Dear Mr. Levkoff:

Thank you for your letter and the clippings of August 25. While I do not completely understand the discrepancies between the article in the Miami Herald and the Daily Gleaner, the right to disagree with the administration's policies is one which the President often has cited as a basic right in a free and democratic society.

There also is the possibility that the newspaper did not report the activities at the luncheon correctly. I suggest that you may be able to clear up the matter by writing to the President of the U. S. Businessmen's Club.

Sincerely,

Bill Moyers
Special Assistant to the President
