly that in addition to the natural difficulty that any ignorant class has in gaining a place in the world, the Negro encounters other difficulties on account of race and color; but they say that these racial difficulties are irremovable. Nothing can be done about them. There is no use trying to minimize their influence and at the same time there is no use trying to get rid of them.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People feels that both these classes are wrong.

It is therefore our business first, to show the people that race prejudice furnishes real obstructions to human uplift, and, secondly, that these obstructions are not necessary, that they are not inevitable, that they are not inherent in human nature, but that they can be successfully attacked by modern and philanthropic methods without endangering real human freedom or real advance of civilization; and that on the other hand, if they are not so met, they threaten the foundations of modern culture; that in fact, every single thing for which the intelligent Negro is today striving is in line with the best thought and best endeavor of men who look forward and upward.

Section 4. The Proof of the Pudding

ANY will say all this is very fine theory, but as a matter of fact, what are you going to do about it practically? If we knew anything we could do to shake the grip of race prejudice in the United States and in the world, and make it possible for colored Americans to be free and to be men, we would do it; but we have not seen any feasible program.

You have an organization for these ends. You have been at work some seven years. What have you done, and how have you done it, and what do you propose to do?

In making the sixth annual report of the N. A. A. C. P. we are at once keenly conscious of how little we have accomplished compared with our ideals and at the same time we realize that we have done much. We may divide our work into seven lines of endeavor:

1. Legislation: The endeavor to correct unfair laws and to prevent the enactment of further unfair laws.

2. Administration: To bring about a fairer administration of present laws.

3. Courts: To secure individual justice and a proper interpretation of law in the courts.

4. Slander: To answer if not to stop the systematic, public slander of a whole race of people.

5. The Truth: To make careful investigation of the facts of racial contact in the United States, and to publish the truth about the situation of the colored American, and his difficulties.

6. The Talented Tenth: To encourage and recognize distinguished work by men of Negro blood, to broaden opportunity in industrial and professional lines, and to encourage self-help and self-expression.

7. Organization: To endeavor to secure as large a number of persons as possible to associate themselves with us in order to help on this work.
Section 5. Legislation

Few people in the United States realize how persistent and continuous is the effort to curtail even the present rights of colored people by legislation. For instance, in the Sixty-third Congress there were no less than twenty bills introduced to restrict the rights of Negroes. These bills advocated:

"Jim Crow" cars in the District of Columbia.

The segregating of employees in the government service from their white fellows.

The forbidding of Negroes to hold commissions in the army or navy.

The making of marriages between white persons and persons of Negro descent illegal.

The exclusion of immigrants of Negro descent, etc.

It required active and sometimes desperate effort to defeat these bills. For the most part Congressmen were indifferent. They said, how does it matter if separate seats in street cars are provided for colored people? Or if colored government clerks work by themselves? They did not at first realize that race mixture is not prevented by making children illegitimate or by rendering the seduction of colored women easy and without its natural penalty.

Such apathy and lack of knowledge had to be systematically attacked. Every one of these bills was a blow not simply at colored people but at the fundamental principles of democracy, the rights of women and children, and decency.

This Association has found that careful scrutiny of bills proposed in Congress must be made if colored people are to be protected. Bills of general application like those for agricultural education, for rural credits, for vocational training, and the like, are continually drawn so that the colored citizens are either entirely shut out from their benefits or come in for a disproportionately small share.

For two years now we have employed two experienced newspaper men to report on all bills affecting colored people and to watch their progress.

Only by constant vigilance have we been enabled so far to circumvent hostile legislation in Congress.

During the whole six years of our existence, we have given a great deal of attention to this work, both in Congress and in the states. We made a hard fight to have Negro schools in the South included in the agricultural appropriations of the Smith-Lever Bill. We have opposed anti-intermarriage bills in California, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington, and Wisconsin. Only in one case, Nebraska, have we lost our fight.

Section 6. Segregation

One form of legislation which has taken a great deal of our time and attention during the past year, and during several previous years, is the matter of Segregation. This is an attempt, usually by city ordinance and sometimes by State law, to define the territory in which Negroes may live. It is, in other words, an attempt to establish a modern ghetto.
The movement began in Baltimore in 1912 and it has spread throughout the cities of the border states. During the past year we have been fighting particularly the ordinances in Baltimore and Louisville and the proposed ordinance in St. Louis.

The real crux of the matter lies in the fact that colored people, increasing in thrift and wealth, have been trying in the last decade to move out of the slums and unhealthy places of the cities into more desirable residential districts. They have been met by the plea that they are undesirable neighbors and that they depress real estate values. Hatred, riot, and even bloodshed have been the result of the controversy and finally the endeavor to prescribe the bounds of habitation by law. There is even a demand, centering in North Carolina, to carry this segregation into the matter of buying farm lands. No clearer cause for the defense of the most elementary rights of Negro American citizens can be presented.

Here is a real test, not only of our democracy but of our sincerity. Strong and greedy forces are behind the segregation movement. Shall not the forces of justice organize and fight in turn?

In Baltimore we have succeeded in defeating two segregation ordinances in the courts and we are carrying a third ordinance to the highest State tribunal. In Louisville our segregation case was lost in the highest court of the State and we are now carrying it to the Supreme Court of the United States. In St. Louis we are trying to defeat the segregationists both in court and in the proposed election.

Section 7. Administration

Perhaps even more important than the actual law is the way in which laws are administered so far as the colored people are concerned. Laws which upon their faces are quite fair are continually administered so as to discriminate most unfairly against colored citizens. This indeed is one of the chief reasons that this Association and its friends fight all sorts of discrimination, even when there is fairness on the face of the law.

The disfranchisement laws of the South are particularly cases in point. They do not in so many words disfranchise colored people but they are administered and can be administered so as to keep the great masses of colored people from having any voice in their own government.

This Association has started an effort looking toward the enforcement of the second section of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution which provides for the reduction of representation in Congress for States disfranchising their male citizens.

Especially in the matter of travel the Association is endeavoring to make the States and railroads at least live up to the letter of the laws requiring separate cars. An agent has been sent through the Southern States to gather information on present conditions; this matter is being published in The Crisis and will be laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission and other authorities.

In education colored children are discriminated against. During the last year in Indianapolis, colored children have been sent long distances to avoid enrolling them in a nearby public school.

In Carlisle, Pa., a colored boy who had been a second-year high school student at Steelton was refused admission to the white high school. The colored high school does not offer the work which the boy desires to take.

In Dayton, O., a separate colored school has been organized.

In Cincinnati, O., a second colored school is about to be established.

In several great universities, supported by public funds and public benefactions, well equipped colored students are refused admission, as, for instance, at Johns Hopkins University. Colored doctors are discriminated against in the clinical work required in their university courses. The well known case of Isabella Vandervall who led her class during her whole course at the Woman’s Hospital, New York City, illustrates this situation. She was appointed interne at the Syracuse Hospital for Women and Children and then the hospital peremptorily refused to fulfill its contract when they discovered that she was of Negro descent.

In the civil service of the United States Government discrimination has been kept up during the past year and unwarranted dismissals from office and refusals to promote have been traced to sheer color prejudice. This is particularly true in the Railway Mail Service and the Post Office Department in general.

The question of civil rights brings us repeatedly matters for investigation and protest. Few people realize how common it is throughout the great cities of the North for respectable colored people to be refused accommodation at hotels, theatres and restaurants.

In crime or alleged crime we have only to remember that during the last year eighty American Negroes have been lynched without trial by mobs and that during the last thirty years these mob murders have claimed 2,812 victims. How can the American people sit longer silent under such an indictment of their own civilization?

Section 8. Courts

For the most part, there are but two practical ways of meeting hostile legislation and unfair administration of the law, and these are through an appeal to the courts and through an appeal to public opinion. From the very first, it has been the policy of this Association to seek to build up a body of fair judicial decisions which should fix beyond question the status of the American citizen of Negro descent. We have had in the past some partial victories: We have prevented the unjust holding of suspects in New Jersey; we have secured decisions against residential segregation in Maryland; and we have won a half dozen minor civil rights cases.

A motion will be submitted some time in January to have the Louisville residential segregation case advanced in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Cases involving the Oklahoma “Jim Crow” car law have been nearly perfected and will be presented to the courts soon.

Fred Brown of South Carolina was wanted on a charge of murder. The Philadelphia Branch took the matter up. He was finally extradited and an effort is being made to defend him in South Carolina.

Our greatest triumph, however, came during the past year in the “Grandfather” clause decision of the United States Supreme Court. This case was brought up to the Supreme Court from Oklahoma by the United States Solicitor-General. We were allowed to participate in the case and our President, Mr. Moorfield Storey, filed a brief which was the only brief submitted by any private individual or organization. The court in its decision held that the “Grandfather” clause was a mere evasion intended to disfranchise colored people and it distinctly affirmed the right of the colored people to vote under the Fifteenth Amendment. This is perhaps the greatest victory for democracy across the color line which has been gained in the last generation.

For the better prosecution of work like the foregoing, a special Legal Bureau was established in 1912. For a year it was carried on under the volunteer direction of Mr. William M. Wherry, Jr.; then for next year, 1914, we had the services of a special attorney, Mr. Chapin Brinsmade. The stringency due to the war compelled us to give up Mr. Brinsmade’s services with great reluctance, and since then our legal work has been directed voluntarily by Mr. Charles H. Studin and Mr. Arthur B. Spingarn. In addition to these we have had the voluntary services of many distinguished lawyers.

Section 9. Slander

COLOR prejudice flourishes because it is so elusive and indefinite a thing. People grow to hate their neighbors not for carefully stated reasons or carefully investigated facts, but for the very lack of reasons and facts. This makes the power of suggestion and innuendo and slander all the more dangerous. A propaganda of this sort against colored people has long been carried on in the United States. It was used to defend slavery; it was used to disfranchise Negroes; and today there is evidence of new life and determination on the part of certain classes of Americans to make Negroes despised and hated. A peculiarly aggravating case of this during the last year has been the picture play called “The Birth of a Nation.” Here every resource of a magnificent new art has been employed with an undeniable attempt to picture Negroes in the worst possible light.

Of course, it is difficult under such circumstances to select a feasible method or campaign to counteract the undoubtedly vicious influences of this widely viewed picture. If Negroes and all their friends were free to answer in the same channels, by the same methods in which the attack is made, the path would be easy; but poverty, fashion and color prejudice preclude this. We have therefore sought vigorously through censorship to stop this slander of a whole race. We secured the disapproval of the National Board of Censorship but the Board was reorganized afterward against us. We secured a law strengthening the censorship in Massachusetts, but the censors decided against us. So far we have kept the film out of the State of Ohio, the State of Kansas and out of a number of cities. In a large number of other places we have had important modifications made in the film. In other ways, through newspapers and magazines and pamphlets we have sought to counteract the indefinite but widespread idea that the Negro race is necessarily vicious and incompetent.

Section 10. Publications and Research

GREAT weapon against such indefinite feeling with all its terrible consequences is an appeal to the facts.

With this in mind the Association established the “Department of Publicity and Research” at the very beginning and at the suggestion of the Director began to issue in November, 1910, its monthly organ, THE CRISIS. THE CRISIS is thus a little over five years old and on January 1, 1916, became self-supporting. Its gross annual income has increased from $6,500 the first year to $24,000 during the year 1915. Its total income, 1910-15, has been $84,069.55. It has printed altogether 1,490,300 copies of which 1,469,500 have been net paid circulation.

The Crisis circulates in every State in the Union, in Europe, Africa and the Islands of the South Seas. For April, 1915, its net paid circulation was as follows: New England, 1,804; Middle States, 6,903; East North Central, 7,750; West North Central, 2,925; South Atlantic, 6,606; East South Central, 1,885; West South Central, 4,056; Mountain States, 797; Pacific States, 933; Insular and Foreign, 882. Total, 33,921.

The Crisis has thus become a vehicle by which the facts concerning the Negro problem can be put before a considerable portion of the world.

Besides this the Department of Publications and Research has been a lecture bureau, has issued publications, has taken part in general movements and carried on several pieces of research work.

In all, the Director has during the last five years delivered 314 lectures in thirty-one States and three foreign countries before audiences which totaled 138,017 hearers.

Scientific research into the problems of racial contact and into the history and condition of the American Negro has from the first been a prime object of this Association. So far, however, no funds have been available.

The Director of this Department has, however, induced various established agencies to finance six larger pieces of research into various phases of the Negro problem. Mr. A. G. Dill has assisted in all of them:

1910—Research into the condition of Negro graduates of colleges throughout the United States; investigation financed by the Slater Fund and Atlanta University; conducted from this office over a period of six months.

1911—Analysis of Census Agricultural figures for the American Economic Association.

Research into Negro common school education, extending over twelve months; financed by the Slater Fund and Atlanta University.

1912—Research into the condition of Negro artisans and trade unions; financed as above, and extending over twelve months.

1913—Research in manners and morals among Negro Americans; financed as above, and extending over twelve months.

Memorandum for United States Commission on Industrial Education.

1915—Researches into African history, extending over years 1913, 1914, and part of 1915.

The Director has written six books and large pamphlets, thirty-three magazine articles and small pamphlets. The books are:

The Quest of the Silver Fleece—1911.

The College-Bred Negro-American—1911.

The Common School and the Negro-American—1912.

The Negro-American Artisan—1913.

Morals and Manners Among Negro-Americans—1915.
The Negro—1915 (Home University Library).

In addition to works written by the Director, THE CRISIS has published three volumes as follows:

Norris Wright Cuney—By M. C. Hare—230 pages—1913.
Hazel—By M. W. Ovington—162 pages—1913.
Prince Hall and His Followers—By George W. Crawford—95 pages—1914.

It has also published four pamphlets, four calendars, three sets of Christmas cards, besides pictures and leaflets. It has sold during the last five years $4,567.50 worth of books on the Negro problem.

The Director has also co-operated in the following general movements:

In 1911—The Races Congress. The Director was one of the two American secretaries for this Congress. He arranged the exhibit for American Negroes; spent three months in London, during which time he helped in the organization of the Congress and in the reception of the delegates; spoke three times before the Congress and in this and other ways helped to bring to the front the race problems of the United States.

In 1913—The Emancipation Exposition of the State of New York. The Director was appointed a member of the Commission to carry out this Exposition. Largely through his efforts the Exposition became a serious educational effort without political favor. In this respect it stands in marked contrast to most of the other State expositions.

The Exposition cost $37,000 and had an attendance of 30,000 people, and was honestly and efficiently conducted.

In 1914—Child Welfare Exhibits. The Director acted as Chairman of the Child Welfare Exhibits in two chief sections of Negro population—San Juan Hill and Harlem.

In 1915—The Washington Pageant. This Pageant was given before audiences aggregating 12,000 people.

Section 11. General Publicity

One of the most effective ways of bringing our work and our ideas to the attention of the public has been by mass meetings, conferences and speaking tours.

Our Association began with the New York conference of 1909 with such distinguished speakers as Dr. William Hayes Ward, Professor E. R. A. Seligman, Professor John Dewey, Judge Wendell Phillips Stafford, Dr. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, Professor John Spencer Bassett, and the Honorable Albert E. Pillsbury.

In 1910 a second conference was held and permanent organization effected. Since then similar conferences have been held in Boston, 1911; in Chicago in 1912; in Philadelphia in 1913, and in Baltimore in 1914. Beside these general conferences hundreds of other meetings have been held both by the National Association and by its Branches. In addition to the lectures referred to in the last section, speaking tours in the interest of the Association have been undertaken by Dr. M. C. B. Mason in 1912 and 1913, covering the Middle West and South; by Dr. J. E. Spingarn in 1912, 1913, 1914 and 1915, covering parts of the South and most of the larger cities of the Middle West; and by Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard in 1914, covering St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka, Indianapolis and Cleveland. Miss Mary Childs Nerney, the secretary, also made a trip through
and others have made shorter tours.

Large numbers of newspaper stories, leaflets and pamphlets have been distributed throughout the nation from headquarters reaching hundreds of thousands of copies since the existence of the Association.
Special investigations have been made for us by distinguished writers and social observers. Memorials have been laid before Legislatures and Congress, and widespread appeals made by letter.

Section 12. The Talented Tenth

S far as means allow we try to discover talent and encourage ability among young colored folk. Their achievements are carefully noted in THE CRISIS which issues an annual education number. In one case we discovered a young artist in color of remarkable ability and started him on his career by introducing him to instructors and holding an exhibition of his work on Fifth Avenue.

In 1913 Dr. J. E. Spingarn gave the Association a gold medal of the value of $100 to be awarded annually for the highest achievement made by an American Negro during the preceding year in any field of elevated or honorable human endeavor.

The first Spingarn Medal was presented at the annual meeting on February 12, 1915, at Ethical Culture Hall, New York City, by Governor Whitman of New York to Professor Ernest Everett Just, head of the Department of Physiology in Howard University Medical School. Prof.
Just was recommended by men of the highest standing in both races for his general research work in biology and for raising the standards of medical education for his own race. The committee making the award were: Bishop John Hurst, Chairman; ex-President William Howard Taft, Mr. John Hope, Dr. James H. Dillard, Mr. Oswald Garrison Villard.

The second Spingarn Medal was presented February 22, 1916, to Major Charles Young, U. S. A. The presentation was in Boston by Governor McCall of Massachusetts and was for distinguished service in developing the constabulary and the roads of Liberia. The same committee acted as in the previous year.

A scholarship of $200 was awarded the Pittsburgh Branch for its activity in raising funds for the Association in 1915. It is to go toward the college expenses of the most promising colored high school graduate chosen by the branch.

Section 13. Propaganda

F equal importance with our effort to carry out the objects of this Association with the means at hand is our effort to let the public know and understand our objects and gain their co-operation.
The matter, therefore, of increasing our membership is of prime importance. Most white friends of this cause already belong to so many organizations that they hesitate to take new responsibilities financially or otherwise.

The colored people, on the other hand, are comparatively new to the matter of organization, although organized life among them has vastly increased in efficiency and intricacy during the last ten years.
The growth of our membership has been as follows:

1912 329
1913 1,100
1914 3,000
1915 6,000
1916 9,500

Our method of propaganda is simple. First, through The Crisis and public meetings we directly invite interested persons to join the Association. The membership fees are graded as follows: Donors pay $100 to $500 per year; sustaining members, $25 per year; contributing members, $2 to $10 per year; associate members, $1 per year.

Approximately 75 per cent of our membership are one-dollar members; 10 per cent, two-dollar members; and 14 per cent pay from five dollars up.

Another and more effective way of gaining membership and spreading an idea of our work is through appeals in specific cases. For instance, hostile legislation is threatened in Congress: appeals are made directly to members of Congress in Washington and also to the constituents of such members as can be influenced. The local branches are written to and they in turn secure a large number of communications sent direct to Congressmen. If there are no local branches this agitation is an excellent occasion for starting a branch or a local.

Special literature is sent out and numbers of letters written. During the last year 15,868 individual letters were sent out from the executive offices and 19,435 circular letters. A total of 7,293 packages of literature containing 67,546 pieces were also distributed. Telegrams, letters to newspapers, personal appeals, special meetings and conferences, all these methods are used not only to forward our great objects but to gain sympathizers and members.

The center of the work of propaganda and of the main activities of the organization, except those carried on by the Department of Publications and Research, is the Executive Offices, of which the Secretary has charge.

Our first regular secretary, Miss Frances Blascoer, was succeeded by Miss Mary W. Ovington and Miss Mary Childs Nerney. The resignation of Miss Nerney in 1916 was received by the Board of Directors with deep regret. When Miss Nerney joined the Association we had four branches and three hundred members. At present we have sixty-seven branches and locals and nearly ten thousand members. No small part of this increase has been due to Miss Nerney's energy and devotion.

Section 14. Branches

We have at present fifty-four branches, nine locals and four college chapters—sixty-seven organizations in all, varying from twenty to eleven hundred members. The following are the twenty largest branches: District of Columbia, 1,164; Boston, 764; Pittsburgh, 636; Baltimore, 540; St. Louis, 350; Columbus, 300; Cleveland, 300; Chicago, 275; Des Moines, 222; Indianapolis, 200; Providence, 200; the two Kansas Cities, 175; Northern California, 150; Cincinnati, 140; Orange, 140; Toledo, 140; St. Paul, 135; Buffalo, 100; Philadelphia, 100; Springfield, O., 100. The nine locals are organizations affiliated with us which will eventually be transformed into branches as they show activity and efficiency.

It is difficult in small space to show how far reaching and efficient the work of these branches has been. A brief resume of their work follows:

1. The Albuquerque, N. Mex., Branch (Mr. T. C. Woodland, President; Mr. A. L. Mitchell, Secretary) has a membership of 51 and has been engaged in quieting race troubles at Gallup, N. Mex., in keeping out the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," and in eliminating race distinctions in the city directory.

2. The Alton, Ill., Branch (Dr. George L. Samuels, President; Mrs. Anna Gillis, Secretary), with forty members, has held a series of meetings and protested against "The Birth of a Nation" film.

3. The Baltimore, Md., Branch with 540 members (Mr. W. Ashbie Hawkins, President; Miss Ethel Lewis, Secretary) has held five public meetings and a concert. It has joined in protests against hostile legislation in Congress and has taken up the matter of discrimination at Johns Hopkins University and in the social service bureau.

The Baltimore Branch has been especially active in bringing the matter of segregation to the courts. One case was won last year, a second case was started but had to be dropped on account of technicalities, and a third case has been argued before the Court of Appeals and awaits decision.

4. The Boston, Mass., Branch (Mr. Joseph P. Loud, President; Mr. Butler R. Wilson, Secretary) has since November 9, 1914, added 324 new members, making a total of 764 of whom 615 have paid their membership dues. 150 parlor meetings have been held and two mass meetings.

The mass meeting at Tremont Temple, March 7, was a protest against segregation of colored people in the federal departments at Washington. Among the speakers were Congressman Madden and Dr. J. E. Spingarn.

On May 2 a meeting of protest against the photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," was held at Tremont Temple. Dr. Charles W. Eliot, Dr. Samuel McChord Crothers and other distinguished speakers took part. The campaign of which this meeting was a part resulted in an amended censor bill for the City of Boston, but the newly appointed censors refused to prohibit the film.

At the succeeding city election three city counsellors who opposed the film were re-elected by large majorities. The Mayor of Quincy who favored it was defeated. State Senator Doyle who was unusually offensive was also badly beaten at the primaries.

Lawrence, Springfield, West Springfield, Everett and Chelsea refused permits to the film while the State Chief of District Police refused a license for any Sunday exhibition in the State. The whole campaign united the colored people and brought to our assistance thousands of friends.

On June 14 a reception in honor of Miss Elizabeth C. Putnam was held with addresses by Mr. Garrison, Mrs. Edwin D. Mead, Dr. Ernest Gruening, Dr. Horace Bumstead and others.

The Secretary compiled and published a pamphlet entitled "Fighting a Vicious Film" which has been widely circulated.

With this also has been sent out a pamphlet containing addresses by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard and others, and a pamphlet by Richard P. Hallowell generously contributed by Mrs. May Hallowell Loud.

These pamphlets were sent to the various branches of the N. A. A. C. P., to two hundred and sixty-seven high schools in Massachusetts and to city officials and various state officers. Altogether 4,500 copies were distributed.

The Boston Branch has also helped to fight "The Birth of a Nation" in Providence and New Bedford.

The net income of the Boston Branch for four years has been as follows:

From November 11, 1914, to December 6, 1915, a total of $3,013.12, including balances from the previous year, has been available. Of this $842 has been sent to the central office, $997 used in the general work of the Boston Branch, and $545.94 in special educational work. Office expenses, rent, etc., have taken $175, leaving $298.18 on hand.

5. The Buffalo, N. Y., Branch with 100 members (Mr. John E. Brent, President; Miss Amelia G. Anderson, Secretary) has held six public meetings.

6. The Cairo, Ill., Branch (Mr. A. A. Martin, President; Miss Evelyn L. Lyons, Secretary) has 20 members.

7. The Carbondale, Ill., Branch (Rev. A. W. White, President; Mr. Frank B. Jackson, Secretary) has 31 members.

8. The Chicago, Ill., Branch with 275 members (Judge E. O. Brown, President; Mr. T. W. Allinson, Secretary) has taken cognizance of grievances in connection with Post Office employees and residential segregation at Oak Park.

9. The Cincinnatii, O., Branch (Mr. William Stevenson, President; Mrs. Andrew W. Lee, Secretary) has 140 members.

10. The Cleveland, O., Branch with 300 members (Rev. H. C. Bailey, President; Mr. S. P. Keeble, Secretary) has co-operated in protests against two picture films, secured the dismissal of a teacher in the public schools for insulting language to colored pupils, compelled a restaurant keeper to remove discriminatory signs, and held four large mass meetings and five parlor meetings. $165 was raised during the year.

11. The Columbus, O., Branch with 300 members (Hon. George D. Jones, President; Mrs. Minnie B. Mosby, Secretary) has secured the dismissal of certain policemen for acts of oppression against colored people and has been especially successful in keeping the film, "The Birth of a Nation," out of the State of Ohio. Several mass meetings have been held.

12. The Dayton, O., Branch with 75 members (Mr. James C. Farrow, President; Mrs. D. Richardson, Secretary) has held eleven meetings and has been trying to stop attempts at segregation in public schools. $96 has been raised during the year.

13. The Decatur, Ill., Branch (Mr. Houston Singleton, President; Miss Marie A. Gray, Secretary) has 50 members.
14. The Des Moines, la., Branch (Mr. S. Joe Brown, President; Mrs. Jessye E. McClain, Secretary) has 222 members. It has held three mass meetings, presented a play and given thirty-three Crisis subscriptions to prominent white men and women. Good publicity work has been done through the newspapers. An anti-intermarriage bill was defeated in the Legislature and an insulting film modified. An effort is being made to stop discrimination in local theatres. The Governor of the State and many high officials are members of this branch.

15. The Detroit, Mich., Branch (Mr. William Osby, President; Miss Hattie Dixon, Secretary) has 90 members. This branch made a determined and successful fight against an anti-intermarriage bill. Five hundred copies of the Detroit Journal which contained an able article were distributed and a public debate held. A Lincoln-Douglass celebration was held and five thousand copies of Judge Brown's speech distributed. A determined fight against discrimination in theatres and moving picture shows has been prosecuted. "The Birth of a Nation" film was modified and minors excluded.

16. The District of Columbia Branch (Hon. Archibald H. Grimké, President; W. B. Hartgrove, Secretary) occupies a unique position and is really a national vigilance committee to watch legislation in Congress and lead the fight for Negro manhood rights at the capital of the nation. The branch raised last year $1,746 of which $825 was sent to the National Office directly and $525 also in memberships.

This branch has made a special effort to get a large and representative membership. A systematic canvas of the whole city through churches and clubs, lodges and other social units has been made until the membership has been brought up to a total of 1,164.

Two public meetings have been held during the year, one to celebrate the birth of Wendell Phillips, and a number of branch and committee meetings. Among the specific things accomplished have been:

- The forcing of a department store to cease discrimination in the public dining room.
- The bringing of a white criminal to justice who seemed about to escape. The hastening of the slow completion of the new colored high school and the broadening of its plans.
- A forestalling of various movements towards segregation in the civil service.
- Efforts which led to the enforcement of the eligibility rules of the civil service.
- Work against residential segregation.

17. The East St. Louis, Ill., Branch (Dr. W. H. A. Barrett, President; Miss Mary V. Campbell, Secretary) has 18 members.

18. The El Paso, Tex., Branch (Mr. Jasper B. Williams, President; Mr. F. D. Clopton, Secretary) has 45 members and has been protesting against discrimination in certain stores and in street cars.

19. The Evansville, Ind., Branch (Rev. W. D. Shannon, President; Mrs. Logan H. Stewart, Secretary) has been opposing vicious film plays. Its membership is 25.

20. The Harrisburg, Pa., Branch (Dr. C. L. Carter, President; Dr. Stephen J. Lewis, Secretary) has 103 members. It has held regular quarterly meetings and one mass meeting with Miss Caroline M. Dexter as speaker. On November 17 a memorial to the late Booker T. Washington was held. A case of theatre discrimination has been carried by the Branch through the local courts, then to the State Superior Court, and finally to the Supreme Court. The case was won in the local court but lost in the two upper courts. Another case of discrimination in a high school is now in court. The "Birth of a Nation" picture film has been opposed quietly.

21. The Indianapolis, Ind., Branch (Mr. R. L. Brokenburr, President; Mrs. S. B. Henderson, Secretary) has 200 members.

22. The Jacksonville, Ill., Branch (Rev. E. L. Scruggs, President; Mrs. Laura Allen, Secretary) has 33 members.

23. The Kansas City, Kan., Branch (Prof. John A. Hodge, President; Mr. George K. Williams, Secretary) has 75 members.

24. The Kansas City, Mo., Branch with 110 members (Dr. Howard M. Smith, President; Mr. H. O. Cook, Secretary) has raised $259. It has been fighting an agitation to interfere with Negro home owners in the Linwood District. It succeeded in having some objectionable features cut from the "Birth of a Nation" film.

25. The Los Angeles, Cal., Branch (Dr. Charles Edward Locke, President; Mr. E. Burton Ceruti, Secretary) has 52 members.

26. The Louisville, Ky., Branch (Dr. A. C. McIntyre, President; Mrs. W. Nolan King, Secretary) has been seeking to punish the members of a lynching mob and especially pushing the segregation case which has now reached the Supreme Court of the United States. Their Committee of One Hundred has raised $596 for this latter case. The Branch has aided in the organization of a "Boosters' Club" to encourage colored people to patronize colored business enterprises.

27. The Minneapolis, Minn., Branch (Dr. S. N. Deinard, President; Mr. Gale P. Hilyer, Secretary) has 70 members.

28. The Muskogee, Okla., Branch (Mr. J. R. Stewart, President; Mr. W. E. Brown, Secretary) has 50 members.

29. The Newark, N. J., Branch (Mr. R. W. Stewart, President; Mr. V. B. Powell, Secretary) has had two mass meetings and has been opposing the "Birth of a Nation" film. They were partially successful but were overcome by court injunction. The branch has 100 members.

30. The New Orleans, La., Branch (Mr. H. C. Casa Calvo, President; Mr. Louis G. King, Secretary) was organized in July, 1915, and has 20 members. They are planning their first mass meeting.

31. The Northern California Branch (Mr. Walter A. Butler, President; Mrs. H. E. De Hart, Secretary) has entertained a number of the visitors from the East during the Exposition. They have 150 members.

32. The Branch of the Oranges, N. J. (Rev. R. G. Waters, President; Mrs. Lottie M. Cooper, Secretary) has held several mass meetings and protested against film plays. It has 135 members.

33. The Peoria, Ill., Branch (Mr. C. H. Ruff, President; Mrs. B. H. West, Secretary) has 25 members.

34. The Philadelphia, Pa., Branch (Mr. Ellwood Heacock, President; Mr. Isadore Martin, Secretary) has 100 members and has held several public meetings. It tried hard to get an equal rights bill through the Pennsylvania Legislature but the bill was defeated. The branch united with other organizations in trying to prevent "The Birth of a Nation" from being shown. Three white men were, through efforts of the branch, convicted for crime against a friendless colored girl. The attempt to get the Wanamaker store to refrain from discharging its colored help in the dining room was only partially successful.

35. The Pittsburgh, Pa., Branch (Mr. William M. Randolph, President; Miss Jennie M. Proctor, Secretary) has 636 members and gained the prize scholarship of $200 for the largest amount remitted to the National Office between September 1 and November 28. One of the largest department stores has been induced to stop discrimination in its dining room and the "Boys' Brigade" to adopt a fairer attitude toward colored boys. Protests have been sent to certain publishers against misrepresentation of the facts of history in their books. A number of public meetings have been held and publicity secured in the local papers.

36. The Portland, Ore., Branch (Mr. E. J. Minor, President; Mrs. E. D. Cannady, Secretary) has protested against the "Birth of a Nation" film and held one public meeting. The Branch has 49 members.

37. The Providence, R. I., Branch (Dr. J. J. Robinson, President; Miss Reberta J. Dunbar, Secretary) has held five public meetings and is endeavoring to secure a civil rights clause in the new State constitution now being drawn up. The Educational Committee has been distributing facts concerning the Ku Klux Klan and has been fighting "The Birth of a Nation." The membership of the branch is 232.

38. The Quincy, Ill., Branch (Mr. Wilson Cobb, President; Mrs. Florence E. Cook, Secretary) has 20 members and raised $28.80 during the year.

39. The St. Joseph, Mo., Branch (Rev. G. L. Prince, President; Mr. W. F. Neil, Secretary) has 55 members.

40. The St. Louis, Mo., Branch (Mr. Gustavus Tuckerman, President; Mrs. H. A. Smith, Secretary) has been chiefly occupied in fighting a proposed segregation ordinance. In the primary election it secured pledges from candidates by letter. Of the twenty-eight members of the Board of Aldermen, twenty-three thus declared themselves as not favoring residential segregation. The Branch has joined in protests against proposed legislation in Congress and several mass meetings have been held.

41. The St. Paul, Minn., Branch (Hon. J. A. Burnquist, President; Miss Charlotte Gillard, Secretary) has had two mass meetings and has protested against the "Birth of a Nation" film. The new Governor of the State is President of the Branch. Its membership is 135.

42. The Seattle, Wash., Branch (Mr. F. Fritz Keeble, President; Mrs. W. L. Presto, Secretary) has 34 members. It held a mass meeting with Senator Jones as speaker.

43. The Shreveport, La., Branch with 75 members (Mr. George Lewis, President; Mr. A. W. Hill, Secretary) has held two public meetings.

44. The Springfield, Ill., Branch (Major G. W. Ford, President; Mrs. Alice E. Williams, Secretary) has 33 members.

45. The Springfield, O., Branch (Dr. S. S. Jordan, President; Miss M. Sula Butler, Secretary) has 100 members. This branch has had objectionable features removed from a film play and held two mass meetings.

46. The Tacoma, Wash., Branch (Mr. S. A. Johnson, President; Mr. Allen Mack, Secretary) succeeded in stopping the "Birth of a Nation" film from being shown in the city. It has held two public meetings. The Branch has 45 members.
47. The Talladega, Ala., Branch has a membership of 15.
48. The Terre Haute, Ind., Branch (Mr. John E. Roundtree, President; Mr. David Jenkins, Secretary) has 45 members.
49. The Toledo, O., Branch (Mr. Albertus Brown, President; Mrs. Della H. Fields, Secretary) has held three mass meetings, one in honor of Hon. Charles A. Cottrill, for four years collector of the Port of Honolulu. One objectionable film play was suppressed. The membership of the Branch is 140.
50. The Topeka, Kan., Branch (Hon. Arthur Capper, President; Mrs. Julia B. Roundtree, Secretary) has succeeded in keeping "The Birth of a Nation" out of the State. The Governor of the State is President of this Branch. It has 53 members.
51. The Trenton, N. J., Branch (Rev. John A. White, President; Mr. T. Edward Kinney, Secretary) has 50 members.
52. The Twin City Branch of Champaign and Urbana, Ill. (Dr. H. E. Rowen, President; Mrs. I. B. Thompson, Secretary) has 27 members.
53. The Vincennes, Ind., Branch (Mr. Richard Nash, President; Mrs. M. J. Burress, Secretary) has 18 members.
54. The Wilmington, Del., Branch (Dr. George J. Sykes, President; Miss Alice G. Baldwin, Secretary) has 240 members. The Branch has held six mass meetings and has secured an ordinance in the Wilmington City Council to prohibit moving picture plays likely to stir up bad feeling between the races. A committee on housing conditions is at work.
55. The Baltimore County, Md., Local (Rev. William Brown, President; Miss Amanda Carroll, Secretary) has held four public meetings and six parlor meetings. It has distributed copies of THE CRISIS and has 31 members.
56. The Danville, Ill., Local (Mr. Eli Brown, President; Miss Florence C. Pamplin, Secretary) has 25 members.
57. The Denver, Colo., Local (Mr. George W. Gross, President; Mr. L. H. Lightner, Secretary) has 35 members.
58. The Galesburg, Ill., Local (Mr. Axel Gabrielson, President; Mrs. M. E. Watkins, Secretary) has 23 members.
59. The Gary, Ind., Local (Judge William M. Dunn, President; Mrs. Elizabeth Lyttle, Secretary) succeeded in excluding two objectionable film plays and prevented a colored boy from being unfairly discharged from his position. Race discrimination in public schools has been investigated. The membership of the Local is 30.
60. The Key West, Fla., Local (Mr. Charles F. Dupont, President; Mr. B. V. Gonzalez, Secretary) was organized in December, 1915, and has 15 members.
61. The Milwaukee, Wis., Local (Mr. John A. Hall, President; Miss Marie A. Burgette, Secretary) has 20 members.
62. The Mounds, Ill., Local (Mr. S. J. Carr, President; Professor O. L. Mitchell, Secretary) has 15 members.
63. The Walla Walla, Wash., Local (Mr. A. R. Baker, President; Mr. W. E. Cranshaw, Secretary) has a membership of 12.
64. The Cornell University, N. Y., Chapter has not yet held its annual election.
65. The Howard University, D. C., Chapter with 135 members (Mr. George E. Hall, President; Miss Eulalia Lane, Secretary) helped in securing participants for the pageant, "The Star of Ethiopia," and joined in a protest against "The Birth of a Nation." The Chapter held a number of meetings for discussion. Professor William Pickens and Mr. Charles Edward Russell have addressed the Chapter and a memorial meeting for the late Booker T. Washington has been held.

66. The Lincoln University, Pa., Chapter (Mr. Clarence W. Wood, President; Mr. G. C. Branch, Secretary) has 27 members.

67. The Virginia Union University, Va., Chapter (Mr. Joseph C. Carroll, President; Mr. George W. C. Brown, Secretary) entered protest against "The Birth of a Nation."

Section 13. The Vision

These facts in a general manner illustrate the kind of work which the Association is doing. We are trying to stop the increase of discrimination against colored people and as far as possible to do away with present discriminations. We hold hard and fast to the fundamental ideas of American democracy, viz., that all citizens must be equal before the law and that no special privileges shall be granted on account of race or color.

We have refused for a moment to contemplate a great democracy like this, with all its wealth and power and aspiration, turning back in the onward furrow when once it has set its hand to the plow.

Great as are the forces of reaction and race and class hatred at all times, and bitter as is the concerted and organized effort to increase color prejudice in this land and beat back the struggling sons of the freedmen, we are still confident that the inherent justice and sense of fair play in the American people both North and South is never going to permit the past crime of slavery to be increased by future caste regulations leading straight to oligarchy and spiritual death.

If it be not possible in the twentieth century of the Prince of Peace for a cultured people to extend justice and freedom to men whom they have cruelly wronged, but who, despite that, have done their hard work, fought their battles, saved their Union, upheld their democratic ideals, and showed themselves capable of modern culture—if it be not possible for America to yield these men what they have justly earned and deserve, then America herself is impossible and the dreams of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln are vain.

But it is not so.

We can be just, we can be law-abiding, we can be decent. All we need to know and realize is the truth about this failure to live up to our ideals.

The ideas of this Association are directly in line with the development of human civilization. If in this Republic we are going to set aside a part of our citizenship for special treatment, this means a step backward in the development of the world.

Moreover, our treatment of colored races is an example to the world for the future treatment of the great mass of colored folk in Africa, Asia and America. We have a chance to take high ground and to fight in a noble cause for humanity.
Section 14. Money Matters

Naturally, the great difficulty in carrying out any movement of this sort is the money difficulty.

This Association raised this year for its general expenses (outside of THE CRISIS) $13,094.36. It spent, including depreciation on furniture, $12,751.62. The revenue and expense accounts follow:

Certified by FRANCIS J. Batchelder, Certified Public Accountant, 220 Broadway, New York.

During the existence of the Association we have raised funds as follows (not counting the income of THE CRISIS):

- 1911 (From May 1 to December 31) $5,108.90
- 1912 11,815.15
- 1913 16,841.73
- 1914 14,030.70
- 1915 13,094.36

A total of $60,890.84

The Association should have in 1916 a total income of at least $15,000. Of this $7,000 should come from memberships and $8,000 from donations. Surely there can be no more effective way of helping the establishment of justice among men than by contributing to this budget.

CHEROKEE COUNTY, Georgia, suffered four incendiary fires during the twenty-four hours commencing at one-thirty on the morning of Sunday, December 5, 1915. At that hour two barns belonging to Gus Coggins, on the outskirts of Canton, the county seat, were set on fire. Mr. Coggins is one of the largest stock dealers in the South. In one barn 159 mules and two horses perished; in the other 16,000 bushels of corn, many tons of hay, seven carloads of cottonseed hulls, and a car and a half of cottonseed meal, together with farming implements of every description, were consumed. Out of the largest corn crop ever produced in north Georgia and the greatest number of stock gathered under one roof, nothing was saved but Coggins' celebrated racer, Sledmer.

At almost the same hour, a tenant house belonging to W. F. Bell, five miles east of Canton, which had been vacated by a Negro tenant named Parks Bates the Wednesday previous, was burned. Bates had for some reason departed too suddenly to take with him his household goods, which were burned with the building. In a split board placed in a wire fence nearby were three matches covered with a printed card bearing the inscription "move rapidly."

About one o'clock Monday morning the residence and barn of Otto Sherman, one-half mile east of Hickory Flat, were set on fire and totally consumed. Housed in the barn were eight fine mules. Mr. Sherman was in south Georgia at the time. When neighbors reached the fire and liberated the animals it was discovered that "plugs" had been substituted for the Sherman mules and the good stock run off.

Within a few minutes after the Sherman fire, the torch was applied to the residence and barn of Guy Stringer who lives only a short distance from Sherman. Besides his crops and household effects, seven head of live stock perished in the Stringer blaze. Two old plugs were rescued from the burning barn which did not belong to Stringer.

The Governor of Georgia immediately issued a proclamation offering $250 reward.

The insurance companies sent in detectives to work on the theory that the owners of the barns near Hickory Flat set them afire to get the insurance. The finding of six of the mules by the sheriff, abandoned in a pasture up in Pickens County, led some to believe that the fires were but a blind to cover plain horse stealing. The belief held by the average man one talks to, however, carries directly back to the anti-Negro "pogrom" of 1912 in Forsyth County.

Forsyth County is a sparsely settled Piedmont section wherein scattered hardwoods alternate with fields of cotton and corn. At the time of the Terror the population was 12,000, of whom 2,000 were colored. No railroad touches the county, nor the counties to the north. The region is in all respects backward, but decidedly the most backward thing in the county was the cracker who came into direct competition with the Negro. These two classes were alike either tenants of the larger landholders, day laborers, or one-mule farmers of their own land. White and colored were paid alike from $.75 to $1 a day, but no one would hire a cracker for farm labor or teaming when he could get a Negro. The colored people, too, had a monopoly of the household positions, and the independent Negro farmers had established credit with the bank and the stores to a much larger degree than the crackpers. This third class of small capitalists unanimously testifies that Forsyth County for the most part had an industrious, law-abiding, reliable lot of "niggers."

Three of them, however, in the neighborhood of Brown's bridge in eastern Forsyth, raped a white girl named Crow on a Sunday in October, 1912. They had her during one night and a part of the next day. At the end of the orgy they beat her on the head with a rock and left her for dead in the woods covered with boughs; although as a matter of fact she lived for two weeks after and died of pneumonia rather than of her wounds.

The sheriff from Cumming brought in one particularly "sorry nigger" that public opinion adjudged guilty, together with several suspects. Those of the Brown's bridge neighborhood who escaped arrest began to find themselves in limp heaps of two or three along the roadside.

Cumming, the county seat, with its population of 300, is built around the four sides of Court House Square. On one corner are the bank and the hotel; diagonally opposite is the lock-up, a red brick, one-story box about thirty feet square. On Wednesday (October 17) the mob went to the house of the sheriff and demanded the keys. He told them they would have to find them, and they proceeded to search his house, without success. So they procured a sledge, led aside the deputy who was on duty in front of the jail, and smashed in the locks and the Negro's skull with a hammer. With a pair of new harness reins taken from the buggy of the rural mail carrier they dragged the Negro around Court House Square by the heels, and hanged him to the cross-arm of the telegraph pole in front of the bank. There was just a quiver of life in the body when they strung him up at three o'clock in the afternoon.

A colored teamster driving his mules around the corner into the square, seeing that symbol dangling in front of the most respectable institution in the county, quit his wagon and ran.

"Let's run 'em all out," the wielder of the hammer suggested.

By the time they cut the body down at sunset the exodus from Forsyth County had commenced.

"Those of us who should have known better," a well-to-do Cumming merchant told me, standing there in that peaceful backwoods market place, "looked on and said the niggers deserved to be killed. We didn't mean it, and we didn't foresee the consequences. But that low-down gang took it as literally as they do the advice of Tom Watson."

They started in to rid Forsyth County of the last one of those two thousand colored people. A Negro would receive an anonymous letter giving him twenty-four, thirty-six hours, occasionally ten days to quit the county. That meant in some cases precipitate flight and the abandonment of everything owned in the world. In other cases it meant a sale at a few days' notice, at which a cow worth $25 would bring $8-9, and hogs worth $15-20 sold for $4-6. House and land brought nothing. If the Negro owned a mule he moved out his furniture, otherwise it was burned after his departure. Failure to vacate on the date set meant a stealthy visit in the night and either dynamite or the torch. The result was a state of terror which caused one Negro family to accept a twenty-four hour notice from two children aged five and six respectively who had learned the game from their elders. At the hotel in Cumming the owner kept one servant on until January after repeated notices, but let her go then for fear of inability longer to protect the servant's life. A genial, poverty-stricken white farmer named Bagwell described the final incident:

"Old man Roper yonder had a nigger he well nigh couldn't live without, knew every stone and stump on the farm. The boys warned him time and again to get shet of him, but Roper would keep him on. So one night they jest had to put a stick of dynamite under the nigger's house. Blew him clean through the roof. No, it didn't kill him, but it started him for Hall County right smart. . . I reckon they won't be back; you see the young fellers are growing up sort of with the idea that this is a white man's county."

The return to law and order in Forsyth County was celebrated by a triumph as impressive as the spectacle of the 17th October. Two Negroes who were in jail on that date as witnesses of the raping were taken to Atlanta by an escort of militia, returned to Cumming guarded by the troops, and were convicted on the testimony of the sister of one of the men who turned State's evidence and swore to holding a lantern while her brother ravished the Crow girl. (She was shot shortly after the trial.) A hundred and fifty militiamen were brought in for the hanging to see that the convicts arrived at the scaffold alive. In exchange for the lumber used to construct the blinds about the scaffold, a Cumming doctor offered the use of his pasture on the edge of the town for the execution. The night before, however, he was cheated of his reward by the gang which burned down the blinds. The following day, by actual count, over 10,000 citizens of the State parked their Fords and tethered their mules in the doctor's pasture to witness the formal dedication of Forsyth County, Ga., to the white race.

The county to the north of Forsyth, Dawson, produces nothing in the northern parts but timber and "blockade" whisky. In the southeastern corner, however, along the Etowah River from Paltom to the county line, are exceedingly rich alluvial flats. The corn of this region requires field labor, and in this rich section had settled what Negroes there were in Dawson County, about a hundred all told. According to "Colonel" A. W. Vandiviere, a lawyer at the county seat who was for years the county school commissioner, there was a maximum of forty children enrolled at the colored school under one of the graduates of Morehouse College. Eighteen of the men were registered voters, and they paid taxes on about $5,000 worth of property, most of the number being tenants. He says they were an unusually industrious, responsible group, none of whom had ever been accused of any such crime as that committed in Forsyth County.

Nevertheless, a gang of about a dozen crackers, with one John Jackson as the leading spirit (according to Col. Vandiviere) took advantage of the situation in the next county and began serving notice on the Negroes in Dawson. As they had nothing against them excepting their color and competition, however, they did give them generally two weeks in which to leave. As in Forsyth County, the night-riders were poverty-stricken, cowardly crackers who hoped by driving the Negroes out to be able to rent whatever land they desired, and to command their own price for labor. Not one in the gang, according to Robert A. Gober, paid over $2 a year taxes.

This Robert Gober is the strong man of Dawson County. He is postmaster at Dougherty, the center of the Etowah Valley district, owns the only store and gristmill in the region, is a large landholder, and had over $5,000 at stake in provisions advanced and money loaned to colored men on ungathered crops in the two counties when the trouble started. It should be stated equally distinctly that he is a big-boned, big-hearted mountaineer with a rudimentary sense of justice and five well educated sons to his credit. He is the one man in the two counties who had the courage to fight.

Mr. Gober told his colored tenants and laborers that he would protect them as long as they would stay. From Gainesville he sent one of the Hall County officials down to Atlanta to try and get help from the Federal Government.

"If we could have gotten a few detectives sent in here right at the start and obtained the evidence to convict one or two of them, the rest would have been frightened out," he believes.

Failing to get help from outside, he went to the life insurance agent, told the company exactly what he proposed to do, and persuaded them to take him as a special risk for five years. Night after night for months, while the colored women and children fled to the woods, afraid even to light a fire, he slept with loaded guns handy in the hope of detaining some tangible evidence when they came to blow up his tenants' houses or burn down his store.

A neighbor who followed his example in paying no heed to the warnings to "get shot of your niggers," heard a fusillade a hundred yards up the road one dark night, and then, as the Negroes fled, saw the flames licking up the sides of their quarters. The gang threw a couple of dogs and a shote into the flames to show their courage and disappeared into the dark. Mr. Gober was unable to keep any of his colored people after this incident except Homer Palmer.

"Homer was a nigger that was always ready to do anything I asked of him day or night," Mr. Gober says. "I would send him to the bank at Gainesville with $500 just as quick as I would my son—he'd a fit for that money. When my son was dying of pneumonia, Homer jumped on a mule in the worst blizzard we ever had in these parts and rode twenty-five miles for the doctor and twenty-five miles back. We had to pry his fingers open to get the reins out of his hands when he rode into that yard in the middle of the night—clothes frozen stiff. That nigger saved my son's life, and I'd be fighting for him yet if he'd a stayed on."

Homer did stay until the March after the Forsyth lynching, through five months of terror. After the burning at the Roland place he sent his family out. Each night Mr. Gober came over to Homer's little shack on the other side of the river and the two waited, armed with two rifles and four double-barreled shot-guns, for the night riders to blow them up. In March, however, the strain and the separation from his people, the knowledge that he was the only colored man in two counties drove Homer out, and Dawson County was as white as Forsyth.

What of the counties into which the Negroes were driven? Railroads cross both Cherokee County to the west and Gwinnett and Hall Counties to the east, giving a somewhat different complexion to society. Big capital is invested and dominates the local governments. At Ball Ground and Canton in Cherokee County are large marble finishing works, and the cotton mill at Canton employs between four and five hundred hands. Gainesville, the county seat of Hall County, is a town of 6,000. The modern industrial conditions in towns like these need an abundant supply of cheap labor.

When the crackers in Hall County started to pass the Forsyth fugitives along and make a sweep of their own county at the same time, the word went out, according to local gossip, to spend ten thousand dollars if necessary to crush the thing in its infancy. Hall County realized that it couldn't afford to let the poor whites meddle with its colored labor supply. Eleven arrests were made within twenty-four hours after the terrorization started, and it subsided in a few days.

In Cherokee County the crackers did succeed in driving out several of the “sorriest” Negro families, but public sentiment wouldn't stand for interference with the others.

The crackers who drove the Negroes out of Forsyth and Dawson Counties boasted that they would rent any land they wanted after that, and that they would get anything they asked for their labor. They had driven out 2,100 competitors out of a population of 13,000. So secure they felt in their monopoly of the labor market of the counties that white women in Cumming are reported to have demanded $2.50 a day for their services when asked to do the cooking and washing that had previously been done by colored women. Mrs. Gober complains that the only white woman who would come to work for her under any conditions insisted that wood and water be brought in for her, although the well is but five or six feet from the kitchen door. The men were equally prone to be dictatorial in laying down the conditions under which they would work. A dealer in fertilizer who had kept six teams with Negro drivers hauling all the time told me the crackers were so shiftless and so touchy that he couldn't work them.

The result with the last named gentleman was that he sold his mules and quit that part of his business rather than try to run it with white labor.

“What's more, I get up before daylight on Monday mornings and do our washing myself now. They drove out a cook who had raised seventeen children out of my kitchen,” he said with some remarks about the class of whites who had brought him to that pass which will not bear repeating. His is a fairly typical case. In every family in the two counties the wives are doing their own housework. The hotel in Cumming is the only place I heard of which boasts a white house servant, whereas formerly every considerable landholder and the merchant class in town all kept a colored menial. It would be difficult to strike a community in a more vital spot.

The small capitalist class hit below the belt by the driving out of their servants retaliated on the active instigators of the “pogrom” by refusing them all credit at their stores, by refusing to rent an acre of land to them, and by declining to hire them as day laborers. Mr. Gober said that this policy has literally starved out all but one or two of the dozen men who constituted themselves the vigilance committee in Dawson County; some have gone into neighboring counties, one or two have migrated to Texas. Col. Vandiviere said he had declined to recommend a man for a job just recently because it was rumored he had participated in the Negro baiting.

The bleaching of Forsyth and Dawson, so far as I could ascertain, has in no respect benefited the poor whites who drove the Negroes out.

If the crackers gained nothing but the distinction of living in a “white man’s country,” the counties have lost certain definite items of material prosperity. First and most important is their credit in the money market. A Dawson County farmer who recently refused $12,000 for his farm, went during the month of December to At-

If you are an active lodge member you spend at least twenty-four hours in each year attending your lodge. If you are in more than one—most men are—you spend the equivalent of three whole working days in the lodge room within a year. If you are an occasional attendant at one or more you put in at least twelve hours attending meetings. Making liberal allowances your year’s cost works out this way:

- Time spent attending meetings $2.00
- Car fare 1.20
- Monthly dues @ 50 cents 6.00
- Endowment dues (average) 3.00
- Annual taxes 0.50
- Special death assessments (average) 1.00

Total $13.70

The average secret order policy is rarely more than $300.00 as a maximum. It averages $250.00 and starts with $50.00 payable the first year, maturing only after five years. During this time, you are paying for full protection and getting only one-fifth the first year, two-fifths the second, and so on. In five years, you have paid $68.50. If you get behind for three months, you are dropped; and to be reinstated you must start in as a new member.

Contrast this with old-line legal reserve life insurance:

Your policy calls for, say, $500.00 on the Whole Life Plan. It is in full force the minute it is placed in your hands. If you die next day, the whole amount of the policy is paid to your beneficiary. You get from the beginning all the protection you pay for.

During five years, you pay:
- At age 25 $108.50 a year
- At age 30 $122.50 a year
- At age 35 $140.05 a year

At the last age you pay in five years a total of $70.25. If at the end of that time you desire to quit, we will, as a matter of contract, give you $32.00 cash for the surrender of the policy, and your five years' insurance has cost only $38.25. Or, we will give you a paid-up policy for $32.00, on which you never have to pay another cent. Or, we will extend your $500.00 policy for five years and ten months without any charge to you. These values increase every year and they are all in the policy.

There are no meetings to attend; no long journey to and from lodges; no sitting in cold halls in winter or poorly ventilated sweat boxes in summer. If you change your residence, it makes no difference; for there is no starting over again, as in the lodge, when you move from one state to another.

From the standpoint of low cost, convenience, increased value, incomparable safety, a FIVE HUNDRED DOLLAR WHOLE LIFE POLICY in STANDARD LIFE beats all the secret order endowments you can find. TAKE YOUR OWN LODGE AND YOUR OWN POLICY AND FIGURE IT OUT FOR YOURSELF!

lanta to take out a $2,000 mortgage on his place. Atlanta bankers told him his property was all right except its location—they didn't care to do business in such lawless parts. The cashier of the bank at Cumming corroborated that story and stated frankly that Forsyth County has no credit with the outside world. Secondly, the farmers with Negro tenants lost a very large part of the cotton crop the year of the exodus because they could get no one to pick it. Mr. Gober told me he lost over $5,000 in money and supplies advanced to Negroes against the crops they were prevented from gathering, and other landholders of course lost accordingly. Thirdly, the district is still losing to the extent that land owned by Negroes who have been unable to sell at any figure lies idle, growing up to weeds as their empty cabins decay. This last is of course an insignificant item in the counties' resources. And finally, they feel the judgment of the commercial world in the increased insurance rates which are demanded. In Cherokee County, since the fires of last month, the editor of the Cherokee Advance stated, the insurance companies have refused to issue policies on any terms.

It is now easy to understand the explanation for the Cherokee County fires of December 5 which is currently accepted in both Forsyth and Cherokee Counties by the average man one talks with. Gus Coggins is one of the largest employers of Negro labor in the county, having taken on several of the Forsyth fugitives. Sherman and Stringer both employed Forsyth Negroes, and both have stated that they received warning to get rid of their colored help. Parks Bates and one other Negro who thought it time to move again were fugitives from across the Forsyth line. It looks decidedly as though the crackers thought it a good time to kill two birds with one stone by driving out the Negroes with fire while running off some valuable mules under cover of the confusion.

The proceedings of the Circuit Court which opens in Canton on February 1, may show the fires to have had no connection with Negro baiting but the general opinion is that they marked the beginning of an effort to drive the Negroes from Cherokee which died after twenty-four hours when the gang saw that the Governor and the sheriff intended to get them if possible.

GOOD WORDS FOR THE CRISIS

I wish to state that I am inexpressibly well pleased with your grand magazine and I use every opportunity to tell others so. After reading your editorial of November I am all the more encouraged in my regard for its triumph and the general success of the association of which it is such a representative organ.

Yours truly,

Tom Clement, Los Angeles, Cal.

You will find enclosed my personal check for the renewal of A. B. McKnight's subscription. He has been in Laguna, P. I., for the past eight months but is now returning to the United States. As I look for the return of my boy, so I look for the Crisis. That is my criticism.

Yours,

H. D. McKnight, Sumter, S. C.

IMPORTANT BOOKS BY NEGROES

Prof. Wm. E. Chancellor, Ph.D., the eminent historian and educator, writes: "The Neale Publishing Company to-day represents high-water mark in America for its historical works. Upon its list are to be found the best books upon each and every side of the common issues of our public life. Such is the authority of the list considered as an entirety as to lend luster to each separate title, creating a presumption in its favor." Nearly a quarter of a century has passed of its publications are in active circulation; works that relate to the Negro and his problems. They comprise a library in themselves. Send for free catalog.

The New Negro; His Political, Civil, and Mental Status. By William Pickens, Lit.D., Dean of Morgan College. Dr. Pickens was graduated from Yale in 1904, with the Phi Beta Kappa Key, and in the highest grade of the class. He also won at Yale the Henry James Ten Eyck Oration on Haiti. Among the foremost educators and writers and orators of the Negro race, Dr. Pickens's volume of essays here announced comprises an important addition to Negro literature, and a volume otherwise highly important to the Negro race. $1.60 by mail.

Negro Culture in West Africa. By George W. Ellis, K. C, F. R. G. S.; recently, and for eight years, Secretary of the United States Legation in Liberia; author of "Liberia in the Political Psychology of West Africa," "Islam as a Factor in West African Culture," "Dynamic Factors in the Liberian Situation," and other works. Profusely illustrated. $2.15 by mail.

Redder Blood. By William M. Ashby. The Negro in America has produced but little imaginative work other than poetry. He has told his story by other mediums, which seemed to him, perhaps, better than prose fiction. Mr. Ashby, a Yale man, is a Negro, and "Redder Blood" is a novel of his race, and of the present time. There are situations in it that reach the acme of legitimate dramatic intensity. $1.00 by mail.

Haiti: Her History and Her Detractors. By J. N. Leger. Published in two editions: one in English and the other in French. M. Leger is a man of letters and the author of several well-known works. He is a man of public affairs, a statesman, who formerly served as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from Haiti to the United States. Illustrated. $3.20 by mail is the price of each edition.

The Key; or, A Tangible Solution of the Negro Problem. By James Samuel Stemons, Field Secretary of The Joint Organization of the Association for Equalizing Industrial Opportunities and the League of Civic and Political Reform. Mr. Stemons contends that the Negro should be accorded industrial opportunity rather than industrial education. He presents his arguments and conclusions in vigorous English of extraordinary purity, and the book may easily be classed with the foremost literature of the Negro race. $1.00 by mail.

Race Adjustment: Essays on the Negro in America. By Kelly Miller, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and Professor of Mathematics, Howard University. Third edition. $2.15 by mail.

Out of the House of Bondage. By Kelly Miller, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Howard University. $1.65 by mail.

The Facts of Reconstruction. By Major John R. Lynch, U. S. A. Fourth thousand. Major Lynch was made temporary chairman of the Republican National Convention of 1884, and presided over that convention during the whole of the first day and a part of the second. He was nominated as temporary chairman by Henry Cabot Lodge, and his nomination was seconded by Theodore Roosevelt and George William Curtis. After his term in Congress, Lynch served as Fourth Auditor of the Treasury. In this his first book, written with extraordinary force and with unusual clarity, he boldly justifies Reconstruction. $1.65 by mail.

The Black Man's Burden. By William H. Holtzclaw, Principal of the Utica Normal and Industrial Institute for the Training of Colored Young Men and Young Women, Utica, Miss. With an introduction by Booker T. Washington. Illustrated. Third thousand. $1.60 by mail.

A New Book by Dr. Du Bois

THE NEGRO

By W. E. BURGHARDT DU BOIS, author of “Souls of Black Folk,” “Quest of the Silver Fleece,” “Select Bibliography of the Negro American,” etc.

This is the authentic romance of the black man. It is a history of him at once scholarly, earnest and eloquent. He is considered from the earliest times, and the thread of his fascinating story is followed in Africa, America, and wherever else it has appeared. To look at the Negro against the background of his history is to see him in a light fairer than that in which most Americans have seen him.
