

formed as to why it is right, we should then be able to convince others. And they, in turn, would become able to convince still others in an ever-widening circle. The question is: Do we have the intelligence to master the understanding required of teachers, as well as the patience necessary to allow an educational epidemic to develop? If we do have enough intelligence and patience, the free market — a vital bastion defending our right to life — can in that way be gained.

"If, to please the people, we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterwards defend our work? Let us raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair. The event is in the hand of God."
