

FOR THOSE WHO WANT A BIG BANG!

EVOLUTION EXPLAINS..

THE JAVA MAN...

The Java Man lived of course in Java five hundred thousand or one million to two million years ago and was lower than we are. Psychologists claim after study his emotional decompensation caused his desires to increase with acquisitions.

The Java Man's scientifically technical name is KHO-PHEE. KUPPA for short. Why? No one is sure.

The Java Man was lower Pleistocene and lower Quaternary; not having emergent vitalism. Lab reports say he was knock-knee, possessing a large umbilicus; which pointed to the fact he was not the first man on the evolutionary ladder.

The Java Man's skeletal remains consisted of a calvarium, three teeth, and a femur, from which the Lemur descends. Professor Dubois's lab work completed the skeleton and made him a face; which proves he was dolichocephalic, or long-headed, instead of brachycephalic, or square-headed; that he was 5 feet 6½ inches high and walked with a stoop.

The Java Man had immense supraorbital ridges of solid bone and was concious in spots, resulting from a semantogenic disorder. Does this remind you of anyone? His Broca's area was low. The medulla oblongata was larger than ours, capable of containing a soft convoluted mass. The isomorphism of this material is under investigation. Monadism looks promising.

Dr. Dubois claims that KHO-PHEE'S times were economically hard and that his feet hurt from living completely barefoot. Also, he had no political preference for politics as we know it had not yet risen to its present pristine glory in modern society.

The spiritual life of The Java Man was low because he was only a beginner. The good Scientist has pointed out he was sub-human in the modern sense. Murder, pillage, burning, lying, looting wife swapping etc. were a common way of life. Dental investigators claim he was wholly carnivorous. Much different from our time.

The Java Man was just a child at heart we are told. He was perfectly satisfied with his bannana-belt environment. His polygamy, polygni, polyandry, endogamy, exogamy, and his totemism. How The Java Man became extinct is beyond explanation at this present moment in time.

Truck Stop waitresses have reported sighting apparent throw-backs of Java Man. Somatogenic beings who appear demanding KHO-PHEE p.d.q., a.s.a.p. now! Accompanied by grunts and growls that are unintelligible.

The Java Man has been called THE MISSING LINK by those who should know.
