

WOMEN'S STUDIES

Feminism and Marxism by Dorothy Ballan

The women's liberation movement has had a great impact on society and has raised many questions about the roots of women's oppression. This booklet re-examines the validity of the view that non-sexist communal societies historically preceded the patriarchy and shows how this relates to the divergent trends currently present in the women's movement. A concrete perspective for the strengthening of the movement and a strategy for full liberation as an integral part of the struggle for socialism is presented by a lifelong participant in the U.S. labor movement.

SEXUAL OPPRESSION

The Gay Question: A Marxist Appraisal by Bob McCubbin

Widely acclaimed and read internationally, this pamphlet explains lesbian and gay oppression from a historical perspective. McCubbin's pamphlet is a landmark contribution to Marxist literature. It documents the prevalence and acceptance of homosexuality in early societies and traces the roots of gay oppression to the overthrow of communal relations and the rise of class society.
