ALUMNI MONTHLY

JUNE, 1942

VOL. XLIII, No. 1

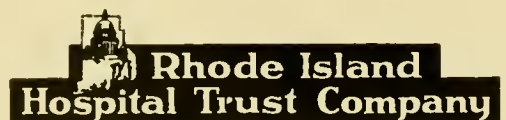

THE LOG of Christopher Columbus carries a homely proverb which we as investors may well follow today. "Persistence" must be applied to our study, determination to master our "destiny" must govern our actions. We cannot allow our reasoning and judgment to be affected unwisely by the threatening forces and trends that appear. "The rising tide of inflation" — "The doom of the capitalistic structure" — these, and other seeming threats in the popular mind, must only serve to strengthen our determination to preserve what we have, regardless of the problems involved.

For over seventy years the Hospital Trust Company has maintained a consistent policy for investments entrusted to its care. The major objective of this policy has always been to conserve principal and harmonize income with purchasing power. Without any attempt to "trade" in and out of financial markets, gradual appreciation of capital has our constant attention.

With a firm faith and conviction that we can assist our customers in the management of their investments, we offer you the facilities of a Personal Agency Account. A new booklet describes the details of this service and we suggest that you send for your copy.

► ► Commencement on a War Basis

► ► THE war made a difference, but a Commencement habit 174 years old, as at Brown University, is persistent. And there were some 400 degrees to be awarded at the end of an accelerated course of study designed to equip men as warriors or civilians to serve "with usefulness and distinction." From the College 212 were entitled to Bachelor of Arts degrees, 39 Bachelor of Science in Engineering, 12 Bachelor of Science in Chemistry. As they marched down College Hill, they felt they had earned their Commencement as thoroughly as any class before them.

And so they had had their Class Day rites under the elms, had held a small dance Class Night, heard an inspiring Baccalaureate, and now were on their way to the Meeting House for their diplomas. The bands were playing the beloved pomps of the Commencement march, the sheriff put on his show of being ready to quell disturbance (never did he seem more of an anachronism, relic of a simple day when a single man in top hat, full dress and sash could keep order in a world with a single frown and sword), and the alumni were there to form a guard of honor and welcome them to their company. They were pretty serious about it all.

It made a brave show of being a usual Commencement. It had its honorary degrees for three alumni and three other notables. It had its reunions for sentimentalists. It had robust words from the President and others.

► BUT it couldn't be a normal Commencement, of course. And no one expected it to be. In the first place, it was May 18 instead of mid-June and, under the war-spurred program, no summer's holiday lay ahead. The University will resume sessions on June 22 for the round-the-year schedule that will permit its students to complete their eight semesters in less than three years. The cap and gown were there, of course, but so too were the uniforms of the military services. Seniors were already officers in the Navy's R. O. T. C., the Air Corps, the land forces. The Selective Service, which had permitted many to complete their academic preparation, awaited others. Eight degrees were granted in absentia to service men. The colors in the procession were borne by a guard from Brown's own Naval R. O. T. C. unit.

There was no student monopoly on military uniforms, for some alumni wore them, too. But most alumni in uniform were far from the campus—in Australia, in Iceland, in Egypt, in the Caribbean, in England, on the sea, in the air, and at posts and stations throughout the country. The procession of alumni was short this year by usual standards. Although there were hundreds in line as they passed and repassed University Hall, the younger classes were thin in numbers. And those who judge the length of the line by their station before the church or on Waterman St. knew how many could not "come back" in this war year.

The number of reunions and the attendance at them nevertheless surprised most observers, particularly when war responsibilities and the brand new gasoline restrictions conspired to keep so many Brunonians away. Instead of elaborate three-day gatherings, however, most classes limited themselves to a single modest meal, and a number of younger classes undertook no program. But these cherished associations seemed important and richer. Many joined in approving 1917's plan for a Victory Reunion at the first opportunity in the inscrutable future.

Reminders of the past were in evidence — reminders like the historic Manning Chair, in which President Wriston sat as he conferred the degrees; reminders like Commencement hymns that do not vary. But the concern was the war and its peace, causes to which the University had directed all appropriate talents long since.

As the Providence Journal remarked, Commencement orations by Seniors are usually "a dime a dozen". But Brown's spokesmen for the graduates made an unusually strong impression as they addressed the gathering in the Meeting House. (Few alumni heard them, for with the graduate students also receiving advanced degrees on the same occasion space was limited. Even alumni of 1893, seniors of many in the procession, could not gain admission.) Later in the day at the Alumni Meeting in Sayles Hall, the messages were retold and praised, and Norman Philip Ross's address on "Another Lost Generation," was reprinted in more than one newspaper of national standing.

► THE Alumni Meeting in Sayles Hall was one of the best in many years. Major interest centered in the talk of Quentin J. Reynolds '24, Collier's war correspondent returned from two years in France, England, Russia and Africa, who told how he had discovered the United States by going abroad. It was a moving, emotional recital of dramatic incidents that proved revealing.

"I came back three months ago to see this country which I had discovered in Europe," he said. "I came back thinking that we were at war with Japan and Germany." But after reading speeches by obstructionist Congressmen, after hearing insidious whispers of hatred by men trying to disrupt national unity, he began to wonder if he hadn't been wrong. "I began to wonder," he said, "if after all we were not at war with Britain and the President of the United States." He attacked those who sulked behind the protecting armor of the Bill of Rights.

But on traveling throughout the country Reynolds found the people of our country were mad, "and an angry democracy has never been beaten. This is a people's war, and the people will either win or lose it. It's too important a war to be fought by generals. . . . We should thank the Japs for reminding us, too, that it is our war. We have a long way to go because we are amateurs in this business of murder. But out of the burning fires of war will emerge a new world in which free men can live without fear. It is for this we fight."

Stalin, he said, was the greatest realist of our times, and we should take council with him in working out that peace.

► PRESIDENT WRISTON told the alumni in a trenchant statement his conception of the postulates of peace after the war: world solidarity and the supremacy of spiritual realities. "As the nationhood of the United States could not endure half slave and half free," he said, "so the peace of the world cannot survive a division in the ideology between the state as master and the state as servant . . . between the individual as slave, and man as a son of God."

Anglo-American domination might start policing, he said, but it would deteriorate into tyranny. Policing must be recognized as "a transient and essentially undesirable device, for the world is not waiting to exchange masters, but to achieve freedom." "Liberty is more precious than order, which must ever be the servant, never the master of freedom. The central political problem of the world is continuously to expand the areas of self-government, as the central economic problem is to expand wealth. . . . But the world at war reveals that the standard of living is basically spiritual, not economic. War offers its stark and final proof that man does not live by bread alone. The world at peace must show that these lessons have been learned. The structure of the post-war world cannot be founded on power. It must be founded upon moral intangibles which control power."

► BEFORE announcing gifts to the University in excess of three-quarters of a million dollars, Vice-President James P. Adams spoke his appreciation and the meaning of the gifts in terms of faith.

"It is faith in the readiness of the University to face its problems and solve them, so far as possible, by its own foresight and planning; faith in the essential contribution which the University is making and can make to the war effort which so deeply concerns our people; and faith in the significant role which education—and, for our part, this University—must play in the larger future in a new world which we must help to build and sustain. We shall try to match this faith with wisdom and courage.

"It so happens that I have seen 24 classes at Brown—three of them still in their undergraduate years. These classes represent almost the entire group of Brown men who—because of their present age—will be called into the service of their country. And so I speak not only with official sanction but in a more intimate way, perhaps, for all those who were their teachers and friends here on this campus. I feel that nothing which I could say on this occasion can have more meaning than what I shall now say in conclusion to those who are or will be serving in the armed forces of the Nation. And even though the message which

THE VAN WICKLE GATES swing wide at Commencement as each new class of Brown men descends to the Meeting House, and the world beyond.

I send will not reach many of them today and will not reach some of them at all, I speak it here now in your names and in the names of all who knew them at Brown:

"We salute you with reverence and with pride wherever you may be about the circle of the globe. We cherish for you an abiding faith in the justice of our country's cause. We pray that you may be sustained by an abundant courage as you face the grim perils of your duty. We pledge to you that we who are called upon to play the lesser part will try to make ourselves worthy of you and worthy of the things for which you now serve your country.

"This we pledge to you. Less than this, we know, is not enough."

► A MODEL presiding officer, Prof. Zechariah Chafee, Jr. '07 had wit and grace in presenting the speakers, added his own substantial thoughts on the world disease of international discord, on the protection of our freedoms. He and Governor J. Howard McGrath particularly had a merry exchange of pleasantries. In more serious mood, the Governor brought the greetings of the State and told how he had been impressed with "how little fear of the future was reflected in the faces of the young men who received degrees."

The meeting was opened by the President of the Associated Alumni, William P. Burnham '07 of Boston, a member of the 35-year class which had the amazing number of 55 back for reunion. His classmates greeted him with an affectionate cheer and enlivened proceedings with similar salutes for each succeeding speaker. In addition to announcing the results of alumni elections, Mr. Burnham read a telegram of greeting from the Director of Alumni Relations, James L. Whitcomb, an officer in the Signal Corps. Earl M. Pearce found hearty response as he led anthems and hymns designed for the occasion.

Major disappointment of the day centered in the cancellation of the Varsity baseball game with Dartmouth, which was scheduled to revive the tradition of Commencement baseball. Alumni had seen a thriller on Saturday, however, when State College was beaten by a ninth inning rally, 3-2.

An innovation on the Commencement program was a dinner meeting of the Brown Engineering Association, held at the University Club. Among those who spoke were: Joseph H. Stannard, chairman; Prof. Leighton T. Bohl, representing the Division of Engineering; Robert W. Burgess of New York, President of the Association; E. E. Jackson of Brooklyn, Secretary; Coach J. Neil Stahley and W. Chesley Worthington, Acting Director of Alumni Relations. Prof. Arthur E. Watson was an honored guest at the head table.

The Appleton Club, reflecting the interests of alumni chemists and members of the Chemistry Faculty, held its annual dinner meeting at the Agawam Club early in the Commencement season. Prof. Robert F. Chambers was chairman.

Honorary Degree Citations

▶ ▶ Six honorary degrees, three of them to alumni of the University, were awarded at Brown's Commencement. All of the doctorate rank, they went to: Rabbi Louis I. Newman '13 of New York, one of the country's outstanding Jewish leaders, a liberal, author and educator; Prof. Arthur F. Buddington '12, chairman of the Department of Geology at Princeton; Quentin J. Reynolds '24, reporter and commentator on the war, an editor of Collier's magazine, and author of several books, products of his journalism; Simeon Strunsky, one-time editor-in-chief of the New York Evening Post, now a leading editorial writer on the New York Times; Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs review, author and leader in international relations; Vice Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, retired after a distinguished career in the Navy.

The citations, read in the First Baptist Meeting House by President Wriston, were finely wrought in the best Brown tradition:

LOUIS ISRAEL NEWMAN

Doctor of Divinity

The world, richly endowed with material things, squanders even those in war for want of spiritual resources equal to its responsibilities. Because in a time of moral confusion you have been steadfast in faith, because you have uplifted the hearts of men and fortified their spirits, your Alma Mater delights to honor you.

ARTHUR FRANCIS BUDDINGTON

Doctor of Science

We greet you as an alumnus and former member of the Brown faculty whose scholarly distinction has gained wide recognition; your excellent work in petrology has carried you far — in two senses — and now brings you home again to the Meeting House that we may give it fresh recognition.

QUENTIN JAMES REYNOLDS

Doctor of Letters

Having a gift for observation and a talent for writing, you were endowed with two essential attributes of a reporter: unto those you have added wide experience, lively imagination, a zest for living, and courage both physical and moral. So millions of readers, perceiving through your eyes, gain fresh awareness.

SIMEON STRUNSKY

Doctor of Letters

Though born in Russia, by the miraculous chemistry of personality you exhibit characteristic Yankee insight and a typical American reaction to events and utterances; to extravagant assertions you bring the corrective humor, to modern misapplications of statistics a salty common sense, to political tension sanity of thought, to human need warmth of response, and to all ideas clarity and felicity of expression.

HAMILTON FISH ARMSTRONG

Doctor of Laws

Rigorous apprenticeship prepared you to create and maintain the most distinguished journal of international affairs in all the world. Scrupulous fairness has made it a forum to which statesmen and scholars gladly turn; a sense of perspective has protected it alike from the trivial and the grandiose; care for accuracy has made it wholly dependable. Your own essays are models for all its distinguished contributors to emulate.

HARRY ERVIN YARNELL

Doctor of Laws

Roaming the world as a naval officer, you broadened your knowledge and enlarged your capacity. In meeting responsibility great technical skill and a fighting heart have been guided by wise and firm statesmanship. With infinite tact, but no patience at all with a bully, you are a quarter-deck diplomat in the grand tradition.

Phi Beta Kappa's Predecessor

▶ RECORD books of the Federal Alpha, predecessor of Phi Beta Kappa at Brown University, were placed on view for the 113th annual meeting of the Rhode Island Alpha of the latter society during the Commencement season. The older group, founded in 1797, has on its roster the signatures of many notables of the State's early history.

Election of officers resulted for the most part in the re-seating of incumbents: President—Dr. Alex M. Burgess; Vice-President—Arthur M. Allen; Secretary—Prof. William T. Hastings; Treasurer—Judge William M. Moss; Historian—Dr. Lawrence C. Wroth; Auditor—George L. Miner.

Prof. Joachim Wach of the Department of Biblical Literature and History of Religions was elected to honorary membership, while Frank O. Hough '24, novelist, was elected to alumni membership.

Acknowledging Benefactions to Brown ◀ ◀

▶ ▶ IN the first report since the entry of the United States into the war, Vice-President James P. Adams made his annual announcement at the Alumni Meeting on Commencement Day of gifts, grants and bequests to Brown. More than three-quarters of a million dollars, a notable increase in the funds provided from these sources in response to the University's greatly enlarged responsibilities, was reported.

▶ THIS year, in celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Founding of Pembroke College, its alumnae completed a five-year campaign for $125,000.00, of which $100,000.00 is designed as a contribution to a new dormitory. With more than three-quarters of the living graduates participating, the Semicentennial Gift Committee announced that they had exceeded their goal and that the total amount raised was $126,176.41.

▶ THE Alumni Fund, reporting a month earlier in its campaign than in other years, was substantially ahead of every previous campaign in Fund history at the corresponding date.

▶ LAST June, foreseeing the difficult financial situation in which the University would be placed, the Brown Corporation determined to seek an emergency fund available for current operations during the critical years. No campaign has been so far conducted, but gifts to the Stabilization Fund now amount to more than $455,000.00, of which $355,000.00 was received this year from a small group of generous friends and alumni.

▶ IN addition to gifts of money, the University has received interesting and significant collections and other gifts of property. Mr. R. Foster Reynolds, whose gift of the "Blenheim" tapestry was reported last year, has this year presented the University with the other large tapestry, the "Coriolanus", which hangs in the Corporation and Faculty Room, and a beautiful pair of eighteenth century Beauvais tapestries, "The Swing" and "The Dance", previously loaned to the University and hung in the rotunda of University Hall. These gifts were made in memory of Mr. Reynolds' aunt, Princesse Aymon de Faucigny Lucinge.

▶ PAUL R. BULLARD, class of 1897, has given to the University an important collection of unusual interest, consisting of political cartoons and caricatures of Napoleon. This collection, which can be seen at the John Hay Library, affords an interesting study of war propaganda and at many points parallels modern war cartoons. Mr. Leo Wallerstein has generously given to Brown a fine set of first edition Goya aquatints comprising the series known as "Los Desastres de La Guerra". This gift came to Brown through the interest of Mr. Wallerstein's son-in-law, Robert J. Sifton of the class of 1935.

▶ THE University is grateful to Mrs. Hope K. Powel for an addition to its property holdings adjoining the campus. Mrs. Powel has conveyed her property at the corner of George and Brown Streets to Brown for its future use.

▶ THE list of benefactions which follows includes all gifts, grants and bequests of money amounting to $100.00 or more. Space does not permit the listing of the numerous smaller benefactions or those given in some form other than money. The University, however, gratefully acknowledges the generosity not only of those whose benefactions are listed below, but of those whose gifts cannot be mentioned individually.

BEQUESTS

▶ FROM the Estate of Ella F. Griffin, $18,000.00 on account of a bequest as an addition to the Stephen W. Griffin Fund for Scholarships.

From the Estate of Minnie Helen Hicks, $5,111.68 to establish the Minnie Helen Hicks Prize Fund at Pembroke College.

From the Estate of Alexander G. Mercer, $18,068.41 as an addition to the Hall Mercer Scholarship Fund.

From the Estate of Samuel M. Nicholson, $10,304.44 in payment of bequest.

From the Estate of Alice Peckham, $1,000.00 to establish the Alice Peckham Fund.

From the Estate of Isabella M. Wardwell, $7,500.00 as an addition to the Isabella M. Wardwell Fund for Scholarships and to provide aid for the students of Pembroke College.

GRANTS IN AID

▶ FROM agencies of the United States Government, $66,800.00 for special research.

From the American Council of Learned Societies, $1,500.00 for special purposes.

From the American Council of Learned Societies, $2,306.25 for the Department of Mathematics.

From the American Council of Learned Societies, $450.00 for a Scholarship.

From the Carnegie Corporation, $12,500.00 toward a special program for teaching and research in Applied Mechanics for 1941-1942 (in addition to the previously reported $7,500.00 toward the same program for the summer of 1941).

From the Carnegie Corporation, $30,000.00 to be used toward the support of work in Applied Mechanics for the year 1942-1943.

From the Ethyl Corporation, $750.00 for a Fellowship in Chemistry, Physics or Engineering.

From the National Research Council, $1,200.00 for the support of special research in the Department of Biology.

From the Rockefeller Foundation, $2,000.00 for special purposes.
 From the Rockefeller Foundation, $1,600.00 for support of special research in the Department of Biology.
 From the Rockefeller Foundation, $30,000.00 for scholarships in Applied Mechanics during the year 1942-1943.
 From the United States Office of Education, $37,358.70 for special courses in connection with the Engineering Science Management Defense Training Program.
 From the United States Office of Education, $17,900.00 toward a program of teaching and research in Applied Mechanics for 1941-1942 (in addition to the previously reported $7,050.00 toward the same program for the summer of 1941).
 From the United States Office of Education, $10,100.00 toward a program of teaching and research in Applied Mechanics for the summer semester of 1942.

GIFTS FROM GROUPS OF ALUMNI AND FRIENDS

► FROM the Semicentennial Alumnae Gift Committee, gifts and pledges amounting to $17,766.58 representing contributions of Alumnae to the Brown Alumnae Fund during the past year. The total amount raised by this committee during the past five years toward its goal of $125,000.00 amounts to $126,206.53.
 From the Brown Alumni Fund Trustees, $40,159.36 representing gifts to current income from more than 3400 Alumni. (This amount represents collections up to and including June 12th. The campaign ends June 30th.)
 From the Associated Alumni, given for the purpose by an Anonymous Donor, $1,000 to assist local Brown clubs in furnishing club scholarships.
 From the Brown Club of Boston, $500.00 for the Brown Club of Boston Scholarship.
 From the Brown Club of New York, $500.00 for the Brown Club of New York Scholarship.
 From the Brown Club of Providence, $600.00 for the Brown Club of Providence Scholarships.
 From the Brown Engineering Association, $125.00 as an addition to the James Alexander Hall Scholarship Fund.
 From the Class of 1907, $1,500.00 for special purposes.
 From the Class of 1917, $2,500 for the Class of 1917 Fund.
 From the Class of 1921, $1,050.00 to establish the Class of 1921 Endowment Fund.
 From the Class of 1921, $267.50 for the purchase of a Power Boat.
 From the Class of 1932, $100.00 in token of its intention to make a tenth anniversary class gift for general purposes.
 From Friends of the University, $675.00 for dinghies for the Yacht Club.
 From Friends of the University, $3,600.00 for special purposes.

From Friends of the University, $2,000.00 for special purposes.
 From Friends of the University, $2,640.00 for the John Carter Brown Library.
 From the Rhode Island Society for the Collegiate Education of Women, $8,252.00 as an addition to the Pembroke College New Dormitory Fund.
 From the Rhode Island State Federation of Women's Clubs, $250.00 for a scholarship at Pembroke College.
 From the Rhode Island Women's Club, $200.00 for a scholarship at Pembroke College.

OTHER GIFTS

► FROM a small group of Alumni and Friends of the University, $355,006.14 toward the Stabilization Fund (in addition to $100,000.00 previously reported as an unrestricted gift for general purposes and now made available for this Fund).
 From an Anonymous Donor, $10,000.00 for current expenses of the University.
 From an Anonymous Donor, $2,000.00 for special purposes.
 From an Anonymous Donor, $12,000.00 for the Department of Geology.
 From an Anonymous Donor, $5,000.00 for scholarship purposes.
 From an Anonymous Donor, $700.00 for special purposes.
 From an Anonymous Donor, $400.00 for general purposes.
 From Zechariah Chafee, $200.00 for the McClellan Lincoln Collection.
 From Mrs. Murray S. Danforth, $5,000.00 for the Pembroke College New Dormitory Fund.
 From the Mary Dexter Fund, $2,000.00 for War Emergency Equipment for the Department of Physics.
 An addition of $13,000.00 to the Charles H. Hare Fund for the endowment of Andrews House, provided for by Dr. Charles H. Hare.
 From William A. Harris, $500.00 for scholarships at Brown University and $500.00 for scholarships at Pembroke College, "In loving memory of his wife, Emma Jane Leaker Harris."
 From Mrs. Sophia R. Louttit, $500.00 for the William Easton Louttit Scholarship.
 From Mrs. I. Harris Metcalf, $500.00 for Pembroke College for the purchase of books and awards for prize essays relating to international peace and government.
 From Lewis S. Milner, $1,540.00 for a Public Address System.
 From Watson Smith, $500.00 for the Samuel Watson Smith Scholarship.
 From the Charles Irwin Travelli Fund, $750.00 for scholarship purposes.

Changes Approved ◀

The Charter Stands Amended

▶ ▶ BROWN University's final step to amend its 178-year-old charter was taken May 18 when a majority of the members of the Brown Corporation voted to accept the provisions of an act passed recently by the Rhode Island General Assembly. The act removes all denominational requirements for membership in the Board of Fellows and the Board of Trustees and all denominational limitations for members of the faculty.

The proposal for the removal of the denominational requirements was first approved by the Corporation on Feb. 20, passed by the General Assembly on April 24. The charter amendment became effective after a properly executed record of the vote of acceptance had been filed with the Secretary of State of Rhode Island.

For 162 years the Brown Charter, originally granted in 1764, stipulated that eight of the Board of Fellows, a senior group of 12 members, be "of the denomination called Baptists or Antipaedobaptists, and the rest of them indifferently of any or all denominations."

It further provided that 22 of the 36 trustees be Baptists, five Quakers, five Episcopalians and four Congregationalists. An amendment of the charter in 1926 provided for six additional trustees who might be named without regard to the creeds they support.

The present change was sought on the ground that in some instances it was difficult to find a sufficient number of well qualified candidates and that, many times, an otherwise highly qualified person, whose services would be of great value to the Corporation, was barred from consideration by denominational barriers.

Rev. Albert C. Thomas, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Providence, was elected to membership on the Board of Trustees, to fill one of three Baptist vacancies, under the old requirements of the Charter. Dr. Thomas, a graduate of Brown in 1908 received an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1931. His father and grandfather, both missionaries in India, received Brown degrees in 1877 and 1847 respectively. His son, Robert, was awarded his A.B. from Brown in 1938.

No Alumni Trustees Elected

▶ ▶ ALTHOUGH five vacancies will exist in July among Alumni Trustees on the Brown Corporation, no successors were chosen in the pre-Commencement balloting. The tellers for the Associated Alumni reported that they were unable to certify any candidates from among those voted upon by the holders of Brown degrees since, under terms of alumni by-laws and Corporation agreement, 30 per cent of those qualified must cast their votes in order that the election be legal. This percentage was not reached, although three Baptist vacancies, one Episcopal and one Quaker vacancy were to be filled and a strong slate presented by the Advisory Council.

The election was the last held under the requirement that most candidates should be qualified under certain denominational groupings, since an amendment to the University Charter was accepted at Commencement time which removes such qualifications. The deficiency in the number of ballots prevented the certifying of successors to Claude R. Branch '07, Leon F. Payne '07, Ralph M. Palmer '10, Hugh W. MacNair '17, and Donald B. Snyder, who retired at the end of their six-year tenures.

There have been a number of years when the minimum of ballots was barely attained, but this is the first time that the election has gone by default. To meet the situation thus created, the Corporation last month voted to authorize the Associated Alumni to make two nominations to fill two vacancies to be submitted at the October meeting and these nominees, if elected, be seated at that meeting. The Alumni would otherwise have to wait a year.

A resolution was also passed authorizing the President to appoint a committee of three members of the Corporation to prepare, with representatives of the Associated Alumni, a new agreement between the two bodies which would govern the election of the 14 Alumni Trustees. It was suggested that two nominations be submitted to the Corporation each year by the alumni group, and the nominees would be elected for a seven-year term. In addition to the extra election this summer, it was proposed to elect two more candidates next spring. ◀

Absent Seniors ◀

▶ ▶ DEGREES in absentia, rarely granted at Brown, this May went to eight men serving in the armed forces of their country on the day their classmates marched down the Hill to get their diplomas in person. Among them was Ernest T. Savignano, Class President and football star, at the Officer Candidate School of the U. S. Marines at Quantico. He would have led the procession down the Hill. With him was Robert Priestley, who had been designated a marshal.

Others were John W. Case, son of former Governor Norman S. Case '08, in the field artillery; Stephen W. Pournaras, at the Army Air Corps meteorology school in Chicago; Charles W. Corcoran, Ralph A. Hirtz, Eugene C. Swift and Pardon E. Tillinghast, son of Frederick W. Tillinghast '02. Some of their classmates, already in uniform, too, were permitted to return to Providence for Commencement; among them: William Crooker, former Boston Brown Club Scholar, and George Richardson, son of Dean Roland G. D. Richardson, both at the M. I. T. meteorology school of the Army Air Corps; Harvey M. Spear, Marine officer.

Eighty-five per cent of the Brown Class of 1942 were graduated directly into some phase of the war effort, the News Bureau announced at Commencement time. The proportion compares with 15 per cent who entered the armed forces the previous June from the Class of 1941. Aviation, meteorology, the Marine Corps and other branches of the Army and Navy, technical and defense production jobs were some of the fields for the Seniors.

Out of a total Senior registration of 263, 40 were already members of the Naval Reserve and were to enter the Navy at once as ensigns. Of these some were classed as "V-7" or deck officers; others as engineering officers under the Bureau of Ordnance and the Bureau of Engineering; a third group as flying cadets; a fourth, of pre-medical students, volunteers for service as Naval Reserve Officers of the Medical Corps, to be commissioned after medical school study. Selective service was waiting for some, deferred in order to complete their college work; others were under orders to report for duty upon graduation.

The situation on jobs was unlike any in 25 years. Students were not looking for jobs—they had their opportunities, according to Dean William K. Selden, in charge of placement. "The demand for engineering graduates has jumped tremendously," he said. "For each engineering, chemistry, mathematics or physics graduate, there are between three and four openings from which he may select the position which he prefers. The students in the Bachelor of Arts courses are largely anticipating a future in the armed forces."

"The University appreciates the spirit shown by the members of the Senior Class in the unusual days of the past year," Dean Samuel T. Arnold said. "They have evidenced a deep interest in preparing themselves for service in the armed forces of their country. We have faith that they will face their responsibilities with sincerity and with courage."

Of the Seniors, 15 left to enter military service during the first semester, 11 during the second.

They Were Marshals

► HONORED by the University on the occasion of his 50th reunion, James C. Collins '92, Providence lawyer, was Chief Marshal of the Brown Commencement procession this year. Chief of Staff again was E. Tudor Gross '01.

Among marshals and aides were: Royal W. Leith '12, James H. Arthur '97, Albert L. Midgley '01, Albert A. Baker '94, Prof. Albert K. Potter '86, Prof. Robert T. Chambers '09, Prof. Herbert N. Couch, C. Gordon McLeod '15, Prof. Clarence R. Adams '18, Prof. Norris W. Rakestraw, Ralph C. Andrews '39, Holdane R. Scott, Marjorie E. Battersby, Pembroke '31, George L. Miner '97, Earl P. The Baccalaureate Message

► "COMPANIONSHIP with the Ultimates" was the topic chosen for the 1942 Baccalaureate Sermon, which the pastor of the First Baptist Meeting House, Dr. Albert C. Thomas '08, delivered to the Brown Seniors on May 17. He cited them as: the human spirit, the concept of eternity, the value of an ideal, death, and the Supreme Ultimate, whom the Christian interprets through the person of Jesus.

"The world into which you are going," said Dr. Thomas, "will see to it that you do not forget the Ultimates." Their education at Brown had pointed them toward that goal. That supreme purpose "has been superbly voiced in the recent new legislative enactment which may become part of the Brown Charter."

"That change proceeds to say," he continued, "that it is intended to effect the purpose of the founders and the acknowledgment by the University of its special and perpetual indebtedness to the spiritual groups from which it sprang and with the purpose hereafter to continue to adhere to the basic ideals and principles common to them and similar institutions of religion. The security of religious ideals and principles, we are told, is dependent upon the character of the persons to whom the government of the University is committed—None of us knows yet what God and man is. But your Alma Mater has geared her life to that Eternal Quest.

"You have been reminded all too frequently that yours is the class that came with the wind—the wind of the hurricane; and that you are the first class to be gone with the wind—the whirlwind of the earth's greatest conflict. Trained to be leaders in that world of present failures, you are not despairing. You will go steadily on in the path of duty wherever it may lead, because yours is the patriotic dream that sees beyond the years. Your eyes are on the Ultimates. They are your companions and they constitute your beckoning vision."

For the second successive year the traditional march down the Hill Sunday was abandoned because of the rain. The President's Reception in Faunce House Art Gallery was nevertheless well attended, at the conclusion of the Baccalaureate Service. In addition to President and Mrs. Wriston, the receiving line included: Vice-President and Mrs. James P. Adams, Dean and Mrs. Samuel T. Arnold, and Dean Margaret Shove Morriss. The corps of ushers included the following alumni: Henry C. Hart, Jr. '35, Joseph Olney, Jr. '36, Gordon W. Cadwgan, Frederick W. Ripley, Jr. '32, Alden R. Walls '31, Richard A. Bowen '31, and Clinton N. Williams '31.

A Wartime Class Day

► CLASS Day, 1942, was stripped of some peacetime frivolities, but the Brown Seniors and their families and friends entered wholeheartedly into the traditional event that ends the social year on the campus. The exercises "Under the Elms" had their customary moments gay and solid, the latter more than usually earnest and seemingly more than usually heeded. The evening pleasures of Class Night were simpler, less ostentatious, but added up to "a good party," although the campus was not lantern hung, dancing was confined to Sayles Hall, and the company was largely confined to the college community. The midnight sing by the Seniors had an added poignancy this year.

In the afternoon President Wriston was stirring as he told the Seniors how their responsibilities would grow in the world. While he would not withdraw one whit of credit from General MacArthur, there is in the adulation from which he currently suffers a manifestation of that escapism which expects some one individual to perform the miracle while the rest of us stand and cheer." The college man could not afford to stay on the sidelines after his training for responsibility.

"The war will attempt to make it an end in itself, to demand the total conformity of our wills, our souls, our minds," Orator Richard R. Baxter of New York told his classmates. "But presumably our college education has meant something to us and has impressed us with the necessity of intellectual integrity and of a fierce determination to believe, to continue to believe in what we consider to be true. Let us not allow the war to stamp these out. In the absence of the Class President in military service, Vice-President William R. Potter commented upon the resoluteness of the Seniors who, after the early confusion occasioned by the war, came to the conclusion that the "clearer one of our immediate responsibilities was to complete our college career." J. Donald Foley was Class Historian, Walter J. Commander Poet, Henry F. Tingley, Jr., composer of the Class Song.

Joseph F. Lockett, Jr., President of the Undergraduate Athletic Council, announced the names of Seniors who had been awarded Varsity letters. A tea followed.

Classes in Reunion ◀ ◀

▶ ▶ "SORRY, no gas!"

It was a new phrase of regret but by all odds the most frequent as class chairmen sought to find out who was coming back for the reunions of 1942. Commencement gatherings, already circumscribed by the war, had an eleventh hour obstacle in the eastern gasoline restrictions.

Nevertheless, 34 of Brown University's classes held reunions during the Commencement season, some of them consisting of a single meal but all of them surprising in the response under the circumstances. Only four of the last 17 classes undertook gatherings, with so many of their members in active duty in military service or military industry, 30 of the previous 45 years were represented, some of them keeping intact reunion records of long standing. Classes which reported meeting were: 1879, 1880, 1882, 1885, 1886, 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1897, 1899, 1900, 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1907, 1908, 1909, 1910, 1912, 1913, 1914, 1916, 1917, 1918, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1927, 1932, 1937, 1939.

▶ SIXTY-THREE years after their graduation, five of the six living members of the class celebrated with a luncheon and afternoon at 272 Norwood Ave., Edgewood. The sixth member is Charles P. Bennett of Colorado Springs, Colo., who was unable to come East. The others, averaging 86 years of age, were: Henry O. Tripp, Judge Willard B. Tanner, Dr. Stephen A. Welch, and William Ely of Providence; Edward S. Adams, Fall River. The daughter of the late Dr. Walter L. Munro was hostess, while flowers on the table were in memory of R. Clinton Fuller, who died during the past year. The class originally numbered 47.

Five members of the Class of 1880, holding their 62nd annual reunion at the Lane-way Farm home of Zechariah Chafee, Taunton, expressed anxiety for the safety of one of their classmates, Henry D. Lane, who has been in Japan for the past 15 years. He has not been heard from since before Pearl Harbor, and presumably was being held in an internment or prison camp. Lane had been living with his son, a professor in one of the Japanese universities.

The five members, Mr. Chafee, Charles R. Adams of Boston, Henry J. Boyce of Providence, James G. Lincoln, Providence, and Frank L. Tinkham, Taunton, together with two members of the class of 1882, joined in a short spiritual service conducted by Mr. Chafee and then had dinner. Members of the Class of 1880 remained for supper.

The two '82 men present were Charles H. S. Weaver of Thompson, Conn., and Jefferson Shiel of Philadelphia.

▶ CHARLES H. S. WEAVER of Thompson, Conn., was host to six of his classmates on the 60th anniversary of their graduation. They included Jefferson Shiel, 60 years a teacher at Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia; Dr. Frederick L. Gamage, former headmaster of Pawling; Rev. Frank A. Everett, Wellesley, Mass.; Dr. William H. Tolman and Elmer Hosmer, Pawtucket; and Prof. William A. Francis, of Bradenton, Fla., who taught 40 years at Exeter Academy. The program began with luncheon at the University Club Saturday.

1885

Members of the Class of 1885 met at the home of its President, Frank Hail Brown, 59 Angell street, Saturday, and later were guests of Mr. Brown at dinner at the University Club. Besides Mr. Brown, those present were Dr. Charles H. Hare, Boston; Edgar H. Grout, Hopkinton, Mass., and Dr. George S. Mathews, Andrew McCorrie Warren, and Dr. Harlan P. Abbott, all of Providence.

1886

Breakfast for the class at the University Club continued a reunion custom of long standing. The group, headed by Prof. Albert K. Potter, class president, took part in the Commencement procession later.

1890

Six of the 25 living members of the Class of 1890 which centres its reunions on Commencement Day gathered at lunch at the University Club. Regret was expressed that Henry R. Palmer, former Providence Journal editorial writer and author of Brown poems, was unable to attend because of illness.

The luncheon group included Edward C. Stiness, Rev. Hamilton E. Chapman, Rev. William T. Green, Walter A. Presbrey, J. Benton Porter, and Dr. Harry L. Grant.

The Alumni Elections

▶ HENRY C. HART '01 of Providence was chosen to represent the alumni on the Brown University Athletic Council in pre-Commencement voting. His election to a three-year term was announced in Sayles Hall May 18 by President William P. Burnham '07 in opening the Alumni Meeting.

Regional directors of the Associated Alumni were chosen as follows: Rhode Island, Edward T. Richards '27, Providence, re-elected; New England, outside of Rhode Island, Carleton D. Morse '13, Roxbury, Mass., re-elected; Atlantic-Midland, Dr. William W. Browne '08, New York City, re-elected; Central, Paul H. Geough '17, Cleveland, Ohio; Western, Fremont E. Roper '11, Berkeley, California, re-elected. These directors were named for a two-year term.

Regional directors who will continue in office are: Ralph C. Knight '21, Melrose, Mass., J. Richmond Fales '10, Providence, Dr. Robert W. Burgess '08, New York City, Albert E. Dillingham '18, Cleveland, Ohio, and Lawrence L. Larrabee '09, Los Angeles, Cal.

Regional vice-presidents who will continue in office until July 1943 are: George S. Burgess '12, Boston; Henry C. Hart '01, Providence; Joseph A. O'Neil '31, York, Pa.; W. Russell Burwell '15, Cleveland, Ohio, and Nathaniel Blaisdell '83, San Francisco, Cal.

Seven members of a class of 65 which graduated in 1891 met at Agawam Hunt for their 51st reunion dinner.

Present were the following: President George J. Holden of Providence, Treasurer Edwin A. Barrows of Seekonk, Secretary Frank L. Hinckley of Providence, Rev. Charles A. Meader of East Greenwich, Merrick L. Goff of Barrington, Dr. James L. Wheaton of Pawtucket and William Howard Paine of Providence.

The group heard a poem sent by Abram Medenhall of Milwaukee, Wis., one of the 37 living members of the class. Other communications were received from the following: Chester A. Cook, Chicago, Ill.; Prof. Edward B. Birge, Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind.; Fred W. Woodcock, Boston, Mass.; Dr. Arthur L. Beals, Brockton, Mass.; Rev. Wallace W. Gushee, Youngstown, N. Y.; Joseph N. Ashton, Andover Mass.; Rev. Leo Boone Thomas, Cambridge, Mass.; Rev. John B. Barbour, Rochester, N. Y.; Rev. Frank G. Cressey, Granville, O.; Clarence C. Converse, Englewood, N. J., and William W. Weeden, Jamestown.

On Commencement morning the group met at the class fence, where Mr. Meader conducted a memorial service.

1892

▶ SIXTEEN of the 21 living members of the class of 59 which graduated in the spring of 1892 were guests of Charles H. Merriman of Providence at his Sakonnet Point summer home for the Golden Anniversary.

The group met at the University Club, motored to Little Compton and returned to the Stone Bridge Inn in Tiverton for a banquet.

Graduates of 1893 this year appointed a committee to arrange for their 50th annual reunion. They were guests of Edward B. Aldrich of Providence at dinner in the Squantum Club, East Providence, in the afternoon.

Named to the committee were: Edward H. Weeks of Providence, chairman; John D. E. Jones of Providence, Walter H. Reynolds of Providence, Robert M. Brown of West Barrington and Mr. Aldrich.

Mr. Jones was host at a reunion breakfast in the Hope Club to 15 members of the class: Mr. Weeks, Dr. William H. Magill, Daniel C. Snow, Charles A. Selden, Thomas P. Corcoran, Alexander Meiklejohn, Stephen A. Hopkins, Daniel Howard, Edgar M. Johnson, Orin P. Durkee, John L. Casey, Herbert G. Beede, Mr. Reynolds, Edwin B. Dolan and Mr. Brown. Guests were George Holden, Edwin A. Barrows, Chester Holden, H. Anthony Dyer and Fred Tenney.

NEWLY COMMISSIONED in the Naval Reserve, these Brown Seniors and Juniors took their oath last month before Capt. George H. Bowdley, commanding the Naval R.O.T.C. unit on the Hill. The 13 were majors in engineering, chemistry, and physics destined for special service in the Bureau of Ordnance and Bureau of Engineering of the Navy Department. The group was only one of several which received service commissions this year.

Four deaths were reported during the year. They were those of William J. Brown of Providence, Dr. William Henry Thomas Hamill of East Providence, Thomas Harwood Rothwell of New York and Dr. A. T. Belkney of Mansfield, Pa. The deaths brought the living membership of the class, originally 59, to 31.

► VICE-PRESIDENT James P. Adams of Brown was guest of honor at the 45th reunion dinner of the class at the Agawam Hunt, over which the class Vice-President, Albert Foster of Utica, presided. Other class officers present were: George L. Miner, Secretary, and Arthur M. Allen, Treasurer. After dinner, other classes holding reunions at the Agawam were invited to hear Dr. Adams, joining with the 28 members of 97:

Dr. Joseph C. Robbins, Newton Center, Mass.; George L. Miner, Providence; Albert O. Foster, Utica; N. Y.; Arthur M. Allen, Providence; Dr. Gregory D. Walcott, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wm. A. Harris, Springfield, Mass.; Maurice H. Cook, Rehoboth, Mass.; Howard A. Richmond, Providence; I. B. Merriman, Woonsocket; H. A. Matteson, West Warwick; Daniel F. Holmes, Cranston; Marcius H. Merchant, Warren; Dr. Harris E. Starr, New Haven, Conn.; Horace G. Bissell, Providence; Dr. H. W. N. Bennett, Manchester, N. H.; James H. Arthur, Providence; Frank O. Jones, Hartford, Conn.; Samuel Adams, Providence; Roswell S. Wilcox, Providence; James R. D. Oldham, Rumford; Russell Grinnell, Providence; Wilbur A. Scott, Providence; Clarence R. Budlong, Providence; Paul R. Bullard, Keene, N. H.; Byron S. Watson, Providence; Francis A. Rugg, Newton Highlands, Mass.; Clarence H. Lingham, Littleton, Mass.; Edwin A. Robinson, Meriden, Conn. The class's most distinguished member, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was unable to be present.

Gas rationing brought about a shift in the locale of the annual reunion of the class of 1899. The class usually meets at the Wickford camp of Dr. Nathaniel H. Gifford of Providence but because of the gas shortage, it met for an informal dinner at the University Club.

The 19 members present includes Dr. Gifford, Dr. Charles O. Cooke, Alonzo R. Williams, Louis Holmes, Benjamin W.

Grim, Owen F. Gallagher, Rayner B. Weeden, George A. Goulding, Charles C. Remington, Frederick A. Vose, George W. Sutcliffe, John F. Bannon, Judge Charles A. Walsh and Edward A. Stockwell, all of Providence; Dr. Samuel Beale, Sandwich, Mass.; William E. Farnham, East Orange, N. J.; Guilford C. Hathaway, Fall River; Ralph C. Estes, Attleboro; Howard R. Smart, Lincoln; N. W. Littlefield, Sharon, Mass., and Charles H. Guild, Naugatuck, Conn.

Continuing a custom maintained every year since graduation no matter how far away reunion activities may have centered, the class of 1900 returned to the University Club for its Commencement Day breakfast.

Chief Justice Fred T. Field, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, was included in the small group of classmates.

Others attending were Herbert H. Armington, Charles W. Brown, Ralph N. Brown, Harris H. Bucklin, Judge Roscoe M. Dexter, Melvin C. Johnson, Benjamin O. Pillsbury, Charles G. Richardson, Robert C. Robinson, Charles P. Roundy, Albert L. Scott and Clinton C. White.

► MEMBERS of the class of 1902 gathered at the Squantum Club in East Providence for a reunion and shore dinner, the only event for the group during the Commencement weekend.

Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow, Director of Admissions at the University, was a guest at the dinner.

Those in attendance included:

Edward K. Aldrich, E. D. B. Atwood, Williston W. Barker, Robert L. Bowen, J. Cunliffe Bullock, George Burdick, W. Cornell Blanding, Charles B. Coppen, Leon A. Drury, Arthur B. Dudley, Fred H. Gabbi, Allan Greene, Frederick W. Greene, Crawford W. Green, Henry J. Hart, Everett J. Horton, Charles R. Haslam, S. Parker Hunt, James B. Littlefield, Harry K. Metcalf, Lewis S. Milner, Arthur E. Munro, Peter M. O'Reilly, A. Truman Patterson, Arthur W. Pinkham, Wesley A. Page, Russell W. Richmond, Albert L. Saunders, Robert O. Smith, W. D. Shaw, Charles A. Powers, Frederick W. Tillinghast, W. L. Wilmarth, Walter H. Woods, Harry F.

Paine, Joseph W. Ince, William R. Potter, Phillip Caswell and G. Edward Buxton.

Nine members of the Class of 1903 held their 39th annual reunion dinner at the Agawam Hunt. Those attending were Robert Aldrich of Wickford; John H. Cady of Providence; Charles S. Carpenter of Providence; Percy W. Gardner of Providence; Prof. William T. Hastings of Providence; Daniel Hurley of Boston; Arthur L. Philbrick of Providence; Dr. William O. Rice of Providence and Fred A. Otis of Providence at luncheon Commencement Day. Harvey A. Baker and Clarence C. Gleason were also present.

Fourteen members of the Class of 1904 attended their 38th annual reunion at the Agawam Hunt, where a dinner was served. Foster B. Davis, president of the class, presided.

Those present were, besides Mr. Davis, Dr. Bertram H. Buxton, of Providence; Howard F. Esten, of Providence; George G. H. Cummings, of the University of Pennsylvania; Dr. James H. McCann, of Providence; Edwin K. Arnold, of Providence; Bernard P. Raymond of Providence; Frederick W. O'Connell, of Providence; Rev. Hsley Boone, of Mays Landing, N. J.; Clifton H. Hobson, of Palmer, Mass.; E. R. Scudder, of Palmer; Frederick C. Jones, of Providence; John F. Heckman, of Providence; Charles D. Casey, of Providence, and Dr. Edward J. Black, of Providence.

1905

Fourteen members of the Class of 1905 assembled at a dinner at the home of Walter Howard Barney, Narragansett Bay avenue, Warwick Neck, Warwick: Charles Alexander, Providence; Gilbert E. Slone, David Davidson, Providence; Arthur C. Maxfield, Cranston; Lester A. Wells, Kingston; Frank T. Albro, Fall River; Frederick Schwinn, Attleboro; Federal Judge John C. Mahoney, Providence; Frederick B. Thurber, Providence; W. Granville Meader, Providence; Ralph D. Kettner, Wickford; Frank E. Marble, Lynn, and Charles L. Robinson, Providence.

Newton P. Hutchison, chairman of the reunion committee, was unable to attend the dinner reunion. The class voted to send condolences and flowers to Paul C. DeWolf, Providence, the president of the class, and to James H. Connolly, Providence, who were kept from joining their classmates by sickness.

It was the Class of '05 which originated at Brown University the idea of class insurance. Mr. Davidson suggested at the meeting that it might be possible to insure all the undergraduate classes as they enter the university.

► LARGEST of all reunions was that of the 35-year class, which prides itself at all times on its spirit. Fifty-five names were signed on the reunion register during the weekend that had attractions solid from Friday night's supper at the Biltmore Hotel to Monday night's dinner at the University Club. Saturday's luncheon was at the Agawam Hunt, with golf in the offing, followed by cocktails at Claude R. Branch's in Seekonk and dinner at the Jacobs Hill Hunt Club. Jacobs Hill and the Agawam were again the scene of Sunday activity, with Vice-President James P. Adams and Dean Samuel T. Arnold as dinner guests. William P. Burnham and Dr. Charles McCann were breakfast hosts at the Biltmore Monday.

One highlight of the reunion was the tabulation by Prof. Zechariah Chafee, Jr., of individual estimates on the length and course of the war. Other highlights are sketched in with the 1907 class notes. Signatures on the reunion roster included:

President George Hurley, Providence; William P. Burnham, Boston, President of the Associated Alumni; Frank A. Cummings, Providence; Chester A. Snow, Providence; Dick Sanders, Providence; Thomas R. Marshall, Melrose Park, Pa.; Charles D. McEvoy, South Barre, Mass.; Alfred H. Gurney, Providence; A. G. Bruce, Albany; John T. Bannan, Providence; Douglas N. Allan, Providence; Herbert E. Harris, Providence; Harry H. Thurlow, Providence; Rev. Merrick L. Streeter, (Tavoy, Burma), Edgewood; Leonard S. Little, Edgewood; Harold E. Miller, Cranston; Walter E. Slade, Providence; W. J. Murray, Providence; Claude R. Branch, Providence; Homer M. Clark, Belmont, Mass.; Victor Schwartz, Seekonk, Mass.; Myron H. S. Affleck, Portland, Maine; John L. Curran, North Providence; William W. Reynolds, Providence; William E. Bright, Scranton, Pa.; Leon F. Payne, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dwight W. Robinson, West Newton, Mass.; Robert S. Curley, Biddeford, Maine; H. W. Paine, Upper Montclair, N. J.; Myron S. Curtis, Cleveland, Ohio; Carl S. Crummett, Newton, Mass.; E. Sumner Bailey, North Scituate, Mass.; G. A. Buckley, Brockton; Charles D. McCann, Brockton; Fred W. Lane, Millbury, Mass.; Oscar Maddaus, Manhasset, L. I., N. Y.; H. B. Shearer, Worcester, Pa.; I. L. Nickerson, Philadelphia; Lee H. White, Newtown, Conn.; Robert B. Jones, Providence; Henry G. Clark, Wakefield; Joseph I. Grover, Dorchester, Mass.; A. S. Briggs, Providence; Benjamin P. Graves, Barrington; R. F. Brooks, Jr., Taunton; L. F. Mowry, Providence; Samuel A. Steere, Akron, Ohio; A. W. Bushell, Hamden, Conn.; Charles M. Hamlin, Old Greenwich, Conn.; Z. Chafee, Jr., Cambridge, Mass.; John Courtland Knowles, Providence; Lt. Comdr. Francis M. Anderson, Washington, D. C.; Lloyd Champlin Eddy, Riverside; L. S. Hoffman, Lansdale, Pa.

A small dinner Sunday night and a representation in the Commencement process-

Tribute to the Faculty

► APPRECIATION of the loyal service of the Brown University Faculty under heavy burdens imposed by a wartime curriculum was voiced in a resolution adopted by the Corporation at its May meeting. It was presented by Dr. Waldo G. Leland '00 of the Board of Fellows, as follows:

"Whereas, the President has stated appreciatively in his Report that the Faculty has undertaken a heavy burden of additional teaching and administration during the emergency, and particularly during the summer period of the year when the Faculty usually take this time for study and research, and Whereas this additional burden of teaching and administration has been undertaken without additional compensation and Whereas the attitude of the Faculty has been an inspiration to the students and Whereas the Corporation wishes to express its deep appreciation of the service which the Faculty has been rendering and will render to the University. Therefore be it resolved that the Corporation express its thanks to the Faculty and direct the Secretary of the University to send each member of the Faculty a copy of this resolution of appreciation and esteem."

sion comprised the class's observance of the season. Some of the members went to the Baccalaureate to hear their classmate, Rev. Albert C. Thomas, preach his first Baccalaureate sermon as Pastor of the First Baptist Meeting House. Among those present at reunion were: Walter H. Burnham and Earl Biddle Conkin, who hadn't been back for several years. Leslie E. Swain was chairman of the subcommittee of the Commencement Committee on the Baccalaureate.

The Class of 1909 held its 33rd annual reunion at the Rhode Island Country Club, Nayatt Road, Barrington, with 23 class members present and one guest.

Plans had called for the group to play a round of golf before dinner was served, but the heavy rainfall of the afternoon made that impossible.

Those present were: Chauncey E. Wheeler, chairman of the reunion committee; Henry S. Chafee, Albert L. Poland, A. Manton Chace, Edward J. Hollen, Herbert M. Sherwood, Raymond Buss, Dr. William P. Buffum, Jr., John H. Wells, William Ross, W. R. Nash, Harold B. Tanner, Malcolm D. Champlin, Dr. Robert H. Whitmarsh, all of Providence; Harold P. Brown of Springfield; George R. Sykes of Boston; Newton G. Chace of New York; S. G. Tinkham of East Greenwich; Robert W. Burgess of New York; Dr. Moses L. Crossley of New Jersey; Charles W. Ward of Newport, and George R. Huxford of Hartford.

Lieut. Thomas J. White, U. S. N. R., of Newport, was the invited guest.

1910

Gas rationing changed the location for the reunion of the Class of 1910, which had planned to hold it at the Rhode Island Country Club, but switched to the more accessible University Club.

Thirteen members of the class, all but one, Ralph M. Palmer of New York, from Providence gathered for an informal dinner. The Providence men at the reunion were:

► DINNER at the Agawam Hunt May 16 began a good weekend reunion of 1912, with luncheon at the Biltmore following next day, and cocktails at the home of Kip I. Chace in Gloucester and a steak roast at the Gloucester Country Club later. President W. Randolph Burgess of New York presided. Other 30-year men present were:

Earl P. Perkins, Providence, re-elected Secretary; Harry M. Jones, McKeesport, Pa.; Samson Nathanson, Central Falls; Sheldon C. Collins, Great Barrington, Mass.; Albert L. Slade, Barrington; George W. Langdon, Jr., Haverhill, Mass.; F. C. Barrows, Jr., Grosse Pointe, Mich.; Lloyd R. Cummings, Newport, N. H.; Willard B. Anthony, Providence; Joseph D. Guillemette, Pawtucket; John F. McLaughlin, Providence; Edward L. Singen, Rumford; Walter L. Allen, Providence; Howard C. White, Braintree, Mass.; Carleton H. Parker, Pawtucket; Wyman Pendleton, Barrington; Kip I. Chace, Gloucester; Gerald Donovan, New York; Max L. Grant, Providence; W. E. Sprackling, New York; Ernest I. Kilcup, Barrington; Herbert E. Wolfe, Pawtucket; Royal W. Leith, Dedham, Mass.; Geo. S. Burgess, Wellesley Hills, Mass.; Dr. Robert C. Dexter, Belmont, Mass.; Daniel L. Brown, Milton, Mass.; Henry G. Marsh, Providence; Dr. John J. Gilbert, Providence; Harry Melvin Sutton, Newton Centre, Mass.; Kenneth Tanner, Providence; L. F. Burroughs, Providence; Karl Humphrey, Providence; Judge Kenneth L. Nash, S. Weymouth, Mass., President-elect; E. Payson Blanchard, Fairfield, Conn.; Wiley H. Marble, Worcester, Mass.

Sixteen members of the Class of 1913 attended their 29th annual reunion dinner at the Agawam Hunt. Those present were William J. Reed, of Warwick Neck; Ben I.

After Graduate Schooling

► FORTY-FOUR graduate students at Brown University received their degrees on Commencement Day in the same exercises set aside for the Baccalaureate awards. No separate Graduate School Convocation was held this year.

Alumni in the group of advanced degree winners were: M.A.—Jacques Cousin, William A. Just; M.Sc.—Ralph C. Andrews, Richard L. Solomon; Ph.D.—Simon J. Copans. The students represented 31 other colleges and universities: Haverford, Bates, Connecticut College for Women, Trinity, Wheaton, Baldwin-Wallace, Smith, Dartmouth, Providence, Yeshiva, Oberlin, Marietta, Rice, New Hampshire, Acadia, Rhode Island, Massachusetts State, Maine, International, American University, Simmons, Vassar, U.C.L.A., George Washington, Hamline, McGill, California, Albright, Kalamazoo, Georgia, Baylor.

Robinson, of Providence; Samuel I. Kennison, M.D., Lieut. M. C. U. S. N. Ret.; Harold A. Grout, of Wellesley Hills; Russell W. Field, of Barrington; Frederick C. Williams, of Pawtucket; Francis P. Davis, of Providence; Carleton D. Morse, of Needham, Mass.; Thomas H. Roberts, of Edgewood; Clarence H. Philbrick, of Providence, class secretary; Samuel T. Arnold, Dean of Brown University; Prof. Walter H. Snell, of Providence; George T. Metcalf, of Providence; Duncan Langdon, of Providence; Prof. Leighton T. Bohl, of Providence, and Benjamin M. McLyman, of Providence.

The 28th annual reunion of the class was held at "Fritz" Hazard's home at Saunderson on the Saturday of Commencement weekend. Present were: Robert S. Holding, Jr., Henry L. P. Beckwith, Frederick R. Hazard, Jr., Arthur D. Durgin, Edward T. Brackett, Leon N. McKenzie, David C. Adelman, A. A. Gardiner, Elmer G. MacDowell, James Tyrell, E. R. Cleaveland of Chevy Chase, Md., Melvin E. Savin, Dr. Robert M. Lord, E. Pulver Cook, Francis W. Post, Charles L. Woolley.

Twenty-one members of the Class of 1916 held reunion at the University Club, at an informal dinner.

At the reunion were: William A. Graham, Frederick A. Ballou, Jr., Charles J. Hill, Harry H. Burton, Philip A. Feiner, John A. Cashman, Francis J. O'Brien, Charles B. MacKay, Lt. Col. Guy W. Wells, John B. Moore, Dr. Maurice Adelman, Lincoln R. Arnold, Leon W. Brower, and Edwin Eayrs, varsity baseball coach, all of Providence; Albert B. Coop, Boston; William N. Ormsby, Boston; Howard W. Butterweck, New York; Amasa F. Williston, Fall River; John B. Dunn, Pawtucket, Ralph W. Pratt, Pawtucket; Arvid A. Alm, Boston.

WAR, which stole a rightful Commencement from the Class of 1917, also said "no" to elaborate plans for the 25th reunion. Instead of a weekend on the Cape, the members contented themselves with an informal dinner at the Wannamoisett but vowed a major reunion during the first Commencement after the peace is won. They are urging other classes to consider this idea of a Victory Commencement at that perhaps far-off time.

Five days before Pearl Harbor, the class mailed its original reunion prospectus. A use for individual moneys set aside for that purpose was found, however, in the purchase of $2500 in War Bonds, announced at Commencement time as a gift to Brown University.

Motion pictures of past reunions and campus scenes enlivened the Wannamoisett party, which included a class meeting and election of officers. Richard H. Van Horn, retiring as Treasurer after serving more than 20 years, was voted thanks. New officers, chosen for a five-year term, were named as follows: President—Raymond E. Jordan of Pawtucket; Vice-President—Thomas B. Appleget of New York; Secretary—Earl M. Pearce of Providence; Treasurer—William B. Farnsworth of Providence.

A coincidence saw 25 men of the 25-year class in reunion, including: Lt. Col. Ralph A. Armstrong, Fort Totten, N. Y. (one of five men back in service, the others being

HE DID NOT MARCH. Senior President Ernest Savignano, whose privilege it would have been to lead the Commencement procession down College Hill, received his Brown diploma in absentia. The football captain had begun his training at the Marine Corps Officer Training School.

W. Wallace Wade, Ralph Carlton Allen, Elmer E. Barnes, and James G. Fernald); Dr. Howard B. Marble, Hopedale, Mass.; Howard D. Williams, Rockland, Mass.; Rowland R. Hughes, New York; J. G. Peterson, Minneapolis, Minn.; E. L. Sheridan, Providence; Maurice W. Holton, Edgewood; Wayland W. Rice, Providence; C. Bird Keach, Providence; Dr. Clarence H. Woodmansee, Edgewood; Roger Williams, Saylesville; Harry A. Hughes, Providence; Edwin M. Knights, Providence; A. Lincoln Abel, Providence; John Francis Brown, Providence; Albert E. Watjen, West Barrington; Frank C. Cambio, Providence; Carlos G. Wright, Pawtucket; Charles Peckerman, New York; Judge James W. Leighton, West Warwick; Howard H. Quinham, Saylesville.

Members of the Class of 1918 attended their 24th annual reunion at the Wannamoisett Country Club, and made plans to mark their 25th annual reunion next year, when the class will present a large gift of War Bonds to Brown University.

Capt. Walter Adler, U. S. A., Class Secretary, presided.

Those named as a permanent reunion committee to arrange next year's anniversary were Harold F. Wilcox, chairman; Dwight T. Colley, of Wakefield; W. Joseph Cummings, John S. Chafee, J. Harold Williams, Dr. Wilfred Pickles, and Capt. Adler. Mr. Colley was named chairman of the 25th reunion Gift Committee.

Besides the committee members named, those who attended the reunion were Paul J. Grimes, of Providence; Arthur B. Lloyd, of Providence; Russell E. McKenzie, of Foxboro, Mass.; Dr. Louis I. Kramer, of Providence; Dr. Julian B. Marshall, of Pawtucket; Irving G. Smith, of Pawtucket; Prof.

J. Walter Wilson, of Providence; Prof. Clarence R. Adams, of Providence; Maurice Moskol, of Providence, and Thomas W. Hall, of North Providence.

21's 21st

Twelve members of the Class of 1921 attended their 21st reunion dinner at the Rhode Island Country Club, Nayatt road, Barrington.

Those who attended the dinner were: Russell H. Greene of Barrington, Dr. Arcadie Giura of Warren, Fred G. Brown of Apponaug, and William B. Robinson, Dr. Eske Winsberg, George E. Wilson, Alfred Mochau, secretary of the class and chairman of the reunion committee; W. Stanley Barrett, Dr. Frank J. Honan, William T. Brightman, Fred L. Itschner, and Lloyd Sheeran, all of Providence.

1922

THE war cut the 20th reunion of the Class of 1922, originally planned for a three-day affair, to an informal dinner Saturday at the Old France restaurant, attended by 37 class members.

Among the absentees were Milton E. Bates, somewhere in Shanghai and believed to be a captive of the Japanese; Rev. Harry L. MacKenzie, who left May 6 for Fort Dix as an Army chaplain, and Theodore A. Distler, who reported that he would be unable to attend the reunion because he was being inaugurated as president of Franklin and Marshall College.

The following were elected class officers: President—Sayles Gorham, Providence; First Vice-President—John B. Harvie, Barrington; Second Vice-President—Theodore L. Sweet, Providence; Secretary—J. W. Riker, Providence; Treasurer—E. J. Lowmes, Jr., Providence; Publicity Director—G. Ellsworth Gale, East Greenwich.

Other members at the reunion were George H. Webb, Providence; Harold L. Pittenger, Newark; Ralph W. Copeland, Brockton; Frank Sutherland, Pawtucket; Austin M. Davies, New York; Stewart Tucker, Providence; Paul Manchester, Pawtucket; H. F. Manchester, Providence; J. Alden Chesebro, Providence; Clarence Gray, Providence; John McCraw, Boston; William H. Shupert, Boston; Harold Tracy, Boston; William C. Green, Boston; William Paxton, Providence; Stanley Rowley, Boston; Arthur Miller, Narragansett; Raymond J. Farrell, Pawtucket; Edward W. Day, Cranston; Louis S. Chick, Boston; Bradford Oxnard, Providence; Arthur Durfee, Fall River; Robert Gerstenlauer, New York; William Lester, Providence; Edward French, Providence; Bertrand L. Shurtleff, East Providence; Joseph Marto, Boston; William Prentiss, Providence; Wallace Thurber, Boston; Edward Haskell, Pawtucket; Dr. Edward Cooney, Boston, and Ralph Brown, Cohasset, Mass.

Cards sent out to three members of the class were returned "undelivered." They were addressed to William L. Bulkeley, Calcutta, India; E. E. Pihlstedt, Gonäs, Sweden, and Charles M. Flick, Berlin, Germany.

On the last card there was the little note: "Postal service suspended."

1923

A purchase of war bonds with class funds was voted by members of the class of 1923 at a breakfast meeting in the University Club today. Plans for next year's 20th reunion were discussed. J. D. E. Jones, Jr., was host to the group.

BROWN ALUMNI MONTHLY

Those attending were Nathaniel B. Chase, Lawrence Lanpher, E. John Lownes, Jr., Norman J. Paasche (president), Herbert E. VanHoesen, Arthur Braitsch, William C. Munroe, Harvey S. Reynolds, Edward A. Hummel, Theodore R. Jeffers, Edward J. Bennett, John E. O'Neil, W. Chesley Worthington, Dr. John F. Murphy, Frederick N. Beede and Francis M. Sprague. Mr. Bennett reported that last year's premium on the class life insurance policy had been met by contributors raised by Elmer R. Joslyn of Springfield.

The Class of 1924 held its annual reunion at the University Club. A dinner, which was arranged by Robert H. Goff, the class secretary, was served.

Those who attended the dinner were: Edward W. Morris, of Providence; Raymond L. Miller, of Warwick; Mark R. Flather, of Providence; Dr. Milton Goldberger, of Providence; Carlton H. Bliss, of Attleboro; Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow, director of admissions of the university; Dr. Anthony V. Migliaccio, of Providence; Dr. Wade Bishop, of Rumford; Carleton Goff, of Barrington; Joseph W. Nutter, of Providence, the Class President; S. Everett Wilkins, of Edgewood; John E. Cotton, of Providence; William Fletcher, of Barrington; Charles E. Hopkins, of Barrington; John J. McDonald, of Providence; Stuart D. Goulding, of Providence and Roy L. McGregor, of Providence.

This was the 18th consecutive reunion the Class has had and unless circumstances prevent it plans to hold reunions at the same place and same time each year with the exception of the big five-year reunions.

► ELECTION of officers for the next five years of the class were named at the 15th reunion, as follows: President — Fred H. Barrows, Jr.; Vice-President — Dr. Orland F. Smith; Secretary-Treasurer — Irving G. Loxley.

The two-day-old gasoline rationing program cut deeply into the ranks at the Norwich Inn, where only half of those who originally planned to attend were able to arrive—by bus or train—for the three-day reunion. Nevertheless, it was a successful one, all agreed. Golf was a major item on the agenda. Among the members at Norwich were:

Thomas H. Magee, Jackson Hts., N. Y.; Harvey C. Stafford, New York; John G. Greene, Boston; Abraham S. Friedman, Providence; Edward Goldberger, New York; Dr. Orland F. Smith, Pawtucket; Edgar R. Loud, Cranston; George P. Richardson, Jr., New York; W. Kenneth Anderson, New York; W. M. Stuart, New York; Harry G. Remington, Scarsdale, N. Y.; E. T. Lesure, Attleboro; E. Bromage, Jr., Providence; Kenneth J. Hovey, Upper Darby, Pa.; Prof. William R. Benford, Providence; Irving G. Loxley, Edgewood; J. W. Merriam, Grafton, Mass.; P. Marshall McGregor, Taunton; H. Russell Meyers, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Robert S. Trowbridge, New York; Edward T. Richards, Providence; Fred H. Barrows, Jr., Providence; Capt. H. J. Meyers, Brooklyn.

Secretary — Richard A. Hurley, Jr., Providence; Treasurer — Capt. John H. Dolan, Fort Getty.

Saturday's program at Jamestown included golf, horseshoes, dinner and movies. Sports were again the order for Sunday, with Coach J. Neil Stahley speaking at the Class Dinner. Breakfast at the University Club concluded the reunion on Commencement Day. Present during the weekend were:

Morton J. Simon, Philadelphia; Gerald I. Glunts, Boston; Alonzo B. Morón, Atlanta, Ga.; Richard A. Hurley, Jr., Rumford; Frederic W. Ripley, Jr., Edgewood; Robinson O. Bellin, Washington, D. C.; Lester Friedman, Pawtucket; Everett Schreiner, Rumford; Richard F. Canning, Cranston; Andrew G. Rotelli, Cranston; E. M. Battey, Newton, Mass.; A. R. Pearshall, Arlington, N. J.; T. Dexter Clarke, Providence; Charles C. Tillinghast, Jr., New York; John S. Flynn, Boston; Stanley C. Paige, Providence; Donald Gardner, Rumford; Warren A. Pearce, Providence; J. A. Waters, Providence; Leon M. Najarian, Pawtucket; Steven Scudder, Palmer, Mass.; William R. Goldberg, Pawtucket; Dr. Edward Damarjian, Providence; Patrick James, Providence; Thomas J. Hunt, Jr., Pawtucket; Raymond K. Andrew, Pawtucket; Lt. (J. G.) William H. McSoley, Jr., Providence; A. Albert Bartigian, Providence; Kenneth Gordon, Providence; James H. Higgins, Jr., Pawtucket, R. I.; Capt. John R. Dolan, Fort Getty; David H. Scott, Chappaqua, N. Y.

► MORE than 30 of the five-year class attended the reunion sports and dinner at the Metacomet Golf Club Saturday. Among winners were: Fred Sawyer, golf; Jackson Skillings, tennis; Martin L. Tarp, horseshoes; single men, softball. Breakfast Commencement morning was also scheduled. Reported present during the weekend were:

John L. Fallon, Edgewood; Joseph Navas, Riverside; James F. McCoy, Pawtucket; Luther Stanhope, West Barrington; James L. G. Kavanagh, Providence; Fred A. Sawyer, Providence; Walter A. Connolly, Wilmington, Del.; John H. Corey, Providence; Peter A. Lampropoulos, Pawtucket; Vernon Beaubien, Providence; George F. Follett, Pawtucket; John L. Crowley, Pawtucket; William L. Wunsch, Providence; Clement S. McPhee, Jr., Cranston; Jackson H. Skillings, Fall River, Mass.; Edward R. Bancroft, Jr., Providence; Thurloy B. Bearse, Hyannis, Mass.; S. James Beale, Boston; Leonard E. Cummings, Providence; Harold S. Barrett, Providence; Milton Jacobs, Providence; Hermon L. Toof, Pawtucket; Robert W. Murphy, Rockville, Conn.; Louis O. Heinold, Jr., Cranston; Allyn L. Brown, Jr., Hartford, Conn.; John D. Casey, Providence; Burton G. Shevelove, New Haven, Conn.; Charles E. Hughes, 3rd, New York; Austin Peck, Providence; Harold Hassenfeld, Providence; Martin L. Tarp, Pawtucket; Charles J. White, Providence.

Its attendance sharply cut by the fact that an estimated 80 per cent of its members are now in the armed forces, the Class of 1939 mustered 15 members for a reunion in the Old France restaurant. Among those present were Ensign W. L. Carter of Portsmouth, N. H., and Charles A. Reynolds of Providence, soon to start training as an aviation cadet at Maxwell Field.

Others at the reunion were:

Thomas J. Quinn, Providence; Edward J. Deignan, Eden Park; Karl F. Weygand, Taunton, Mass.; Charles L. Harrop, Central Falls; Justin Robinson, Aberdeen, Maryland; James H. Maker, Waltham, Mass.; George H. Truman, Cranston; Emery R. Walker, Jr., Foster B. Davis, Jr., Alfred H. Macgillivray, John Mochacky, Stanley F. Mathes, all of Providence; Charles Viall, East Providence. ◀ ◀

► ► IN memory of the late Dr. Charles V. Chapin, whose public health work made him known throughout the world, the House of Delegates of Rhode Island Medical Society has voted that an oration in Dr. Chapin's name be given each year to the society's annual meeting. Orator this year is Dr. Timothy Leary of Boston, Medical examiner for Suffolk County.

1883

Irvin Chaffee Plough, son of Prof. and Mrs. Harold H. Plough of Amherst College and grandson of our late classmate, J. Irvin Chaffee, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and graduated magna cum laude this spring from Amherst. He will enter the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, in July to study medicine.

1886

Albert Knight Potter, Professor of English, Emeritus, has again been elected as president of the Rhode Island Branch, English Speaking Union. In a letter to the Providence Evening Bulletin, President Potter told of the work done by the E. S. U., and ended by saying that while certain larger groups which have been helping the British might fold up, "the E. S. U., with the prestige of more than 20 years of service, has no such intention." The E. S. U. would be ready, he implied, to turn to home needs whenever the call came, but meanwhile would "continue to send cases each month for distribution through efficient headquarters in London."

Josiah Bartlett is gradually migrating to the Pacific Coast, according to present signs. A note records his removal from Burlington, Ia., to 930 East St., South, Salt Lake City, Utah.

1892

Gorham Noble Norton reports his retirement and his present address as 102 West 84th St., Apt. 3-W, New York.

1893

Daniel Howard has retired as superintendent of schools of Windsor and Windsor Locks, Conn., and is living in Windsor. As teacher, principal, and administrator he has a worthy record of more than 45 years to his credit.

Charles A. Selden made one of his infrequent pilgrimages from Nantucket to attend Commencement and renew acquaintances on the campus. He still has the honor of being the only former foreign correspondent of repute who has not written a book about his life and experiences abroad.

Rev. Harry St. John Filmer reports his recent settlement in Green Cove Springs, Fla.

We record with regret the death of Dr. Arthur T. Belknap in Spokane, Wash., May 2, 1942, and extend to Mrs. Belknap and her three daughters the sincere sympathy of the Class. Our classmate, after a long western vacation, during which he met various fellow Brunonians on the West Coast, was returning to Mansfield, Pa., where he was Dean of Instruction and Professor of English at the State Teachers College, when he was stricken.

1894

Rev. Francis C. R. Jackson, noting his latest change of address to 657 Cajon St., Redlands, Calif., added: "Lived in Redlands 30 years ago. Have come back now for the duration."

1895

Prof. Frederick Slocum, director of Van Vleck Observatory, Wesleyan University, has the sympathy of the Class in the loss of his wife, Mrs. Carrie (Tripp) Slocum, who died in Middletown, Conn., May 22. Mrs. Slocum was reporter and telegraph editor of the New Bedford Evening Standard when she and our classmate were married in June, 1899.

Dr. Peter Clark Wright's new mail address is 19824 Carpenter Ave., Hollis, N. Y.

Rev. John Franklin Watts, D.D., retired Baptist minister, died at his country home, White Marsh, Md., April 29, 1942. He had been living in White Marsh and attending and occasionally preaching at University Baptist Church, Baltimore, since his retirement four years ago. To Mrs. Watts and the three children the Class extends its belated but none the less sincere sympathy.

1896

After having been with what is now the investment banking firm of Brown Bros., Harriman & Co. since 1905, Alfred B. Meacham has retired from active business. His address continues at 12 West 44th St., New York. He was recipient of a Brown Bear award at the annual dinner of the New York Brown Club in March.

Rev. J. Canfield Van Doren is now living in Chaumont, Jefferson County, N. Y.

Said the column "In Rhode Island 25 Years Ago" in the Providence Sunday Journal of May 31: "Under the direction of Dr. G. A. Matteson, Naval Base Hospital No. 4 was being formed here for training at Newport and assignment to service later."

Jesse F. Smith of the Faculty of Suffield Academy, Suffield, Conn., wrote feelingly of his friend, the late Dr. Arthur T. Belknap '93, in a recent letter, and also added a postscript thanking the BROWN ALUMNI MONTHLY for referring to the Suffield Academy News in a paragraph about "Ben-y" Andrews in the May issue.

Frank O. Jones, retired from his public school work after 44 years of valued service, is manager of Cary Teachers' Agency, Hartford, Conn., which the late Charles Wilbur Cary '98 founded and ran for many years.

"Pop" Kendrick Is Dead

► CHARLES H. (POP) KENDRICK is dead. Known to generations of Brown men while he was in charge of the Brown Bookstore, he retired a few years ago to his home in East Providence, where he passed away May 28 in his 83rd year. He studied at Phillips Academy, Exeter, and at Colgate, but his years at Brown and his contacts with Brown men made him a strong Brunonian by adoption. His son, Lowell C. Kendrick '12, received his A.M. in 1913. A First Lieutenant in the U. S. Army during the First World War, he died in 1922. Surviving are Mr. Kendrick's wife, Mrs. Mary Kendrick, a second son, Stephen E. C. Kendrick, American Consul in Dublin, Ireland, and a granddaughter, Mrs. George L. Crawford of Burbank, Calif. ◀

Philadelphia, and is living in Osterville, Cape Cod, Mass.

Daniel M. Greene, who spent two years with the Class on the Hill and who in 1905 received the A.B. degree from West Virginia University and the LL.B. from Yale in 1907, is chairman of the legislative committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations of Prince Georges County, Maryland, and chairman of the zoning committee of Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce. He has been a member of the bars of West Virginia and District of Columbia for more than 30 years.

Rev. Dr. Joseph Chandler Robbins will be the next president of the Northern Baptist Convention. He was nominated at the meeting in Cleveland late last month.

Your Secretary records with regret the death of Dr. Marcus Ward Lyon, Jr., in South Bend, Ind., May 19, 1942. A heart attack on the morning of that day resulted fatally. Mrs. Lyon died in January of this year, and our classmate deeply felt her loss. Surviving are a daughter and two brothers, to whom the Class gives its earnest sympathy.

Smith L. Multer, re-elected as president of New Jersey Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, is something of an authority, although he won't admit it, the Newark Star-Ledger reports, on America's two greatest presidents, Washington and Lincoln, and is in great demand as a speaker on patriotic occasions. "A thorough grasp of American history has been a valuable asset to him," the newspaper adds.

William Adams Slade, reference consultant, the Library of Congress, gives his preferred mail address at 3425 Ordway St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Your Secretary records with regret the death of Henry D. C. Dubois, Judge of Probate in Cranston, May 22, 1942, and extends to his family the sympathy of the Class. Judge Dubois was stricken as he was working in the yard of his house at 92 Wentworth Ave., Edgewood, and died before aid could be given. He was prominent as lawyer, Mason, as a former British Vice Consul in Rhode Island, and as a military veteran.

"Now, Dr. Mangano, being no longer a young man, feels that he has earned the right to retire, and on Jan. 1, 1942, he severed his relations with the fine people in Brooklyn whom he has served in one way or another for nearly 40 years," wrote Curtis Lee Laws in a recent Watchman-Examiner. "A Personal Sketch," Mr. Laws called his article in which he spoke glowingly of Mangano's work as missionary to the Italians of this country, as church builder, as spiritual leader and writer. "Dr. Mangano is still strong and well," he concluded, "and, no doubt, wherever he goes, he will be called to minister to the churches — not alone to the Italian churches, but to the American churches as well. If he removes from New York, he will be followed by the prayers and affection of all our Baptist people."

Frank E. Richmond, president of the Crompton Co., textile manufacturers, is in Charlottesville, Va., where his mail address is P. O. Box 1725.

Howard L. Corthell wrote last month: "From now on my address will be Star Route, Great Barrington, Mass., instead of 76 William St., New York."

Col. Eli T. Fryer has been made Brigadier General, retired, of the U. S. Marine Corps. A recent news story said that "General Fryer's promotion is the result of a law recently enacted by Congress, permitting a retired officer to be advanced on the retired list if he had received citations, other than those bestowed during the First World War. General Fryer possesses the Congressional Medal of Honor for action in the occupation of Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 21-22, 1914." General Fryer has been living in Coral Gables, Fla.

Oliver P. Hussey is a manufacturer's agent under his own name at 143 Federal St., Boston. His house is at 45 Dwight St., Brookline, Mass.

The mother of Judge George C. Wing, Jr., Mrs. Emily B. Wing, died at her home in Auburn, May 3, 1942, in her 96th year. Mrs. Wing, who was born Emily B. Thompson, was an organizer of the Auburn Home for Aged Women, a life member of the Women's Hospital Association of the C. M. G. Hospital, and an early member of the Auburn Club. She also belonged to Mary Dillingham Chapter, D. A. R., the Court Street Baptist Church, and the Isle of Springs Association, of which her husband was a founder. In June, 1941, she was named Maine Pioneer Club Woman and had conferred upon her the cum laude award of the Maine State Federation of Women's Clubs. Members of the Class will appreciate how much such an able and devoted mother meant to our classmate.

Willard H. Bacon will begin his 30th year as superintendent of schools of Westbury, R. I., in September.

Norman A. Moss has retired after 41 years of teaching in Rhode Island and Massachusetts high schools. He has been at English High School, Boston, since 1912.

Dr. Arthur Irving Andrews is president of the Institute of World Affairs Association which will hold its eighth annual session "at some inland and mountain centre" the week of Aug. 15-22. Andrews' present address is Lower Warner, N. H.

Harrison E. Wright is the new president of the S. S. Childs Bible Class of the Presbyterian Church, Basking Ridge, N. J. The class was named in honor of the leading member of the Childs family who founded the Childs' restaurant system, and who was one of the charter members and loyal supporters of the class.

President Harvey N. Davis was host to the Brown engineers at the spring meeting of the New York area at Stevens Institute of Technology last month. "Powder Metallurgy" was the topic of discussion, and Davis and Prof. J. J. Comstock of the Stevens Faculty told of developments in the field and gave demonstrations "in the finest laboratory in the country."

William R. Harvey is the newly elected vice-president of the Newport Historical Society.

Dr. Frank A. Fearney is on the medical staff of the Veterans' Administration Facility, Marion, Ind.

Your Secretary, Fred A. Otis, former Assistant Attorney General of Rhode Island, has begun his duties as Chief State Attorney in the Rhode Island offices of OPA on the ninth floor of Hospital Trust Bldg., Providence.

William Sandager, Jr., son of our classmate William Sandager and Mrs. Sandager, has received commission as Lieutenant (j.g.), U. S. Navy, and assigned to duty with Ordnance. Young Sandager reported last month to the commander of the Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla.

C. E. Akerstrom, who won degrees in business administration and commercial science at Boston University after leaving Brown, is acting Treasurer and on the Faculty of Green Mountain Junior College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He's been there 10 years, according to a feature article in the Rutland Herald, "and in Poughkeepsie has taken one treasurer's job after another. . . . He is treasurer of the Masons, Boy Scouts, Rotary, St. John's Parish, Trinity Episcopal Church, and several other organizations. . . . His only lapse into politics occurred recently with his election to the office of Town Auditor."

In "America Organizes to Win the War," a handbook on the American war effort published last month in New York by Harcourt, Brace & Co., Dr. Arthur Upham Pope "offers the plain citizen some good counsel on keeping up morale," to quote Prof. Allan Nevins, who reviewed the book for New York Herald Tribune Books.

Maj. Colgate Hoyt, U. S. A., is attached to the office of Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of Selective Service, in Washington. Hoyt was Selective Service adviser to Mayor LaGuardia of New York before being commissioned as Major in the Army.

Rev. Walter O. Terry, minister of the Methodist Church, Westboro, and Upton, Mass., is on duty again after going to hospital last October for an emergency operation that kept him away from home until February. "Have been slowly on the climb since. . . . The doctors told me that if my experience didn't kill me they don't think anything ever will," he wrote your Secretary last month.

In spite of submarines and mines, A. B. Tingley and C. L. Robinson, our marine scout reports, are getting their catboats overboard at Barrington with the evident intention of doing as much sailing this summer as they can.

Maj. Alfred W. Ingalls, U. S. A., has the sympathy of the Class in the loss of his mother, Mrs. Annie M. Ingalls, who died at Ocean View Hospital, Swampscott, Mass., last month at the age of 85. Herbert E. Ingalls '14 is the other surviving son.

The first grandchild of W. Granville Meader was born to Aubrey Meader, wife of William Granville Meader, Jr. '39, in Berkeley, Calif., March 31, and was named Susan Meader.

R. W. Berthold is director of industrial relations for Western Union Telegraph Co., with his office at 60 Hudson St., New York, and his house at Colchester H. II, Scarsdale, of which Classmate Arthur F. Driscoll is a former Mayor.

Henry G. Carpenter's Cold Spring House, Wickford, will carry on this summer despite priorities, shortages, restrictions, Henry tells us. It will greatly miss the colleges reunions, as Cold Spring House has been the rendezvous for many classes in the past 33 years.

J. William James reports a change of address from New Rochelle, N. Y., to Sandy Hook, Conn., Box 49, Route 1.

Daniel E. Geary, former Providence City Solicitor, is serving as a special attorney with the Public Lands Division, U. S. Department of Justice, in the Providence office.

Leon S. Gay, business man and one of Vermont's progressive citizens in various fields of endeavor, has been elected to the Board of Trustees of Middlebury College.

Dr. Peter Pineo Chase is the new managing editor of Rhode Island Medical Journal, official publication of the Rhode Island Medical Society.

Ensign John E. Barnicoat, U. S. N. R., son of John T. Barnicoat, Jr., was married last month in Snyder Memorial Chapel, Jacksonville, Fla., to Miss Jean Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Snyder of Patchogue, N. Y. Ensign Barnicoat is on duty at Jacksonville Naval Air Station.

1907

Of the 35th Reunion pleasant recollections will long remain. Fifty-five men signed the roll that Harold Miller carefully kept—a number exceeding the hopes of the most optimistic committee members. Bill White, Fred Auty, Dr. H. L. (Prep) Brown, H. B. (Sal) Keen and others who could not attend sent letters. . . . Rev. Levi S. Hoffman arrived in the middle of Monday afternoon and went home that midnight after giving us a characteristic talk and reading a poem at dinner. . . . Highlights were Harry Bruce's breakfast Saturday morning at which wives were present for the first time; Claude Branch's cocktail party at his house in Seekonk; straightforward talks by Vice-President Adams and Dean Arnold at Agawam Hunt; and the Commencement breakfast in which the wives also participated, and Rev. Oscar Maddaus was at his best. Joe Grover's quiz is an idea that should have a better test at next reunion; and some of us will not soon forget Merrick Streeter singing "Mother Dear, Brunonia" (that was the tune, anyway) in Burmese. To all hosts (we'd like to name them, but space forbids) an '07 thank you, and to all the Reunion Committee: Do it again in '47.

Lt. Commander Francis M. Anderson, U. S. N., is on duty in Washington, with intelligence as his special assignment. He's been in the Navy since 1938, being commissioned after a long career as legal adviser to the Department of State and as counsel for and legal adviser to various claim commissions. He came back last month for reunion, his first since 1922, and, in uniform, headed the Class group in the Commencement procession. His house is at 421 Whittier St., N. W., Washington.

Dr. C. D. McCann's son John is in his second year at Georgetown Medical School. There are two other boys in the McCann household in Brockton, Mass., and Fred, next to John in age, is already aiming to follow father to Brown.

Earle A. Harrington, packaging engineer with C. M. Wall & Son, Lexington, N. C., reports a change of mail address to Box 35, Blue Bell, Montgomery County, Pa., not far from Worcester, where Dr. Herbert B. Shearer lives.

Those We Mourn

► GEORGE SHELDON ELLIS, Ph.B., retired insurance executive, born Allegany, N. Y., June 28, 1865, the son of William H. H. and Sally Janet (Witherell) Ellis; died suddenly in Portland, Me., April 27, 1942. On the night after his death, the Brown Club of Western Maine, at a meeting which he himself intended to take part in, characterized him as "one of our most active and best beloved members," and cited "his high character, loyal devotion, friendly helpfulness, and Christian citizenship."

"Pop" Ellis everybody called him. A big, hearty man, his enthusiasms were his work, his family, his friends, his camera, and his university. His classmates long ago gave him the degree of Bachelor of Photography. He made a noteworthy record as Maine State manager of Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Hartford. He had friends everywhere from Maine to Florida. Of Brown he was unusually fond, and he seldom missed an opportunity to return for Commencement, to attend meetings of the Advisory Council of the Associated Alumni, and of the Western Maine Brown Club, of which he had been president.

"I've often noted," he wrote a week before his death, "that the harder one has to work to get his college degree, the more likely he is to prize the privilege in all the later years. I had less than a hundred dollars as I entered Brown to cover three years; and I cleared off all the debt one year after graduation." A farmer boy, he was nearly 21 years old when he entered Colgate Academy. He spent a year at Colgate, then changing over from Madison University, before coming to Brown as a Sophomore. On the Hill he was hammer-thrower on the track team (he once set a New England Intercollegiate record), and was a member of Beta Theta Pi. In June, 1894, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. For two years he taught in the Providence evening schools.

Before going into life insurance work he was principal and superintendent of schools in Somerset, Ky., Roselle, N. J., Canajoharie and Whitehall, N. Y., and a student of philosophy, history, English at summer sessions at University of Tennessee, Cornell, and Columbia.

On July 12, 1895, he married Mary Olive Tetlow, daughter of John Tetlow '64. Mrs. Ellis survives, with three daughters, Mrs. E. H. Davis, Mrs. J. E. Ranks, and Dorothy Ellis '29, Pembroke College, and four grandchildren. Ellis was a member of Phoenix Lodge of Masons, Whitehall, N. Y., and honorary member of Maine Life Underwriters' Association.

► HENRY JOSEPH HOYE, A.B., M.D., surgeon and superintendent of the Rhode Island State Home and School, born Providence, July 18, 1873, the son of Patrick F. and Elizabeth (Brennan) Hoyer; died in Providence, April 26, 1942, after a short illness. An able surgeon, an active and friendly citizen, he had a wide acquaintance in Providence and Rhode Island.

From Brown he went to the Medical School, the Johns Hopkins University, won his M.D. in 1899, was interne at Boston City Hospital, and studied abroad at the Universities of Leipzig, Vienna, Berlin and Prague. Commencing practice in Providence, he specialized in surgery. During his long and notable service he was visiting surgeon to Rhode Island Hospital, on the associate staffs of St. Joseph's and Homeopathic Hospitals, medical examiner for Selective Service, and visiting physician at Wallum Lake Sanatorium and St. Vincent de Paul Infant Asylum. He was a past president of Providence Medical Society, and was a member of Rhode Island Medical Society, American Medical Association, American College of Surgeons, New England Urological Society, and Johns Hopkins Surgical Society.

His first appointment as superintendent of the State Home and School became effective July 1, 1937. He was displaced in September, 1939, and reappointed last September.

On April 23, 1919, Dr. Hoyer married Abigail E. O'Sullivan, who survives, with a son, Henry J. Hoyer, Jr. '42, a daughter, Abigail E. Hoyer, student at Trinity College, Washington; a nephew, Paul S. Hoyer '36; and two brothers, Charles C. Hoyer, Westwood, Mass., and Francis Hoyer, Sherbrooke, Que. His fraternity was Zeta Psi.

► LEON ARVINE GOODALE, who died in Worcester, Mass., Sept. 17, 1941, was Worcester's Water Commissioner and by Federal appointment co-ordinator on water supply for Central Massachusetts.

Born in West Boylston, Mass., March 1, 1876, the son of Aaron Goodale, 4th, and Nellie G. (Merriam) Goodale, he was a special student at Brown for the year 1896-97. Joining the staff of civil engineers with the Metropolitan Water Board, he worked on Wachusett Reservoir, was engineering superintendent of Kendall Reservoir, engineer in charge of the survey for the new Quinapoxet Water Supply (Worcester), and carried out other major projects. Since 1929 he had been Water Commissioner of Worcester.

He was a member of the American and New England Water Works Associations, Worcester Historical Society, Worcester Society of Civil Engineers, Past Master, Boylston Lodge of Masons, and an honorary member of the United Spanish War Veterans. He gave the historical address at West Boylston's centennial, and wrote articles on local history as well as on subjects dealing with water supply.

On Oct. 29, 1902, he married Miss Elsie M. Phelps, who survives, with three daughters and a son.

► ARCHIBALD WALLACE DUNN, M.D., practising surgeon, born Sherman, Me., Feb. 25, 1883, the son of Robert and Edith C. (Perry) Dunn; died at Lenox Hill Hospital, New York, April 29, 1942, after a week's illness. He taught in Tsing Hua College, Peking, China, studied at Edinburgh, Scotland, and Budapest, Hungary, and served in the First World War as captain, Medical Corps, U. S. A.

After three years at Brown, he spent a year at the Medical School, Bowdoin College, and then transferred to University of Pennsylvania Medical School, from which he was graduated in 1912. Having served his internship at Samaritan Hospital, Philadelphia, he commenced practice as physician and surgeon in Auburn, Me. Post graduate study abroad followed. He remained two years in China, completed his war service, and opened offices in New York, where he had practised surgery for the past 22 years.

On June 27, 1916, he married Miss Clara Brehm, who survives, with two sisters and three brothers. He was a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons, and a member of St. Andrew's Society of New York, American Medical Association, and Psi Upsilon. A 32nd degree Mason, he was a charter member of the Peking Consistory.

► THOMAS RUSSELL SYMMES, Sc.B., civil engineer, born Stoneham, Mass., Sept. 7, 1887, the son of Thomas R. and Emma (Duncan) Symmes; died at Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford, Mass., March 31, 1942. Since 1919 he had been a civil engineer with the Massachusetts Department of Public Works.

In college he was on the swimming squad in Freshman year, and belonged to the Civil Engineering Society and Phi Gamma Delta. From Brown he returned to Stoneham to go to work in the town's public works department. He enlisted in the U. S. Navy during the First World War, and was a member of the American Legion. He also held membership in King Cyrus Lodge of Masons, Stoneham, and in the Canopy Club.

A bachelor, he is survived by his mother, a sister, Miss Helene Symmes, and a brother, Albert L. Symmes.

► LIEUT. GARDNER DUFFEE RANDALL, Naval aviator, was reported under date of April 26, 1942, as having been lost in action "somewhere in the Pacific." He left San Diego on March 30 for sea duty with the Naval air forces.

Born in New York, Jan. 10, 1915, the son of Wayne L. Randall '06 and Sallie T. (Gardner) Randall, he came to Brown from Lawrence Academy, Groton, Mass., and withdrew in 1935 to join the Naval Reserve. He became an aviation cadet, U.S.-N.R., Nov. 11, 1935, was a member of Bombing Squadron 6, U.S.S. Enterprise, in 1937, and piloted a Navy plane in the Army's Carolina maneuvers last fall. He was promoted to Lieutenant last March, shortly before leaving San Diego.

In college Gardner Randall was quiet, easy going, friendly. He had a fine smile, and he was a good mixer whenever he felt in the mood. He and his dog were great companions on the campus. His decision to leave college to become an aviator was the result of considerable deliberation and discussion. This writer recalls two friendly talks with Gardner about it, the points of view splitting on the attitude toward a college degree.

On Oct. 14, 1938, Lt. Randall married Miss Lorraine Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Russell, in Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Randall survives, with a son, Gardner H. Randall. He also leaves his parents. An uncle is Lory T. Gardner '17. ◀ ◀

Milton Hunt has added to his many civic duties and activities in Southport, Conn., a war job of membership on his local draft board.

New address for A. K. Westervelt is reported to be 103 Campus Ave., Ames, Ia.

The twin sons, Richard and Robert, of the late Louis P. Willemin, were graduated from Classical High School, Providence, last month. Richard has won a scholarship at Yale, and Robert has received a Harvard scholarship. Richard thinks that he will be a chemist; Robert leans toward engineering. "Both work in pharmacies after school; both were on the first teams in football and hockey this year," said the Evening Bulletin.

James Smalley, Jr., reports a change of address to 1445 South Salina St., Syracuse, N. Y.; Henry C. Damon is at 7-18 Morlot Ave., Fair Lawn, N. J.; Claude M. Wood is not far from the campus at 120 Waterman St.; and Harold E. Henrikson has moved to 733 Pleasant St., Route 3, Attleboro, Mass.

Your Secretary reports with regret the death of our classmate and friend, Rev. Harry Lees Oldfield, in Saylesville, R. I., May 19, 1942. Harry, visiting his mother after having seen his daughter, Louise, graduate from Pembroke College the day before, collapsed and died before aid could be given. He was pastor of the First Congregational Church, West Springfield, Mass., and for years the faithful secretary and energetic member of the Connecticut Valley Brown Club. To his family the sincere sympathy of the Class is extended.

George A. Round is on indefinite leave of absence from his regular job as chief automotive engineer, Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., to serve as consultant on fuels and lubricants for the Office of the Quartermaster General, Motor Transport Service. George is now at work in Washington.

1911

Robert F. Skillings is president of the Maine Credit Union League for 1942-43. Bob, accountant with the Portland School Department and secretary of the Brown Club of Western Maine, is an active member of the Portland City Employees Federal Credit Union and is editor of The Credit Unionist, "a publication of fact and fancy." Under title of "Three Million Amateur Bankers," The Reader's Digest for May told the story of credit unions saying that these unions "put faith in the borrower's character, and the losses are negligible."

1912

Francis E. Miles, real estate broker in Detroit for the past 27 years, reports his new mail address is 215 East Grand Blvd., in that city.

A. Collins Ladner, completing his 14th year on the Faculty of Denison University, Granville, O., is at present the only Brown graduate teaching at Denison. He is Assistant Professor of Mathematics and Engineering.

Charles R. Klebes, in charge of the provision business in the Detroit district for Swift & Co., writes his mail address as 17162 Monica, Detroit. His office is still at 3205 Barlum Tower, and golf continues his single hobby.

Judge Kenneth L. Nash was guest of Claude R. Branch '07 during part of '07's reunion; and he and H. W. (Spec) Paine, captain of the undefeated 1907 baseball team, talked about their baseball days and the high ability as coach and leader of the late "Doc" Sexton '93. . . . On the campus Commencement day we had glimpses of W. R. Burgess and his son, Julian '43; Arthur F. Buddington, whom the University properly singled out for an honorary degree; and Gerald Donovan and his friendly smile.

J. Taylor Wilson and Mrs. Wilson of Rumstick Rd., Barrington, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Howard Wilson, to Private William Kennett Saunders, U. S. A. '42, now stationed at Fort Warren, Wyo. Miss Wilson is a graduate of Low Heywood School, Stamford, Conn.

H. Edward Dow, veteran of the First World War in which he served as Lieutenant (j.g.), U. S. N., is back in the Navy again at Boston Navy Yard, but he doesn't tell what his present rank is. He's still a resident of Malden, Mass., his present address being 64 Glenwood St.

C. Louis Bagnall is in the Army now (he doesn't give us any rank), attached to the Office of the Quartermaster General in Washington, where his address is 3020 Albemarle St., N. W.

William A. Needham completed a three-year term of office as Providence City Solicitor on May 4, and has resumed the private practice of law with offices at 49 Westminster St., Providence.

Monroe E. Fagan's son, Monroe E. Fagan, Jr. '38, Ensign, U. S. N. R., was ready for active sea duty when the father wrote early in May. Monroe, Sr., continues on the jump as manager of the Coil Winding Machine Division, Universal Winding Co., Cranston, and he says "increasing volume of direct Army and Navy contracts prevents any possibility of the semi-annual trips formerly enjoyed, and the opportunities of keeping in touch with classmates this side of the Mississippi." He misses these meetings, and looks forward to the day when he will be on the road again to the Middle West.

Wilbur J. Phillips is president of Limoges China Co., Sebring, O., and is living at 3125 South Moreland Blvd., Shaker Heights, Cleveland.

L. S. McLeod, who received his A.M. with the Class in 1915, is the new safety director of the Green River Ordnance Plant, Stewart-Warner Corp., Dixon, Ill. The McLeod family (there's a daughter and a son) has already moved from Evanston to 1303 West Third St., Dixon.

1916

James A. Graham is on the sales staff of McDowell, Dimond & Co., 505 Hospital Trust Bldg., Providence. Stocks and bonds, of course, with which Jim has been identified since leaving college.

Alan D. Marcus, his father Samuel Marcus has reported from 114 East 90th St., New York, is "in the Army and is at present stationed at Fort Riley, Kan., Co. F, 27th Battalion, M. P. R. T. C."

W. Kenneth Anderson, advertising man, is living at 16 West 10th St., and Dr. Walter P. Gage's present New York address is 160 East 48th St. Other changes sent your correspondent in the past month are Edward G. Rundquist to 37-50 84th St., Jackson Heights, N. Y. (Ed's old stamping ground) and J. Arnold Yates, actuary, to Savings Bank Life Insurance Fund, State Office Bldg., Hartford, Conn.

Everett T. Lesure is manager of Topsall Dyeing & Finishing Co., and gets his mail at 249 Highland Ave., South Attleboro, Mass.

John G. Greene is founder and director of Charles Street Meeting House Society, Inc., as well as of the Charles Street Forum, Boston, where his address is 6 Chestnut St.

Harvey C. Stafford, accountant, sets down his address as 40 West 40th St., New York, and J. Marshall McGregor, attorney, may be found at 29 Main St., Taunton, Mass., during office hours.

Gardner C. Hudson, Mrs. Hudson and Gardner Kirk Hudson, II (named after his grandfather, the late Gardner K. Hudson '96), have changed their house address to 1717 Trevilian Way, Louisville, Ky., where Gardner is executive secretary of the Kentucky Railroad Association. Young Mr. Hudson, going on two years old, will be heading for Brown about 1959.

1928

Dean D. Smith is reported to be serving in the U. S. Navy, according to a card recently received from Cincinnati, O.

Samuel H. Levy is attorney with U. S. Department of Justice in Washington, but his preferred mail address is 8304 Draper Lane, Silver Spring, Md.

Earle F. Leach's son, Earle, is looking forward to playing in the Brown Band, a note from Mrs. Leach assures us. "He started taking piano lessons when 4 years, 10 months old. After about four years of piano lessons he expects to work with some other instrument. His choice now is a drum." Young Earle's brother, Edward Williston Leach, is in his third year, and is registered with Earle at the Brown Admissions Office.

Robert N. Downton is foreman of the Defense Cost Office, Bigelow Sanford Carpet Co., Thompsonville, Conn. He lives on South St., Hazardville, Conn. Speaking of piano players (as we were in the preceding paragraph), we hear Bob is one of the best in his section of Connecticut.

Paul Bonyng, Jr., with Bankers Trust Co., at 16 Wall St., New York, has removed to 22 Willow St., Brooklyn; Albert C. Lunden's new mail address is One Winding Rd., Elmsmere, N. Y.; and S. S. Friedman is now getting his mail at F St. at Seventh, Washington, D. C.

Oscar Carnevale of Hope Paper Box Co., Providence, is a newly elected director of New England Paper Box Manufacturers Association.

"Remember Bump Hadley? He's a radio commentator now, pouring baseball observations into the ether from Station WBZ," Bill Cunningham wrote one day last month in his column in the Boston Herald. Bump, resident of Lynn, where he has a growing family, is on the air daily, Monday through Saturday, at 6:05 p. m.

"Roy Randall, head football and baseball coach of the Haverford teams," said a special despatch to the New York Herald Tribune of May 23, "has left for a short vacation at Cape Cod, and unless he receives a naval commission will take charge of the summer term athletic program at the M in Line college."

Myron J. (Tut) Ruckstull's father, Fred-eric W. Ruckstull, nationally known sculptor, died at his home, 225 West 71st St., New York, last month. Creator of battle monuments and equestrian statues, his works adorn numerous public buildings and parks throughout the nation, and his life-size statue, "Evening," stands in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. He was a native of Alsace, France, and had lived in this country since he was a year old.

Franklin Gamwell has left Jackson Heights for Peekskill, N. Y., where he is manager of the Sears, Roebuck & Co. department store at 1035 Main St. His new house address is 1508 Riverview Ave., Peekskill.

John R. Van Nest, on the sales staff of American Brass Co., has moved from Wellesley, Mass., to 35 Colony Rd., New Haven, Conn. John was in the company's Boston office at 140 Federal St.

New addresses to note are Thomas W. Dennison, 9 Sutherland Rd., Montclair, N. J., and Malcolm D. McCulloch, 10 Glenwood St., Worcester, Mass.

First on the docket is the announcement that Jack Curtis is treasurer of the New York Brown Club and is holding out at 39 East 39th Street, New York City. On the heels of this announcement came two cards from Jack which indicate that he is now at Apt. No. 307, 1206 10th St., NW, Wash., D. C. Apparently he went down to become part of the WPB, and as he puts it himself, landed straight in the hospital. He is recovering, however, and says he is due back at work shortly. He also comments that he will be in the Army before long if he can, despite a lame hip.

Bob Booth in answer to our letter replies that he is busily engaged as a research chemist and that he can be reached at 61 Sterling Place, Springdale, Conn.

I have tried to check up on the local boys and heard from Davey Alper who says he is busy as a flour and food broker. He has three youngsters, whom he labels as two "prospects" and one "Pembroker". He is acting as a spotter two mornings a week and is generally keeping himself busy. His home is at 118 Arlington Rd., Chestnut Hill, Mass. He told me that Aaron Kurnitsky enlisted a few weeks ago and that Lenny Brown is expecting a second youngster in the near future.

George Cross, that golfer of parts, has left the gasoline business and is now an inspector in the assembly line, Machine Division, Norton Grinding Co., in Worcester.

He says he sold his gasoline business for obvious reasons and went into defense work. He also mentions that considerable sickness has been the lot of his family, but all is now well. He reports a family of three daughters who certainly keep a man humping these days. His address is 76 Hillcroft Ave., Worcester, Mass.

An interesting note came to hand from Hal Bauer whose present address is 108 Montrose Ave., Catonsville, Md. He states that he is a sanitary engineer in the U. S. Public Service and is attached to the National Institute of Health at Bethesda, Md. His comments are that he has been up in the air since last November, hardly knowing where he is from day to day. Apparently he was north fairly recently because he mentions seeing the Holy Cross game last year.

Hal Brown, one of the twins of Mass., reports his home address at 64 So. Lenox St., Worcester. He is Vice-President and General Manager of General Securities Corp. of Worcester, which conducts a finance business. He is married and has an eight-month-old daughter, Janet Ruth.

Dr. Luther A. Heydon's comments are brief and to the point, that he is a dentist and living at 78 Central Ave., Hackensack, N. J.

Don Allmon is now Lt. (j.g.) with the USNR and is stationed at Cape Henry, Va. where he is receiving instruction for a Watch Officer. As usual Don gets around and observes that while Norfolk is awful, life at the Cavalier in Virginia Beach is very comfortable.

Henry Cooper who is located at 209 Tidewater Drive, Longmeadow, R. I. writes that he is a teacher and Vice-Principal of the Samuel Gorton High School. He married on August 24, 1941 and is Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of Council of Civilian Defence of Warwick, R. I.

When Dick Dimond manages to write you get at least one laugh a sentence. He says he is a customer's man, which, he avers, is almost as extinct as the dodo. He is living at 137 East 60th St., NYC and is operating out of Smith Barney & Co., of 14 Wall St., NYC. He also says that for all Psi U's that Lem Heuser is some dentist. I wonder if Dick speaks from experience?

The Providence Sunday Journal in April carried a review of the book "Maryland Main and the Eastern Shore." The review was written by H. O. Werner who is a member of the faculty of Washington College, Chestertown, Md.

Dave Gathany finally retired from bachelorhood in February, and announcement of his marriage to Miss Alyce Axsen came through a short time ago. Dave and Mrs. Gathany are at home at 67 Lenox Ave., East Orange, N. J.

Rev. Ernest L. Allan reports a pastorate at the First Baptist Church, Narragansett, that has extended from Dec. 1, 1927, to this time. In one place like that for so long, he's certainly been able to give more time to his chosen occupation than most of us.

HAL CARVER

In the Japanese Net

INTERNED by the Japanese in Manila are at least two Brown graduates -- Lt. John J. Bookman '35, Medical Corps, U. S. N., and Charles H. Whitaker '33, American Vice Consul. There is also a possibility that Lt. Henry W. Corp '07, U. S. A., and George E. Burnham '07, manager of Pampanga Sugar Plantations, Pampanga Province, have also been caught in the Japanese net.

With Whitaker, who went to the Philippines last July, are his wife, the former Harriet Randall of Rumford, and their two small children. Whitaker studied at Harvard and at Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts College before going into the consular service. He had his first assignment in Havana. In Manila he was doing duty as Vice Consul and assistant to the American Trade Commission.

Lt. Bookman's family in New York received word on May 12 that Lt. Bookman was missing "in the Manila Bay area, presumably a prisoner of war." Messrs. Corp and Burnham have been in the Philippines most of the years since they left Brown.

call, and has done a great many things and wandered over much of this country since 1930. He went to the Traveler from the Providence Journal, where his by-line stories were always first grade.

Ernest G. Hapgood, Jr., is southern representative of Voorhie-Tiebout Co., Red Hook, N. Y., manufacturers and distributors of soap dispensers and the soap to go into them. "Am covering all southeastern states and a few others to boot," Ernie wrote late in April, and then added: "Expect to be in the service soon."

Pembroke's Golden Year ◀ ◀

BY MARY LOUISE RECORD

▶ ▶ PEMBROKE'S 50 years of service to the higher education of women was celebrated with solemnity, with jollity and with good fellowship as more than 1000 alumnae from near and far returned to the campus on May 15 and 16 to participate in the Semi-centennial observance. Nearly all of the 48 classes held official reunions and every class was represented by at least one member. Attendance at all events of the weekend greatly exceeded all expectations.

Sharing the spotlight in the celebration program were two moments—the academic convocation in the First Baptist Meeting House, when honorary degrees were conferred upon five distinguished women—two of them alumnae—, and the announcement that the alumnae drive for $125,000 had gone "over the top" by more than a thousand dollars.

Festivities started on Friday night as more than 300 graduates attended the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association in the Crystal Room of Alumnae Hall. Ollie A. Randall '12, President of the Association, conducted the business meeting at which a revision of by-laws of the Constitution was accepted.

During the evening four alumnae, distinguished in the field of education, participated in a panel discussion on "Education for Women in the Next Fifty Years." Weighing the pros and cons of future educational policies were Grace M. Sherwood '06, librarian of the State Library of Rhode Island, leader of the panel; Louise Schultz Boas '07, professor of English at Wheaton College, Norton, Mass.; Katharine Everett Gilbert '08, professor of philosophy at Duke University; and May Hall James '09, professor of social sciences at New Haven State Teachers College.

▶ In the historic Meeting House Saturday morning, national, state and city officials, Rhode Island educators, University Faculty and Corporation, members of the Rhode Island Society for the Collegiate Education of Women, and friends of the College joined alumnae and students to commemorate in solemn convocation Pembroke's half-century milestone.

After an academic procession the program opened with the singing of the National Anthem and the invocation delivered by Rev. Arthur L. Washburn, Chaplain of the University. Addresses were given by Dr. Rufus M. Jones, professor of philosophy emeritus of Haverford College and national chairman of the American Friends Service Committee for European Relief, President Wriston and Dean Morriss. The greetings of the state of Rhode Island were brought by Attorney General John H. Nolan.

Marking the first time that the University has awarded honorary degrees at a Pembroke event, President Wriston, on behalf of the Board of Fellows, conferred the following degrees:

Doctor of Music—Nadia Boulanger, eminent French composer, conductor and teacher.

Doctor of Letters—Margaret Bingham Stillwell '09, noted authority on incunabula and curator of the Annmary Brown Memorial.

Doctor of Letters—Katharine Everett Gilbert '08, professor of philosophy at Duke University.

Doctor of Science—Katharine Burr Blodgett, scientific research physicist with the General Electric Company and discoverer of the method for making glass invisible.

Doctor of Laws—Katharine Elizabeth McBride, dean of Radcliffe College and president-elect of Bryn Mawr College.

During the program "Gloria Patri" was sung by the Pembroke Glee Club under the direction of William Dinneen of the Brown Music Department, who presided at the organ at the convocation.

▶ NOONTIME found classes gathering for reunion luncheons, while degree recipients and other honored guests were entertained by the College at a luncheon in Metcalf Hall. Class reunions continued throughout the afternoon and the weekend was climaxed Saturday evening when nearly 800 attended the Fiftieth Anniversary supper on the campus. Originally planned for 400 in the auditorium of Alumnae Hall, the supper was served to 775 in the living rooms and dining rooms of Miller and Metcalf Halls, the Commons Room, Early American Room and the Student Dining Room in Alumnae Hall.

The after-dinner program, held in the auditorium, included short addresses by Miss Randall, Mary Emma Woolley '94, Bertha Clark Damon '05, Drusilla Flather Riley '17 and Jean C. Bauer '33. Dean Morriss served as toastmistress.

Anna Canada Swain '11, chairman of the semicentennial gift fund, prepared a novel dramatic announcement of the final result of the drive. Each class agent or representative appeared from behind the stage curtains and announced her class total. After each class and club had reported individually, the curtains were drawn to reveal the agents as a group assembled on the stage, the audience still uncertain as to the success of the campaign.

Then 10 members of the class of 1942 took their places, one by one, at the front of the stage, each carrying a placard on which there was a single digit, a dollar sign or a decimal point. Only when the last one had taken her place was the grand total—$126,174—revealed. President Wriston accepted the gift on behalf of the University.

Under the direction of Amy Spencer Cappelli '25, a large group of alumnae, students and guests presented "Smilestones," the history of Pembroke in skits and music. The production was based on information obtained from old manuscripts and letters and from anecdotes and stories told by various alumnae.

Death

♦ ISABELLE SCOTT BOLLARD '09 of Montclair, N. J., who long had been active in civic and welfare work, died at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center on May 21, after a brief illness.

Mrs. Bollard, wife of Mr. Ralph H. Bollard, a partner in the investment banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co. of New York, was born in Jersey City. Later the family moved to Providence and she prepared for College at Hope High School.

As an undergraduate she was chairman of the first Sophomore Masque Committee, a member of the Executive Board of Komians, receiver of the trowel and Commencement Marshal in her junior year, and Senior Class President.

She had been a resident of Montclair for the last 17 years, and was an organizer and chairman of the Home Town Committee, a women's group formed there recently to maintain contact with Montclair men serving in the armed forces throughout the world. She was a former trustee of the Family Welfare Society and the Children's Home Association, both of Montclair.

Mrs. Bollard had served as a member of a committee that organized and operated the Women's Workroom, a unit providing remunerative employment for indigent women during the depression. She was an organizer and first chairman of the finance committee of the Montclair Maternal Health Association.

At her death, she was a member of the Advisory Committee on Pembroke College in Brown University, and created the fictitious character, Carrie Tower, that played an important part in the raising of a fund of $125,000 for the college.

Mrs. Bollard was a member of the Cosmopolitan Club of New York and an active member of the Brown Alumnae Club of New York.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a son by a former marriage, Ensign John M. Crane, U. S. N.; two step-daughters, Mrs. Bollard Roemer and Miss Katherine Bollard, both of Montclair, and a sister, Mrs. J. Morgan Holloway of Jersey City. ♦ ♦

Terrace Cafe

Adjoining the Garden Restaurant, this summer feature at the Biltmore offers an opportunity for dinner or supper out-of-doors with all the pleasant freedom of a sidewalk cafe. You'll enjoy the Terrace Cafe this summer when you have occasion to visit Providence and to renew acquaintance with this hotel.

Other rooms you will enjoy are the Town Room, the Bacchante and the Falstaff Room — all air-conditioned, of course.
