For Further Study

►► THE EXPERIMENT seems to be a popular one. We've already had a good response to our publication in the last issue of two reading lists "for further study," and the feature will continue. Members of the Brown University Faculty have made selections in their fields of books which will be helpful to alumni who wish to carry on or resume a serious interest developed in college. This recommended reading will include new books and others of continuing value, compiled under the general direction of Prof. I. J. Kapstein '25, of our own Board of Editors.

We have been pleased at the reception of the project not only by Brown men but by others. The Brown News Bureau sent our first lists to a selected list of libraries, where in many instances they have been posted as recommendations from our Faculty. The John Hay Library each month will set aside the books named, and the University Bookstore also plans exhibits and will assist in the purchase of the works.

We renew our invitation to tell us of what lists you want. This month the selections are in Music and Biology:

BIOLOGY

- What Is Life? Erwin Schrödinger; Macmillan, 1946. A discussion from the point of view of modern science. Not easy reading, but well worth a try.
- Human Destiny.* P. LeCompte DeNöuy; Longman, Green, 1947. A scientist tries his hand at speculation.
- Insects and Human Welfare.* C. T. Brues; Harvard University Press, 1947. Highly readable; man versus his greatest competition.
- Picturing Miracles of Plant and Animal Life.* A. C. Pillsbury; Lippincott, 1937. Entertaining guide-book for the amateur photographer, with striking pictures.
- Black Widow: America's Most Poisonous Spider.* R. W. Thorp and W. D. Woodson; University of North Carolina Press. Vivid, popular natural history.
- Beneath the Surface: The Cycle of River Life.* Towner Coston, Harry Ernest; Scribner's 1938. Plants and animals of fresh-water life; written from the point of view of both the scientist and the sportsman.
- Ourselves Unborn: An Embryologist's Essay on Man.* G. W. Corner; Yale University Press, 1944. Well-written discussion of man's pre-natal life.
- Naturalist at Large.* T. Barbour; Little, Brown, 1943. Autobiographical account by one of America's great naturalists.

MUSIC

- Koussevitzky. Moses Smith; Allen, Towne & Smith, 1946. Dr. Koussevitzky went to court and got an injunction against this book. Now on the counters again, it appears to be the closest to an objective treatment of a glamorous life and career available to us.
- Adventures of a Ballad-Hunter.* John A. Lomax; Macmillan, 1947. America's most famous discoverer of the songs of the people (100,000 now on records in the Library of Congress, where Duncan Emrich '32 is Chief of the Archive of American Song) writes of his travels and experiences.

Hearing Music: The Art of Active Listening. Theodore M. Finney; Harcourt, Brace, 1941. There are a number of books on music for the beginning listener to concert music. This one is based on the experience of a recognized college teacher who does not avoid the problems in training the ear but states that "it is a mistake to make the beginner feel that his ignorance of the technical vocabulary of music is a handicap." Many compositions are discussed thoroughly and entertainingly.

Music in Western Civilization. Paul H. Lang; W. W. Norton, 1941. Extensive, as is the subject, but brilliantly written and arranged. Art, Literature, and Politics are handled with the same ease as Music. Single chapters can be enjoyed as separate essays.

Florestan: The Life and Work of Robert Schumann. Robert Haven Schaufliker; Henry Holt, 1945. Schumann is now the subject of a major Hollywood film. The music fares well in it, but those interested in the life and career might better read Schaufliker, who is a generally trustworthy enthusiast.

Mozart, His Character, His Work. Alfred Einstein; Oxford Press, 1945. Alfred

Einstein is one of the most distinguished musical scholars of our time. He has written about Mozart the Man and the Musician and devoted chapters to the various types of composition—the Symphonies, the Piano Concerti, the Operas, Divertimenti, and so on. Not often does one encounter such a balance of fact, complete understanding and literary felicity.

Our New Music. Aaron Copland; Whittlessey House, 1941. Sometimes composers are not adept writers and speakers. But

A landmark is leaving as the wreckers tear down Providence's oldest theatre. It was opened in 1878, and it has had successively such names as Low's Grand Opera House, Gaiety Opera House, Keith's Theatre, Victory Theatre, and The Empire. It was famous for many years as the first home of the Albee Stock Company. Most Brown men must remember it.

While the destruction was in the process, Prof. Leslie Allen Jones took a crew from Sock and Buskin to the theatre to salvage some of the Keith epics. These are now in the growing collection of old-time Providence theatrical souvenirs housed in the Green Room of the Fannee House Theatre at Brown.

TRANSFERS FROM THE VETERANS COLLEGE. 194 men were welcomed to the regular undergraduate College (and one woman to Pembroke) when the second semester started in February. The largest group thus shifted since the Veterans College came into existence in September, 1946, the men had earned their right to transfer on their academic record. In all, 467 students have been shifted on the basis of quality grades and accumulated academic credit since the first group a year ago.

The Veterans College has attracted wide attention in higher education circles as an experiment designed to give veterans who lack the usual entrance credits a chance to prove they can handle work of college level. Newly admitted this term to the Veterans College are 81 more men.

A Fannee House reception to the February transfers provided not only a welcome but orientation at the opening of the term. Pictured informally during the evening were: James A. Cunningham, Jr., Director of the Veterans College; Gustav R. Johnson '51, John Ladd Smith '50, and Vice-President Bruce M. Bigelow, principal speaker of the evening.

▶ ▶ A Story of Brown in Three Tenses

▶ ▶ THE BIGGEST and, many feel, the best reunion apart from Commencement is the annual dinner of Brown alumni of New York and New Jersey. For 80 years these evenings have brought together their legions of Brunonians to visit with old friends and to hear the news from College Hill. It is a heart-pleasing tradition, which the 1948 dinner on March 18 at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City further enhanced. It was notable, too, that so many of the recent college generations were on hand, as well as the elders of whom Judge N. S. Dike '85 was senior.

The program at the head table had been interestingly contrived so that the three principals dealt in three tenses: Vice-President Bruce M. Bigelow '24 dealt engagingly with "Brown Yesterday." Dr. Robert W. Kenny '25, Dean of the College, provided an amusing survey of "Brown Today" with the point and pungency he employs. In speaking of "Brown Tomorrow," President Henry M. Wriston first set the stage of the educational world, with particular controverting reference to the findings of the President's Commission on Higher Education ("the Zook Report"). It was a brief, searching analysis of the liberal arts college in the light of its challenges. The amenities at the head table were dealt with by H. Linus Travers '27 of Boston, Vice-President of the Yankee Network, a toastmaster who practices his art with wit, grace, and control. The program was opened by Robert C. Litchfield '23, President of the Brown University Club in New York.

▶ THE HISTORIAN in Dr. Bigelow was happily employed for his talk of "Brown Yesterday," and he turned to three great figures from the chronicle of Brown: the first President, the first member of the Faculty, and one of the first students, Dr. Samuel Drowne whose diary has lately come to the University. It was full of human interest and humor. He also had a striking survey of college costs from Colonial days to the present:

"Records show that even in Colonial days, the Brown student was always having his financial troubles in spite of what appeared to be unbelievably low rates," he said. "Before the Revolution tuition was $12 a year and room rent $5 a year. Board in Commons was $1 a week. Incidentally, the room then used for Commons is now the office of the Dean of the University.

"Parenthetically, I may say that wars have always worked a hardship on colleges and college students, and the history of Brown demonstrates this in a most striking way. Every major war has brought about the necessity of a rise in tuition fees. Before the Revolution tuition was $12 a year, and after the Revolution it was changed to $16, a rise of 33⅓%. Before the Civil War the annual tuition fee was $36. During the war it was forced up to $50, five years after the war it went up to $75 and in seven more years to $100." In conclusion Dr. Bigelow noted that "just prior to World War I tuition was $175. It was up to $200 in 1919 and then came a rise of $50 every other year—from $200 to $250 to $300 to $350 in 1925. This was just double the tuition charge of 1917. At present it is $500 for the same basic service offered in Colonial days. No one dares predict the future."

▶ TOASTMASTER TRAVERS countered with some cost figures of his own. When University Hall was built, he said, it cost only $9340, with the President's House thrown in. There was also the expense of good West Indian rum at 85c a gallon, for the workmen whenever a floor was completed. "Progress," he quoted from the record, "was much more rapid than had been expected."

Travers felt he should make reference to athletics, not wishing to break any precedents. He wanted seriously to concur with the sentiment of the Chicago columnist who found that "in these days when football coaches jump from college to college as though on pogo sticks, it was refreshing to have the Brown Coach visit Yale, discuss matters, and yet decide to be consistent with the tradition of loyalty at Brown and remain there." This compliment to Rip Engle drew warm applause.

"Brown," said Dean Kenny, "is not the college you knew, you like, or we desire." It was too big, but by 1951 it would be just under 2000, he predicted. Of course, it was difficult to anticipate the effect of U.M.T. on the college population of the country. This year 71% of the undergraduates (2150) were veterans, while there had been 80% veterans last year; the non-veterans were mostly in the Freshman Class.

Most recent of all happenings had been the end of the annual "tong war." The Hip Sings and the On Leongs had all pledged their delegations. He felt that, in main, they had picked a more serious, scholarly type of boy. One house had pledged a delegation of Freshmen whose academic standing at the moment was a full grade higher than that of the active chapter. He would be interested in seeing which group influenced which from here on. "It isn't actually insisted that the houses be intellectual today," he remarked, wryly, "but it is thought they should not be anti-intellectual."

▶ EVERY GREAT WAR has been followed by reaction, President Wriston told the alumni at the dinner. The vast financial, physical, and moral effort gives way to a disillusionment which is all the keener after the spiritual exaltation attending sacrifice in a great cause. And especially when the victory appears to be futile, frustration over peace is normal, the ordinary experience. Ideals, non-material things are harshly judged. It is so with education. There, too, the cry is to do something.

The five-volume Report of the President's Commission on Education is an attempt to meet this demand. It is conceived in an atmosphere of "crisis," which alone would make it suspect. When danger should evoke prudence, it is instead a surrender to fear. It is dominated by fear—fear of Russia, fear of the atom, and fear of ourselves—and fear makes one frantic. And so, in urging people to "do something," the Report says: "It will help little . . . to have our colleges and universities turn out a generation of impractical visionaries."

BROWN ALUMNI MONTHLY

A time of crisis, said Dr. Wriston, is never a good time to make long-range plans. Crisis generates a mood which grasps for expedients, ignoring good perspective. And when the sense of crisis approximates panic, the programs are sure to be unwise. Miracles are called for, not education—which is a slow and indirect attack. The call is also for speed—"do it quickly." The Report says that we must "find ways quickly of making the understanding and vision of our most farsighted and sensitive citizens the common possession of all our people." Apparently the deadline is next Tuesday, President Wriston remarked.

Moreover, the Report insists that education act with social purpose: "Teaching and learning must be invested with public purpose." Some people have never read the Brown Charter or other charters, Dr. Wriston surmised. And we must not only do something quickly but do it directly: "Effective democratic education," says the Report, "will deal directly with current problems." There is no argument, no evidence, no experience—just pathetic wishfulness.

▶ IT IS LIKE BARNABY'S fairy godfather, Mr. O'Malley, picking up a hammer "to smash the atom," said President Wriston. "Science is wonderful—it says so—but some things it cannot do directly. There is such a thing as a catalyst—a mediator in chemical reactions. So, in setting off the most devious of all reactions, those in the human mind, the whole process of education constitutes an indirect attack on issues. But, with Mr. O'Malley's hammer-technique, legislation asks for more and better State universities and community colleges in Oskaloosa, Penn Yan, and way stations. It is off chasing 'quick, direct, tangible, public results.'"

If we do not follow along with the Report and its panic demands, Dr. Wriston said, we are accused of escaping into an Ivory Tower, "as though that were the only alternative to the Agora." How about the Church, the family, and the field? Don't let us be confused by the false alternatives of semantics, he urged, for the Ivory Tower provides strength. What if the student can be withdrawn there for a moment? His experiences are real. Moreover, some shelter is essential, and a college must shield its students from some storms. The Greek meaning of "school" was "leisure." And in leisure the student cultivates his powers so that he may meet tensions with an alert mind, calm spirit, and a courageous heart. To study, you had better withdraw from Times Square, Fifth Avenue at 42nd St., and the Grand Central.

"The colleges," Dr. Wriston continued, "are the servants of tomorrow, not of today. Liberal education has not been extemporized; it was developed over the centuries. In time of calm, the colleges have prepared for crisis. We suspended much in the period of crisis, but liberal education survives because it was not jerry-built by some commission scared by the atomic bomb or Russia. It is a mature concept, not hasty, not panicky, not transient.

"How did the fruits of education show up in crisis? The colleges met the test. Did we lose the war? Mistakes were made, but the greatest have been made in Moscow—miscalculations against all experience and against all data. Never did society so reorganize as ours with such speed and do so well as in winning the war. We were adaptable, resourceful, imaginative. In time of crisis, the program shaped in calm worked amazingly; the evidence of the Ivory Tower was conspicuous by its absence.

"One cannot make peace after fighting a war. One is out of the mood. And amid new alarms and frustrations, it is no time to make a change in educational philosophy, especially when it has just met the test. Why tear up the structure which has proven itself? The peace is not yet lost; the worst predictions have not come to pass. We must take strength from the past. We must call up again our intelligence, faith, and courage. We must continue with steadiness and serenity till the storm abates and then, in calm, set our course.

"Brown will meet the new and fiercer public competition. Many forms of education will be legitimate, but from intelligent people will always come the demand for the liberal arts, based on the experience of the past and unchanging human nature. Wisdom dies with each generation, and must be reborn anew. But we build on the great disciplines of the past to make the great decisions of the world for the future."

At the head table, in addition to the speakers, were: Thomas B. Appleget '17, Trustee; Dean Samuel T. Arnold '13, who was greeted with a special warmth, it seemed to us; Dr. W. Randolph Burgess '12, Fellow; Edward J. Gorman '23, General Chairman of the Dinner Committee; Robert O. Loosley, Secretary; C. Douglas Mercer '06, Trustee; Arthur W. Packard '25, Trustee; Dr. Charles C. Tillinghast '06, Trustee. Serving under Gorman were Joseph N. Micucci '31, in charge of arrangements; Howard F. Weeks '25, in charge of promotion; and William L. Dewart '20, Austin N. Volk '41, and John B. Appelgate '23, attendance.

Is That Song of Yours Ready?

A. R. Coolidge

▶ ▶ THE DEADLINE approaches for filing the new Brown songs in competition for $200 prize money. All entries must be in the Office of the Associated Alumni, Brown University, Providence 12, R. I., by May 1, 1948.

The response to date has been good, according to Prof. Arlan R. Coolidge, chairman of the Alumni Song Committee. But, for the benefit of writers and composers still at work, he asks us to repeat the conditions of the contest, open to any student of Brown University, past or present:

"The text must be original and have special Brown appeal. Words with romantic or historical interest are preferred. The music also must be original, rhythmic, distinctly melodic, suitable for group singing and not necessarily a marching song. Contestants are asked to present a harmonized version of their songs in an arrangement for voice and piano. The composer's name should not appear on the manuscript but should be placed in an accompanying sealed envelope bearing on its face some distinguishing pseudonym. The words 'Song Contest' should appear prominently on the cover."

The results will be made public at the earliest opportunity but not later than Commencement in June of this year. Brown University reserves the rights to control reproduction and first performances of the winning song or songs.

From Lincoln Downs Charity Week

▶ THE BURRILLVILLE Racing Association, which operates Lincoln Downs track, conducted a charity race week last October. Allotments of the $37,760 proceeds were made in March, including $5000 to the Providence College Gymnasium Fund, $1000 for the Brown University Building Fund, and $500 for the War Memorial Fund of R. I. State College.

Winterich Signed ◀

JOHN T. WINTERICH '12: Author and editor will prove a drawing card for the "Reunion of Reunions" at Brown in June.

▶▶ JOHN T. WINTERICH '12, whose "Another Day, Another Dollar" provided good, sound amusement to many a Brunonian and the public in general, will be a featured speaker at the annual Alumni Dinner June 18, the committee in charge announces. This now well-established "reunion of reunions" is the opening event of the 1948 Commencement Weekend. The engagement of Mr. Winterich is in line with the committee's policy of arranging a program that will be informal and light-hearted.

President Wriston will be the other principal speaker, while the mantle of toastmaster falls congenially on the shoulders of Thomas B. Appleget '17, Vice-President of the Rockefeller Foundation. Mr. Appleget has done the honors gaily on many a Brunonian occasion, most recently as master of ceremonies at the annual dinner of the Brown Engineering Association in New York.

The dinner, as previously noted, will be held this year in the refectory of Andrews Hall, the new Pembroke dormitory, where 600 diners can be accommodated. This restriction on numbers has prompted some early reservations, including blocks for a few of the major reunion classes. The tickets are attractively priced at $4.00, since some of the expense of other years in the Marvel Gym has been obviated by the move to the new scene.

▶ "ANOTHER DAY, Another Dollar" has served to remind the public of the humor of the versatile man-about-books, John Winterich. It embodies his recollections, as you know, of the various jobs he took and often held as a boy in Providence and as a student at Brown. The idea of writing the book came to him when, at the beginning of his service in World War II, he was confronted by an Army form which called for a "complete" list of his civilian occupations. One memory leading to another, the result was a blithe catalogue of such money-making adventures as house-to-house salesman, meter-reader for the Providence Gas Company, trolley-car conductor for the R. I. Company, census-taker of horses and people, and valued employee of the cleaning room of the Providence Public Market.

Whatever his distinction in the Second World War, it is likely that the first was more fun for John Winterich. He was a member of that talented crew which staffed the original Stars and Stripes and took a flyer with the Home Sector in 1919 with Winterich as editor. He moved over to become managing editor of the American Legion Weekly in 1920 and editor of the American Legion Magazine, its successor, in 1926.

The credentials, as you see, are becoming more serious. "A Primer of Book Collecting" showed him in a more scholarly role in 1927, with several other works to follow in the realm of the bibliophile which stress the charm and intoxication of the hobby rather than the pedantry, for all his knowledge of it. He edited The Colophon and is an associate editor of The New Colophon, continuing to write for the New Yorker as a staff member, and the masthead of the Saturday Review carries his name as contributing editor. Of late he has thrown himself heart and soul into a Cause as President of the Society for the Retardation of Revolving Doors. In all else, he has been effective.

▶ OTHER HEADLINERS booked for the Reunion of Reunions include Earl P. Perkins '12 at the piano and Earl M. Pearce '17, song-leader. It is likely that a new prize-winning Brown song will be introduced during the evening.

Robert H. Goff '24, Chairman of the committee, has set a record for completing major arrangements early. John W. Moore '16 has accepted the post of Treasurer for dinner committee, and it is not too early to send reservations to him at Room 1124, Industrial Trust Building, Providence. Checks should be made payable to John W. Moore, Treasurer. The committee in charge has been fully constituted with the appointment by Mr. Goff of his aides: John A. Gammons '98, Lewis S. Milner '02, Samuel Temkin '19, W. Chesley Worthington '23, William B. McCormick '23, Paul F. Gleeson '32, William J. Gilbane '33, Foster B. Davis, Jr., '39, William Davis, Superintendent of the Brown Dining Rooms, and Messrs. Pearce and Perkins. Mr. Gleeson is in charge of publicity, Mr. Gilbane in charge of arrangements, and Mr. Moore of tickets.

When Mr. Winterich heard that he was going to be a speaker at the Alumni Dinner, he wrote Chairman Goff a few words of warning: "Don't let the tickets get in the hands of speculators." We, too, think it's going to be a popular evening. ◀

Meiklejohn Lectures in May

▶ DR. ALEXANDER MEIKLEJOHN '93 will return to the Brown campus for a series of three lectures on May 11th, 13th, and 17th, Dean Samuel T. Arnold announced this month. It will be a treat to have this stimulating speaker back on College Hill.

Full details about the lectures, including the designation of the hall and the exact title, remain to be made public. However, it is believed that his thoughts arise from his short book, recently completed, on "Free Speech and Justice Holmes," in which Dr. Meiklejohn discusses critically the Clear and Present Danger theory, "as advocated by Holmes and explained by our good alumnus, Zach Chafee (Prof. Z. Chafee Jr. '07)." Dr. Meiklejohn gave the argument in three lectures at the University of Chicago and at the Yale Law School, but he feels it particularly appropriate to develop his ideas at Brown "not only because it is my own college, but also because the American tradition of Free Speech has its roots in the home of Roger Williams."

"The problems arising out of that tradition," he added in his letter to Dean Arnold accepting the Brown invitation, "are, I think, our most significant question just now." ◀

When Gray Iron Founders Met

▶ EARL H. BRADLEY '28, Vice-President and General Manager of Builders Iron Foundry in Providence, was made Vice-Chairman of the New England Management Group of Gray Iron Founders' Society at its organization meeting late in March. The Boston gathering was the largest assembly of gray iron foundry executives in the history of New England. ◀

Agreement for 8 ◀

▶▶ EIGHT MAJOR EASTERN COLLEGES have entered into a compact designed to relieve the successful candidate for admission from the necessity of making a hasty judgment of the educational opportunities open to him. Under the agreement, the prospective freshman will have until June 15, of the year of entrance, to accept admission or financial aid, irrespective of when he receives notification of his admission. The colleges signing the agreement are Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Yale.

Commenting on the Ivy Group Admission agreement, Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow, Vice-President of Brown University said, "Brown is glad to continue to co-operate with the other colleges of the Ivy Group in regard to admission and scholarship aid policies. Our practice at Brown has been to make the bulk of admission decisions after the applicants have taken the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test. The majority of the students write this examination in April. Scholarship decisions at Brown are usually made in May after the Board of Admission has made its selections. Brown has not in the past required a deposit when an applicant is accepted for admission or when he is offered scholarship aid; and such a deposit will not be required this year. Heretofore, most students have notified the colleges of their choice before June 15, and they will want to do so in the future. The main point of the agreement is that there is no obligation on the part of the student to do so before that date."

The dates for notifying successful candidates that their applications for admission have been accepted have varied in the past, among the eight colleges, from early April to late May. Under that practice acceptance of admission was required regardless of whether or not the candidate had received the decision of all the colleges to which he had applied for admission.

▶ THE NEW AGREEMENT was drafted at a recent conference of admission and scholarship representatives of the eight institutions held at Princeton, and subsequently was ratified by the individual Admissions and Scholarship Committees. It was announced simultaneously on March 8.

The conference was called because of the considerable divergence in notification dates and procedures which has tended to confuse candidates for admission and, in some instances, has led to unfortunate competitive activity. Most of the conference discussion dealt with admission and scholarship problems. Areas of discussion for future meetings include: use of college entrance board examinations; the criterion for renewal or retention of scholarships, and personnel organizations. It is planned to hold similar meetings annually.

An exchange of information showed that the average economical Freshman budget at these institutions runs from $1,400 to $1,600. All the representatives reported a budget inflation of 30 per cent since 1940. The eight institutions use three forms of financial aid in the solution of undergraduate problems: scholarships, loans and employment opportunities. It was found that administrative procedures in this field are at wide variance.

The number of recipients approved for financial aid at the eight institutions ranges from 25 per cent to 35 per cent, and the average budget deficit is in the neighborhood of full tuition. Scholarship awards are available in amounts ranging from $100 to $1,400 provided from general and endowed funds. Some institutions reported a system of long-term loans with a maximum up to $1,200 for four years. Four of the group reported that their institutions required a fee on acceptance; the others said they simply urged a prompt reply.

▶ THIS AGREEMENT, as finally approved by the different Admissions and Scholarship Committees states: "The institutions listed below have, by common agreement, bound themselves not to require any candidate admitted as a Freshman to give notice before June 15, 1948, of his decision to attend one of these institutions or to accept financial aid from it."

An explanatory paragraph states that the decision was reached in order to give candidates an opportunity to consider all available opportunities without undue pressure. It is emphasized that whenever a student can reach a decision before the June 15 date, he may with propriety notify the institution.

Those attending the conference at Princeton were Dr. Bruce M. Bigelow, Vice-President of Brown University; Nicholas M. McKnight, Associate Dean of Columbia University; Herbert Williams, Director of Admissions, Cornell University; Francis J. A. Neef, Director, Personnel Bureau, Dartmouth College; Henry S. Dyer, Assistant to the Dean, Harvard University; Gene D. Gisburne, Assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs, University of Pennsylvania; Francis R. B. Godolphin, Dean of the College, Princeton University; Edward S. Noyes, Chairman, Board of Admissions, Yale University; and Henry Chauncey, Director, Educational Testing Service.

THE ANSWER: Last month we published, with due warning, a "Crossword for Bruno." If you found it a sticker, here is the solution provided by Author John Hutchins Cady '03.

March 13, putting the reporter down as "the key man at the base of an inverted pyramid supporting the whole world of ideological thought and trend, with the future of the world hanging in the balance."

"Twenty-five years ago, politics, crime, and the general run of fire, burglary, and miscellaneous news made up most of the daily items on a city editor's assignment book," Lister told his interviewer, Charles W. Duke. "Today, labor, science, economics, government, and international affairs, philosophy, education—your modern reporter has to be a jack-of-all-trades if he wants to stick."

College men in journalism? "My observation has been that college graduates have a dangerous tendency to regard their education as finished once their sheepskin is in their hand." He blames this on "a subconscious disposition, when college is over, to go through a mental process of dusting off one's hands and thinking: 'Now that's over. When do I start making money?' . . . The truth is that no one ever had enough education to be a good newspaperman."

Editor & Publisher paid high compliments to Mr. Lister's methods and results. ◀

A Cue from Homer ◀

▶▶ REPORTING to Brown alumni for the first time since he accepted the chairmanship of the Student Housing Board, Arthur B. Homer '17 made a preliminary statement March 27 to describe the present work of the board, its inquiry into the building program, and some early conclusions. In a letter sent to all alumni, he expresses the belief that the second phase of the Housing and Development Campaign will not be undertaken until the autumn of 1948. He therefore urges wide and wholehearted support of the Brown Alumni Fund undertaking for this spring.

"The Student Housing Board and its various Committees," Mr. Homer wrote, "have been working steadily for the last three months in an attempt to reappraise the quadrangle and refectory proposal in terms of the numerous uncertainties that face all construction projects today. The Board is wholly in accord with the objectives originally outlined. We are confident that we will successfully achieve the basic educational purposes, and at the same time maintain a standard of quality which will have lasting influence upon the educational, social, and cultural achievements of the University.

"You will readily appreciate the many complicated decisions which have to be made before we can present a detailed report to the Corporation and the Alumni. We must estimate the future trend of construction costs and come to some conclusions regarding the availability of land. While we have land enough to carry out the original scheme, and enough to make some marked improvements in it, we can do much better if we are successful in our present efforts toward further acquisition. Accordingly, it is worth the time, energy, and skill now being given to this phase of the program. Availability of land is one of our key questions upon which the drawing of plans and the development of sketches and block layouts will depend. Some additional time will be required before we can come to a final conclusion on this matter. Furthermore, we are attempting to accomplish economies, but at the same time obtain a more pleasing and efficient building layout both as to construction and operation.

"We do not think it wise to launch the second phase of the Campaign until we are able to complete the reassessment of this program and express ourselves in detail as to our best estimate on cost, on location, on the amount that can be financed by loans, and on the remainder which must be procured from contributions from Brown men and friends of the University. As it is unlikely that we shall be in a position to make such a report before Commencement, it has been agreed that we should not permit this academic year to pass without giving Brown men an opportunity to maintain their regular support of the University. The Alumni Fund Trustees will therefore be undertaking an annual campaign as heretofore, and Brown men will be asked to give for unrestricted purposes as they have in the past.

"This Alumni Fund Campaign is of utmost importance, and all of us on the Student Housing Board hope that you will respond promptly and generously. It in no way conflicts with the Housing and Development Campaign, which we believe will be reopened in the Fall. The Chairman of the Alumni Fund Trustees is a member of our Campaign Steering Committee, and we have been in the closest touch with officials of the Fund during the last three or four months. In fact, we have hopes that when the Housing and Development Fund is reorganized, the Alumni Fund will play an important part in the Campaign structure.

"In the meantime, I feel sure that you will want to continue or increase your gift through the Alumni Fund, as an expression of your confidence and faith in the future of the College." ◀

Meeting in the Pentagon

▶▶ IT WAS A GREAT MEETING—Carl Sandburg and General Eisenhower: the poet, the biographer, the singer of songs and the man who commanded. And the man who arranged the meeting, Duncan Emrich '32, went along to listen and remember. Emrich was formerly chief American historian at General Eisenhower's SHAEF headquarters in England, France, and Germany; he is now with the Library of Congress as chief of its folklore section. Of the meeting he wrote for the March 20 issue of the Saturday Review of Literature a memorable, moving account.

They talked of many things, Emrich reports; of the fact that few American generals failed to measure up to their responsibilities in the war and why; of the book that Eisenhower will some day write—entirely from memory; of his disinterest in the Presidency; of his diffidence in approaching academic duties; of the gamble to commit the American airborne divisions on the Cherbourg peninsula over Leigh-Mallory's alarm; of how an army feels; of the Marshall Plan as simple and obvious; of England's Socialism; of nicknames; of the necessity of being strong and prepared.

And, finally, at Emrich's request, Sandburg went across the room to get his guitar to sing the General a song. He picked "a genuine antique," a song by Dr. Warren, who died at Bunker Hill, of free America and her coming greatness. And the two men shook hands, respecting, friends.

As they left the Pentagon, Sandburg said to Emrich, "Him and Niagara Falls." ◀

National City Creates Office

▶ DR. W. RANDOLPH BURGESS '12 was named Chairman of the Executive Committee March 9 when the National City Bank of New York created the office at a meeting of the Board of the bank. The move followed the death of Gordon S. Rentschler, Chairman of the Board, and the appointment of William Gage Brady, Jr., President of the bank, to succeed him. Howard C. Sheperd, Senior Vice-President, succeeds Mr. Brady as President and Director. Dr. Burgess was Vice-Chairman of the Board.

Dr. Burgess went into banking in 1920, the year he received his Ph.D. from Columbia. He joined the Federal Reserve Bank of New York as statistician and editor, rose to Deputy Governor, a title that was changed to Vice-President under the Banking Act of 1935. From 1930 to 1938 he was in charge of the open market operations in Government securities and served as executive officer of the System Open Market Committee. He went to National City in 1938 as Vice-Chairman.

Dr. Burgess is also Vice-Chairman of the Board of the National City Safe Deposit Company and the International Banking Corporation, as well as Director of the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, the Royal Liverpool group of Insurance Companies, and the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. He was President of the New York State Bankers Association in 1940-1941; President of the American Bankers Association in 1944-1945; and recently a member of the President's Committee on Foreign Aid, the so-called Harriman Committee, which made many of the preliminary studies to E.R.P.

The Stands Had Plenty to Cheer ◀ ◀

Basketball

▶▶ THE BASKETBALL PICTURE, which which looked pretty grim over most of the season, brightened appreciably toward the end as the Varsity won five of its last eight games. Bob Morris, installing a new system in his first year at Brown, found himself with very little in the way of good material left over from last season. Faithfulness in practice began developing fair floor work, but there was not much height for the critical play off the backboards, and there was no marksman who could hit the basket reliably. The team won its second game—over Worcester Tech 53-51, but it was the only victory in the first 12 encounters, of which a number were dropped by one-sided scores.

Late in the year, however, the Coach's efforts brought reward, when the University of Massachusetts team from Devens, Amherst, Colby, Providence College, and— notably—Rhode Island State were set down. That last game has already been reported—a dramatic upset of a team which had lost only three games in 15 and was expected to provide a tournament entry. It was one of the sweetest triumphs ever, and a capacity crowd in Marvel Gym howled its delight as the Brunonians caught fire.

Ernie Corner, only squad member to play every game, was awarded the Woodie Grimshaw trophy at the end of the schedule, a valiant veteran who kept trying no matter how hard the going—and some of it was pretty tough. High scorer was Ken Provost, who scored 122 points in 17 games, with Corner one point behind. Bob Smith had 119 points in 14 games, 21 of them during his great exhibition in the State contest. Jim Cooney and George Tyrell had 110 and 99 each. Joe Paterno, who moved up to the Varsity after the first half of the campaign, George Jones, Al Kovachik, and Harvey Lapides were the others who played 10 times or more.

Leading the attack during the brilliant season for the Freshmen were Ezra Creswell (229), Dave Thurrott (201), Charley Whelan (167), Bill Hayes (162), and Dave Tillinghast (162), while the principal replacements were Jim Braye, Dave Holmgren, Denny Sullivan, and Al Gauthier, although 19 numerals were awarded because of squad spirit and the fine record.

Hockey

▶ For a sport just re-established at Brown, hockey did as well as could have been expected—even better, for several of the defeats were close ones. The high spot came in triumphing over Yale, 8-7, after an earlier 5-4 loss.

Coach Weckie Moulton's year-long problem was to hold his team at top-speed for a full game without real hockey skill down under his starting line-up. His first string was able to hold its own with nearly all the "SHOVEL PASS" was what Photographer Joe Marcello called this shot, and that will do for us. There was still snow on Aldrich Field when spring practice started for the Brown football squad March 15. season's competition, but the second and third lines were not equal to their job. This meant overworking the starters or risking matters with the reserves, a dilemma for which there was no good solution. His real need was for more boys who can skate. (There are several among the Freshmen.) Several games were lost in the last period.

Moulton led off with Larry Copeland, Fred Nelson, and Bob Davidson, his three high scorers, as forwards, and Bob Rinfret and Charlie D'Ewart and Goalie Warren Howard on defense. Between them the starting forwards accounted for 49 of the team's 115 goals and assists. It was notable that, with one exception, all the men who received letters came from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and Connecticut. George Menard and Don Rawson, who joined the team in the second semester, further strengthened the team, with Menard packing one of the hardest shots on the squad.

The Freshmen, led by two Canadian stars, lost only to Yale in a nine-game campaign. John Casey scored 20 goals and 12 assists, Anthony Malo 15 goals and 12 assists, while Warren Priestley from Melrose chipped in 18 points. Ray McInnis, who played in four games scored eight goals.

After the regular season was over a Varsity-Freshman combination offered a preview of next year with success against local amateur competition. Hockey has a good foundation on which to base its revival, and the sport had strong student backing in the stands.

Track

▶ TRACK was a matter of individual achievement during the indoor season this winter, but the individuals came through! As a team, the outstanding feat was to gain the N.E.A.A.U. championship in Boston in February, when Dick Phillips won the high jump, Josh Tobey the mile, and Royce Crimmin the 600. Other points were picked up by Henry Barksdale, second in the dash, Jonathan Tobey second in the 1000, Paul Flick second in the shot, Bob Sleicher third in the pole vault, and Jim Bartlett third in the shot. Leeth was fourth in the hurdle after slipping at the start. Bob Bennett, erstwhile Brown performer, was second in the weight-throw and gained the National AAU title in the event with a heave of 56 feet 1 inch. He is the ICAAAA and AAU champion in the hammer, nominating himself for Olympic consideration.

Over some of the going, Philips was handicapped by an injury, but he was bracketed all winter long with the best high jumpers in the biggest meets. He won early prominence with his surprise win at the Knights of Columbus games in Boston when he leaped 6 feet 7. He tied for first in the BAA Games, won at the Christian Brothers Centennial Relays, and broke a record with a vault of 6:6¾ at the Cleveland K. of C. meet. He was third in the ICAAAA meet and tied for second in the National AAU meet when he cleared at the winning height of 6:7 only to graze the bar on the way down. He is a great prospect, whose work will be watched outdoors.

Royce Crimmins has also had a lot of competition around the major circuit. A fast man but one who dislikes elbows, he did not have the best of luck in jamming at the corners of the indoor tracks, but he gained his share of credit in speedy company. Winning only rarely, he did place second consistently in close races: runner-up in the ICAAAA 600, runner-up to McKenley in Washington and Guida in Boston, runner-up in the Christian Brothers meet, and fourth after a shove in the K. of C. race in New York—all at his favorite distance. After the BAA meet he was awarded the Roy Phillips Memorial Trophy in its initial presentation—to the meet's outstanding New England college competitor. He was also a key figure in the Brown two-mile relay which beat Villanova, Yale, and MIT in the BAA games with a good time of 7:56.9.

Josh Tobey gave Ted Vogel of Tufts his first defeat at home in three years of college running with a 4:25.3 mile; a record for the Coussins Gym. His winning time in the Christian Brothers meet in Providence was even better—4:21.1. His twin, Jon Tobey, was second in the 1000-yard race under Christian Brothers auspices, while a third Tobey ran in a winning Freshman relay quartet that beat Springfield and Boston College in the BAA meet. Leeth hurdled to second place in the Christian Brothers Relays, while Sleicher was tied for third in the vault that night. Paul Flick was fifth in the IC4A meet when Brown was tied for ninth place with eight points in all.

Wrestling

► IN ITS SECOND YEAR as a re-established sport, wrestling gained a lot of ground, winning five of eight meets and numbering Dartmouth, MIT, Tufts, and Springfield among its victims. Brown was elected to the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association, a recognition of the work of Coach Ralph Anderton and his men. Entering their first Eastern championships, three of the men gained the semi-final round after earlier victories: Alex Marshall, 155; Frank Manchester, 128; and Gray Michael, 136. Other entries were Dick Ferenbach, Sandy Beachen, Tony Trivison, Bill O'Donnell, and Pete Fuller. The campus gave good backing, and squad morale was high. There is good material coming up from the Freshman divisions.

The Varsity record might have been even better but for two mishaps: Dick Moody broke a finger in the Coast Guard meet and had to default. Graham Michaels, a steady winner, cost a similar five points when he failed to make weight at Harvard. Michaels was New England 136-pound titleholder, while his younger brother, now a Freshman, took the national prep school championship while a student at The Hill School. Both went undefeated through February.

Swimming

► BROWN MEN tallied 27 points for a fourth place in the New England Intercollegiate in March after a dual meet season in which they had won four of nine meets. Milt Brier, the season's star, established a new Brown record and MIT Pool record in winning the 200-yard breaststroke in 2:26.7. (The old mark on the Brown books set by George Gibbons in 1939 was .9 seconds slower.) Another record went to Brown in the same meet when the medley relay trio of Ollie Patrell, Brier, and Jim McKelvey swam their distance in 3:4.7. The previous record had been set by Bowdoin only the day before in the trials, and the

Freshmen Break Records

► PAUL MACKESEY called our attention to it—the extraordinary record of Freshman teams in all sports thus far this year. He says it's the best in history. Here's what the Class has done: football—won 5, lost 1; soccer—won 4, lost 2; cross country—won 0, lost 1; basketball—won 16, lost 3; hockey—won 8, lost 1; wrestling—won 5, lost 3; swimming—won 8, lost 3. All sports—won 46, lost 14.

The football team was undefeated until its final game on a muddy field against Harvard. The basketball five dropped its first game, then won 12 straight: each of the three defeats was balanced by a victory over the same opponent. The hockey players took their first six games, then lost to Yale. The Herald said the basketball season was the best of any Freshman club on record.

It's pleasant to look on the achievement of the Class as an achievement; it's encouraging to regard the players as Varsity material for three more years, too.

ink on the book was hardly dry before the Brunonians had a time better by a half-second. An attendant satisfaction was the shading of Williams, whose medley relay teams had beaten Brown in the dual meet.

Williams, defending champions, won the New England meet with 53 points. Springfield had 31, Bowdoin 29. Ralph Gossler, swimming his last race for Brown, was third in the 50-yard final which was clocked at 24.2 seconds, although Gossler had won his qualifying heat in 24.1. The 400-yard relay team took a third, Wilson was fifth in the 440, and Patrell fifth in the backstroke. A Freshman relay team was second in its class.

Brier was Brown's only scoring entry in the Eastern Intercollegiate, with a fifth place in his specialty behind Verdeur of La Salle, who broke the world's record. Swimming the 150-yard breaststroke in Colgate Hoyt Pool in the New England AAU meet, Brier was only a tenth of a second off of the American mark of 1:43 in winning. In the same meet Ollie Patrell was a surprise winner of the NEAAU Junior 150 backstroke, establishing record time at 1:43.8. Win Wilson won the State 440 title, while Duncan Grey, Jim McKelvey, and Jack Leeming swept the 50.

One of the season's novelties came Feb. 21 when Brown won three dual meets on the same afternoon. Connecticut, whose Varsity lost to Brown 43-31, also brought along its Jayvee swimmers through a misunderstanding, although the Brown Freshmen were already swimming the Tufts yearlings. The Cubs took on both opponents in turn. The Freshmen freestyle relayers set a new Freshman pool record at home against Moses Brown, displacing a mark made in 1939. Duncan Gray, former Hun School star, a consistent winner all season, swam with Hoover, Barlow, and Allen in 3:52.4. The Varsity medley line-up of Chuck Willoughby, Milt Brier, and Jim Phelan, won the New England AAAU championship in February in a Pawtucket meet. Winner of the Brown Interscholastics (the 28th annual swimming) was Portland High of Maine; New York Military and Pawtucket West were deadlocked as runners-up.

Sports Miscellany

► TWENTY-THREE battery candidates, including 18 pitchers, reported to Coach Eddie Eayrs for the first baseball workout of the year. The nine will be in League competition this year against the Ivy Group teams and the two major service academies. . . . The Brown rifle team, with a good record in dual meets, took second place in the national ROTC competition, losing to Ohio State 893 to 891; UCLA was third with 881. . . . Lehigh's 1949 football schedule shows a game with Brown in Providence on Oct. 22, first meeting of the two brown-and-white teams since 1926. . . . Anton Sobocinski, whose fencers had a fair season, is now the senior member of the Brown coaching staff; he's been conducting the sport on the Hill since 1938. . . . Sectional championships of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association will be held in Providence May 7 and 8 at the Wannamoisett. . . . Continuing where they left off last fall, Brown's Yacht Club won its first regatta when it was host on the Seekonk to Northeastern, Rhode Island, Williams, Bowdoin, and Worcester Tech; the Eastern Intercollegiate will be held at Brown May 1-2. . . . That sensational shot at the end of the first half of the Providence College basketball game was measured immediately; Corner was found to have scored from 58 feet 7 inches out, the longest shot Coach Morris had seen in 25 years' association with the game. . . . Highlight of the outdoor track season will be the New England Intercollegiate at Brown Field May 21 and 22. . . . The Brown Ski Club defeated Columbia and Stevens Tech at Manchester, Vt., early in March. . . . Some 30 students who played lacrosse in prep school have organized the Narragansett Lacrosse Club and will play an informal schedule. (A similar team brought about restoration of hockey as a Varsity sport.)

With the Brown Clubs ◀ ◀

Providence Pops

► A Pops concert by the Brown-Pembroke Orchestra is being offered the membership of the Providence Brown Club on Tuesday evening, April 20 at 8:30. Martin Fischer will conduct an all-popular program in Alumnae Hall with Violoncellist Robert Allen as soloist and other features. They include the Varsity Quartet, a German band ("Five Men with Horns"), Magician Jack Fleming, "and fun and refreshments for all."

Each member of the Brown Club of Providence is entitled to a ticket for himself and one guest. He may invite additional guests at $1 a ticket. Tables accommodate four persons, and reservations are being accepted only to the limit of capacity.

Fred L. Harson '31, chairman of the special committee, is doing a fine job on arrangements, in co-operation with the University's Department of Music and the Orchestra management. The flyer announcing the event was a particularly attractive piece of work.

Wriston in Washington

► THE ARMY-NAVY CLUB will be the scene of the spring meeting of the Brown Club of Washington, D. C. arranged for April 7. President Wriston will be the principal speaker, while Dr. Waldo G. Leland '00 of Brown's Board of Fellows will be the toastmaster. Two other members of that Board have been invited to attend as special guests—the former Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes '81, honorary chairman of the Associated Alumni, and John Nicholas Brown, Undersecretary of the Navy.

New York at Lunchtime

► HARRY CONOVER, head of one of New York's largest model agencies, was the speaker at the Friday luncheon of the Brown Club on Feb. 6, telling about various types of models and their work. Candy Jones (Mrs. Conover) was also on hand to fortify the legends about the beauty of Conover girls and to speak from the model's point of view. The ever-inquiring Jimmy Jemal was master of ceremonies, and he knew all the right questions to ask, says the Brown Club News.

The March 5 speaker was Marc Peter, Jr., architect and industrial designer who is also a special consultant to the Air Force, continuing a wartime association. His talk was in a sense an expose of the procedure of design, from the original analysis of the basic facts through to the development of the final solution. He laid stress on the rational and emotional contributions which the designer makes throughout the process.

North Shore Scholarship

► THREE FRIENDS of Brown, prominent business men of the area have underwritten the entire scholarship fund of $1500 for the North Shore Brown Club, it was announced at the March 4 meeting of the Club. The three, Messrs. Hutchinson, Smith, and Korn, will be guests of honor at the year's final meeting, May 13, at which time they will receive Brown plaques in appreciation of their interest. The announcement was made by James LeFevre, President.

ERNIE CORNER: His shot counted from 58 feet out. He received the George W. Grimshaw Trophy as the outstanding basketball player on Brown's 1947-48 Varsity. Tom Pucci made the presentation for Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Past President Elmer Wright was toastmaster at the dinner, which was attended by 50. S. Abbott Hutchinson gave the Treasurer's report, and Sam Kravinsky provided one of the evening's highlights with a droll version of his findings as chairman of the auditing committee. Delegates to the Advisory Council reported on those February meetings of the alumni in Providence.

Speaker of the evening was Rev. Gordon Bigelow '24, of Beverly, who described his impressions of Europe as he saw it in the summer of 1947 when he visited nine countries. His trip to the international religious convention in Copenhagen was also illustrated by colored slides. No one, he said, can make such a journey without being "filled with a deep gratitude for his American heritage with its traditions of freedom of speech, worship, and competitive enterprise, without state or government control."

Listen, Brunonian

► NEW ENGLAND alumni will hear the Brown Glee Club in an all-American program during a recital at 9:30 on April 15 which will be broadcast over the Yankee Network. This will follow the annual Spring Tour of the Club with the 65 voices under the direction of Prof. Edward Barry Greene. He came to Brown in September, 1946, after several years' experience in directing the Wellesley and Princeton choirs. His arrangements are sung by a number of college clubs, and under his guidance the Brown men have attempted ambitious works with success.

Its origin dating from 1869, the Glee Club has always been one of the most popular campus activities. In its debut, the group "delighted its audience with real good music" and "the audience laughed over the abominably funny old college songs and sympathized with whatever little shortcomings were inseparable from the occasion." The Club has come a long way.

With comparable skill, the Brown University Chapel Choir has established its own firm reputation on the campus and beyond. A memorable event in its history took place March 7 when its 50 members offered vespers at the Round Top Church in Providence, their first appearance off-campus in recent years, except for radio performances. Their numbers, conducted by William Dineen, Director, were sung wholly a cappella.

Alta California Annual

► HERE'S MORE DETAIL on the annual dinner of the Brown Club of Alta California, held Feb. 14 at the University Club in San Francisco. We've already reported on the election of Nathaniel Blaisdell '83 for the 50th year in succession and noted the names of those present, including Brown's senior alumnus, George F. Weston '78.

Mr. Blaisdell described his trip to Brown last fall and gave the 14 men present a detailed account of the Brown-Princeton football game which he attended. Many interesting and humorous incidents were included, for Nathaniel Blaisdell is an unsurpassed raconteur, as the Secretary notes. Mr. Weston, who came to the meeting from San Jose, where he now resides, reminisced of his college days most interestingly. Col. LeRoy Bartlett '02 told of Brown football as it was played in the early 1900's when he was on the Varsity.

Fremont E. Roper '11 was re-elected Secretary and Treasurer, even though he was unable to be present. He had a good deputy in his brother, Frederic Roper '23, who read the Secretary and Treasurer's reports and other club correspondence, handling this part of the meeting in a most interesting way. The annual meeting was closed with the singing of our Brown songs, closing with "Alma Mater."

Rand for Pittsburgh

► THE BROWN CLUB of Western Pennsylvania held an election of officers at its annual meeting at the University Club in Pittsburgh Feb. 26 when 23 members attended. Evans L. Rand '37 is the new President, succeeding Robert B. Clark '39. Philip M. Lingham '30 of 348 Vanadium Road, Pittsburgh 16, succeeds Gordon Ritchie, Jr., '24 as Secretary; and Donald G. Clark '09 is the new Vice-President. Harry K. Voelp, Jr., '29 was re-elected Treasurer. A. B. Jeffers '22, will be chairman of the Activities Committee.

Standing Invitation

► THE FOLLOWING regularly scheduled luncheons are fixtures on the Brown Club calendar. Visitors to the cities, as well as alumni in the area, have a standing invitation to attend these gatherings:

BALTIMORE, third Thursday of each month, private dining room, Northway Apartments, 3700 No. Charles St., 6:15 p. m.

CHICAGO, every Friday, at noon, in the Chicago Real Estate Board at 105 W. Madison St.

HARTFORD, third Wednesday of each month, Heublein Hotel, 12:15.

LOS ANGELES, every Thursday, Continental Room, Hotel Alexandria, 5th and Spring Sts., at noon.

NEW YORK, every Friday noon, N. Y. Brown Club, 39 E. 39th St., Extension Dining Room.

PHILADELPHIA, second Tuesday of each month, Alpha Club, 1911 Chestnut St., 12:15.

PITTSBURGH, fourth Friday of each month, Child's Restaurant, 5th and Summerfield St., 12:15.

Baltimore Leave-Taking

► A FAREWELL luncheon for Chester S. Stackpole '22 was arranged by his successor as President of the Baltimore Brown Club, Charles P. Ives '25 on March 3 at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, the day before Stackpole left to become Vice-President of Chrysler Corporation Airtemp Division, Dayton.

"For the older members of the Club the parting was sad," writes Secretary J. G. Armstrong, Jr., '43, "though we have Chet's promise that someday he'll return to spend his last years in his beloved Baltimore. We'll miss him very much for he's made every meeting fairly sparkle with interest and humor. Many of us, I think, will be expecting news in the next year or so that Dayton and environs have been won and another Brown camp firmly established. Somehow we can't picture one of Brown's most able and ardent supporters sitting idly by."

Those at the sendoff to Stackpole included: Christie Cuddeback '21, Ray Hawes '12, Russ Wonderlic '27, Vernon Chase '26, Bill Meuse '26, Ken Hovey '27, Dave Allen '34, Ives, and Armstrong.

Early in March Ives, Chase, and Armstrong met as a committee to undertake a program to interest students from local schools in Brown. "We hope to be able to report some definite progress after our next meeting in April." (That would be the 15th.)

4 B's in Los Angeles

► THE SPRING MEETING for Brown men in the Los Angeles area will be built around al fresco informalities, according to Secretary Stephen H. Dolley '42. The program seems to call for the four B's—baseball, beefsteak, beer, and Brown. Announcement of time and place was awaiting final confirmation, but there will be ample notice.

The weekly luncheons continue every Thursday noon in the Continental Room of the Hotel Alexandria at 5th and Spring Sts. Among the regulars are: Howard F. Esten '04, Houghton Metcalf '04, Larry Gates '21, Harry Howard '24, Miles Flint

'27, Bill Creasey '39, Hugh Wallace '37, Fergus Purves '23, Fred Sawyer '37, John Aiso '31, and Dick Messinger '37.

Boston Dinner April 12

► THE KENMORE HOTEL will be the scene of the annual dinner of the Brown Club of Boston April 12, when the speakers will be President Wriston and John C. Ross, Deputy to the United States Representative to the United Nations. Kenneth D. Clapp '40 is chairman of the dinner committee, Secretary Edward T. Brackett '14 informs us.

Rev. Gordon Bigelow '24 was the speaker at the regular monthly luncheon of the Boston Club, held at the Engineers' Club March 17. About 40 alumni heard his fine talk on "Europe As We Saw It."

Walker in St. Louis

► EMERY WALKER's visit to St. Louis brought together 40 Brunonians at the Noonday Club Jan. 28 to hear the Dean of Admissions tell of his three months' trip in the Midwest and news of the campus.

Among those present (see also the photo) were Marvin E. Boisseau, Jr., '41; Creighton B. Calfee '33; E. B. Carpenter '26; Dr. Arthur B. Cleaves '27; George O. Cutter '26; Joseph H. Grand '19; Briggs A. Hoffmann, Jr., '45; Rev. Charles D. Kean '30; John R. Lyman '24; Robert E. Lynch '41; Roderick M. Meyer '30; John C. Mosby '30; Chapin S. Newhard '22; A. F. Noll '44; Frank O'Shanick '39; Donald E. Pratt '27; Charles E. Rubicam, Jr., '26; P. L. Sincoff '42; Francis G. White '20; E. T. T. Williams '17; Martin Lammert IV '49; Robert A. Webb '46; Lewis M. Carr '96 (from Alton, Ill.); John A. Ryrie '16 (from Alton, Ill.); Arthur Feuerbacher '32; and Emmet S. Esary; and from the Graduate School, Dr. John R. Ring '41; Everett R. Vaughn '18; F. Brooks Sloss '41 of Fulton, Mo. There were fathers of four Brown undergraduates—E. M. Enslin, Edwin Lewis, A. S. Mills, and Clarence M. Barksdale—present at the luncheon in honor of Dean Walker.

Chicago's Spring Dinner

► CHICAGO'S Spring Dinner will come Tuesday, April 27, according to President Homer R. Faulkner '23, who speaks of the University Club as the tentative site. The Chicago Brown Club will have as its guests, President Wriston and Vice-President Bigelow, both of whom will speak.

► THERE WAS good talk about Brown, particularly from the admissions point of view when Dean Emery Walker lunched with the Chicago Brown Club at the Real Estate Board of Trade March 12. It was the regular Friday lunch at the usual place, but the word was spread about the visitor, and 30 men turned out on short notice.

Dean Walker reports a boom in enthusiasm in this Club which has never suffered from anemia. James R. Bremner '34, Director of the Associated Alumni and representative of the Club at the February Advisory Council meetings on the campus, had brought back a fine report.

Hartford's Dinner Dance

► THE WAMPANOAG Country Club will be the scene of the second annual dinner dance of the Brown Club of Hartford, to which alumni and undergraduates of Brown and Pembroke are invited on April 9. The party is timed for the period when the students are home on holiday, Secretary Cyrus G. Flanders '18 reports.

Indiana Plans for April

► FILMS of the 1947 Commencement and football highlights will provide a program for the Brown Club of Indiana on April 9 when its members are entertained at the home of their Secretary, William A. Dyer, Jr., '24. All available Brunonians are invited to spend the evening at 401 Buckingham Drive, Indianapolis 8. Further details may be had from Mr. Dyer at the Indianapolis Star. ◀

BROWN ALUMNI MONTHLY

Ladies, Too, at Andover

▶ FOR THE FIRST TIME in its history, the Merrimack Valley Brown Club is inviting the wives of members and alumnae of Pembroke in the vicinity to attend one of its meetings. The affair will be the annual spring meeting at Phillips Academy in Andover, Friday evening May 21. James S. Eastham '19, Secretary of the Club, writes that Dean Morris of Pembroke, Prof. Sinclair Armstrong, and Alumni Executive Officer William B. McCormick have been asked to speak. ◀

A Dealey Scholarship

▶ THE BROWN CLUB of Texas is undertaking to raise an annual James Quayle Dealey Scholarship "in honor of that outstanding Brown Professor who became Editor-in-Chief of the Dallas Morning News. More than $200 had been raised in March, according to Coburn A. Buxton '34. ◀

All-Time Football

SIR:

I scan the ALUMNI MONTHLY with greatest interest and approval as they come along and seldom have any complaint.

I must tell you, however, that anybody who selects a Brown All-Time eleven and leaves out the name of Johnny Mayhew will have trouble establishing his credentials with most Brown men of classes prior to 1913. I have no quarrel with such selections as Sprackling, McKay, Dennie and Regnier. In fact I am a bit set up to think I was in college with four of the all-timers and Regnier captained the team in the Fall of '09 when I was manager. Just the same I can't get over the omission of Johnny Mayhew, the trickiest, fastest, snappiest back Brown ever had. I'd like to have a vote of the four named above on the question. Even money says it would be unanimous for making a place for Johnny. Chancey Wheeler can tell you.

Let's get some of these important matters straightened out before it's too late. I think Kit Regnier's name is "Kit" too, and not "Kip". At least I called him "Kit" for years and he called me "Jeff" when we were together in Brown '10 and '09, as you have it. That '09 gang always claimed credit for everything though.

SIR:

Some 40 years ago the undersigned wrote up, and the BAM was good enough to publish a first, second, and third All-Brown football team. I see scarcely any of the names of any of those immortals in Mr. Hirschberg's waltercamping effusion. I have no desire to tread on anyone's toes, but I have followed Brown football teams ever since Jack Lindsay '92 was captain. I have my own ill-concealed opinion of any such selection, which fails even to mention en passant such famous braces of half-backs as Fultz and Gammons and Hopkins and Millard. To my mind Dave Fultz '98 was the peer of any of that glorious company.

Eckstein was doubtless a fine center, but so was Shurtleff; and Jim Coombs '96 could have "trimmed dem wid ase." Then, too, Charlie Sisson was a pretty fine pivot-man. That reminds me, where is any mention of Tim Sheehan as a tackle? Robbie is still right about "Big" Smith, though both are now in Valhalla. And Pop Kirley '09 was no slouch.

I think I know whereof I speak, for I was a Central Board official for some years in the East, Colorado, France, and Hawaii, in which territory I wrote up the All-Hawaiian team in 1915. Mr. Hirschberg's ex cathedra selections may get by for the new glorified basketball game, but as an all-time, it would appear to leave much to be desired.

"Little Ritchie" did not make his Freshman football team and then, P.G., was All-American; nor did "Deke" Pratt '00, and he was captain his Senior year of the Varsity. Now someone else tell one.

COL. G. A. "BIRD" TAYLOR '01

SIR:

To keep the record straight, the correct classes of men in the group of all-time Brown football players named in your February issue are as follows: A. E. Regnier '10, Russ Ashbaugh '13, Lou Farber '29, Dan Kulp '13, Johnny Mayhew '09, Clair Purdy '19, Tom Barry '03, Al Cornsweet '29, Red Randall '28, Ed Kevorkian '29, Paul Hodge '28, Charlie Considine '28, Ralph Nichols '19, Jack Keefer '25, Thurston Towle '28.

Regnier's nickname is Kit, not Kip. And I am sure a big fellow like Purdy doesn't care at all to be tagged with a girl's name as you printed it.

The late Ralph Nichols received his degree in 1920 with the Class of 1919. He was an officer in the First World War. I saw him score his fantastic touchdown against Dartmouth in 1919 at Boston; on the Monday after the game I interviewed him for the Providence Sunday Journal at the old Sigma Nu house on Waterman Street. I hope that the interview is in some Brown man's scrapbook.

To the all-time roll I would add Joe Coulter '05, centre; Fred Schwinn '05, Don Pryor '08, ends; Vic Schwartz '07, Myron Curtis '07, Charlie Dixon '26, and Eddie Lawrence '28, backs. For a one-class back-field could we Brown alumni, or alumni of any college for that matter, ask for a better quartet than Bill Gilbane, Bob Chase, Frank Gammino, and Eddie Gilmartin, all of '33?

Copland, in addition to being an important American composer (symphonies, ballets, music for violin, piano, film scores) expresses himself in lively fashion. In this book he calls American creative musicians "Composers Without a Halo" and dares to devote more pages to himself than to any other individual.

Great Modern Composers. Oscar Thompson, editor; Dodd, Mead, 1941. Thirty-three composers of our time ranging from Bartok to Shostakovich and Villa-Lobos are represented by chapter and listing of works. Just what you wish you had after you have read a typically unsatisfactory program-note or heard a half-minute fill-in announcement on the air.

Stravinsky: An Autobiography. Simon and Schuster, 1936. A composer never presented a more candid account of his artistic creed than Stravinsky does here. Throws light on his music and the century in which we live.

America's Musical Inheritance. Anna E. Schoen-Rene; G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1941. Mmc. Schoen-Rene was until her death a leading (many would say the leading) teacher of singing at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. Her European training included association with the famous Garcia family of musicians, but her devotion to American students was keen and her ideas on music in the United States are often a revelation.

▶ ▶ STEPHEN O. METCALF was re-elected a Vice-President of the R. I. Community Chests, Inc., which he has supported since its formation. He also continues as a Director of the R. I. Hospital Trust Co.

1879

Dr. Stephen A. Welch was one of the doctors voted the distinguished service award of the Providence Medical Association at its Centennial Dinner in February. The recognition was accorded all living past and present officers of the Association, and Dr. Welch had a double award, having served both as President and Secretary.

1883

Miss Elizabeth Ordway, daughter of the late Lucius Pond Ordway, was married in Paris on April 29, 1947, to Mr. Anthony Drexel Duke, the Alumni Office has just been informed.

1887

Senator Theodore Francis Green sailed aboard the aircraft carrier Leyte in February en route as an observer to witness fleet bombardment and landing maneuvers in the Caribbean. He is no stranger to the Leyte, having sailed aboard her in 1946 for other maneuvers. He is a member of the Senate subcommittee on Navy appropriations.

Frank L. Hinckley, senior partner in the Providence law firm of Hinckley, Allen, Tillinghast & Wheeler, had the satisfaction of welcoming his son, Frank L. Hinckley, Jr., as an associate of the firm on March 1.

George J. Holden was elected Vice-President of the Rhode Island Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at its annual meeting recently.

1892

Charles H. Merriman, Jr., was re-elected a Vice-President of the R. I. Community Chests, Inc., at the annual meeting recently.

1893

John L. Casey is now living at 56 Washington St., Providence.

Edward H. Weeks has been designated by the Providence Chamber of Commerce to sit on the Governing Council of the important Civic Planning and Traffic Board for 1948.

1894

Washington's Emergency Hospital was recently the scene of a meeting of a couple of Brunonians, in a figurative presentation of the May and December motif, when Miss Jean Duba, R.N., a Pembroke alumna and Henry M. Barry qualified in the respective roles of nurse and patient. Although the coincidence of this association bridged a collegiate gap of approximately half a century, it furnished a common denominator of interest which, according to the oldster, lent material assistance to his recovery, of which we are glad to hear.

Policies in force reached a new high for the Puritan Life Insurance Co., President Henry D. Sharpe told the stockholders at the annual meeting in February. He also continues as Trustee of the Providence Institution for Savings, and Director of the R. I. Hospital Trust Company and R. I. Hospital National Bank.

Harold C. Field was re-elected a Director of Puritan Life for a three-year term. The Directors continued him as Vice-President. He is also a Director of the Hospital Trust Company and National Bank.

Dr. Frank W. Sleeper, retired from active medical practice, is living in Bridgewater, N. H.

1897

Arthur M. Allen, Providence attorney, continues as Secretary of the Roger Williams General Hospital. He was re-elected at the March meeting of the Trustees of this hospital, formerly known as the Homeopathic. Earlier he had been re-elected for a three-year-term on the Board. He also joined as a supporter when a group of R. I. citizens organized to back European relief.

Russell Grinnell, President of the Grinnell Co., Inc., continues as a Director of the Firemen's Mutual Insurance Co., which held its annual meeting recently.

Charles A. Harris' "Old-Time Fairhaven" has been added to the Archives Collection of Brown University through the gift of the author. In addition, he was good enough to send the Library extra copies of earlier works, "A Rapid Survey of the Massachusetts Educational System" and "Idioms and Phrases of Caesar," for archives purposes. Mr. Harris lives at 141 Green St., Fairhaven, Mass.

Frank O. Jones, who has a Junior High School in Hartford named for him, recently contributed a series of three articles on Brown football of 50 years ago, in collaboration with Rip Blevens, Hartford sports writer. He felt Charlie McCarthy was the outstanding player of his day but also paid tribute to Ed Robinson as a "tremendous line-smasher." He recalled that Coach Wallace Moyle was married in mid-season in 1896 and was away on his honeymoon, missing an important contest. Football manager John D. Rockefeller, Jr., "a grand fellow and extremely popular on the campus," fined Moyle $10 for the offense.

Winthrop Rockefeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., married Mrs. Barbara Paul Sears of Chicago in Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 14.

The 50th reunion committee, bearing aloft a banner with a strange device, "Fortiter, fideliter, feliciter," has a preliminary report on those who plan to be back June 18—21: Of the Class Officers in 1898, the following have already said they would be there: President—Borden Whiting; Treasurer—Andy Thomson; Poet—Fred Arnold; President of Class Supper—Daff Gammons; Chairman of Class Day Committee—Dick Hunter; Hymnist—Tom Burrage; Historian—Luke Kavanaugh; Prophet—Fred Smart. Others who have written they are coming are: Jim Allen, Bartlett, Boss, Boyd, Cady, Chaplin, Dexter, Farrell, Fuller, Ted Jenckes, Kingsford, Lapham, Mathewson, Morris, Pettibone, Potter, Powers, Slade, Steere, and Troy.

The program includes attendance at the All-Alumni Dinner June 18 in Andrews Hall, while all are invited to the University Club for dinner Saturday night at 6. The committee (Arnold, Bartlett, and Steere) urges all to bring photos, program, or other souvenirs and relics "you are willing to trust to the tender mercies of this crowd to look over." One of the committee's most recent messages read as follows:

Actuarially speaking, at this reunion you will probably have your last opportunity to see most of us who will be there.

Conversely (if we may bootleg a word from Seth or Jevons) it will delight all the rest of us to see you again.

"And if I should live to be
The last leaf upon the tree
In the spring—
Let them smile, as I do now,
At the old forsaken bough
Where I cling."

Luke Kavanaugh is descending upon us from the Rocky Mountains at Denver. ("The Mountains look down on Marathon and Marathon looks o'er the Sea")

Rolly Powers is coming from California and we hope Stacy Warburton is too, in spite of his recent sad loss.

We hope Dave Fultz has received enough relaxation from the sunshine at his new home in Florida to send us a welcome message.

Harry Farrell has delayed the start of a trip to the west coast to be with us.

We are also still hopeful that Hezzy Wardwell will wait until after the reunion to take off on his far distant flight and will be in the van for NINETY EIGHT THIS WAY.

Please let us know if you wish dormitory accommodation in Hope College (all of you who are coming from more than fifty miles away are most cordially invited to share these rooming accommodations as the guests of a group who do not have to travel to get here).

Thomas E. Steere was re-elected a Director of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company at its annual meeting.

J. W. RIKER '22, President of the Providence Brown Club, which has scheduled the University Orchestra for a Pops Concert, April 20.

We didn't use a snapshot of Prof. James D. Williams of Hobart, canoeing on Seneca Lake because it seemed incongruous to do so when we were surrounded by snowbanks. He points out, however, in an entertaining letter to T. E. Steere, that he goes canoeing every month in the year, the deep lake seldom freezing over. "More than one couple began charting life's course in that canoe," he adds, "while I shoved the bow obliquely up the waves to keep the crests from dampening their train of thought."

Irving O. Hunt of Wyoming, Pa., a visitor to the Alumni Office early in March, reported on the fine Philadelphia Brown Club's annual dinner during a pleasant chat about the University.

1900

Harris H. Bucklin continues on the Board of the Firemen's Mutual Insurance Co., which reported assets at an all-time high at its recent annual meeting.

Clinton C. White, Secretary-Treasurer of the Puritan Life Insurance Co., and Arthur L. Perry continue on the Board of Directors of that company, which increased its business 9% in 1947 and reached a new high for policies in force. They are both on the Executive Committee of the Board.

Every Tuesday evening at 7:45 over Station WJBK, Congressman Howard A. Coffin of Detroit gives a report on "This Week in Congress" to his constituents in the 13th Michigan District. To a certain extent this program has taken the place of the monthly mimeograph letter. Mr. Coffin discusses in an intimate way the legislative program of the Congress, where he serves as a member of the Public Works Committee, House Administration Committee, and the so-called Black Market Committee.

Dr. Harvey N. Davis, President of Stevens Institute of Technology, a Fellow and Past-President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, was made an honorary member of the ASME at its annual meeting. The certificate was presented to Dr. Davis by Eugene W. O'Brien '19, ASME President.

A Bigelow Project

▶ AS WE WENT to press, Vice-President Bruce M. Bigelow was planning an April trip to a half-dozen cities in or on the way to the Middle West. None of the following dates (except that in Chicago) has been confirmed and must be regarded as tentative: Monday, April 19—Syracuse. Tuesday, April 20—Rochester at noon; Buffalo in the evening; Thursday, April 22—Cleveland; Friday, April 23—Detroit; Tuesday, April 27—Chicago.

Alumni in the cities mentioned are urged to keep in touch with their local Brown Club officers (see back cover) to see whether definite meetings are being arranged. ◀

Henry C. Hart, Providence lawyer, was re-elected a Trustee of the Citizens Savings Bank at its annual meeting recently.

Dr. Albert L. Midgley was named to the Board of the Providence District Nursing Association at its 47th annual meeting.

J. Cunliffe Bullock, Treasurer of the Roger Williams General Hospital in Providence for many years, has been re-elected a Trustee for a three-year term. In March he was re-elected Treasurer.

Charles R. Haslam was elected legal adviser to Saint Elizabeth's Home in Providence at the recent 66th annual meeting of its corporation. He has long been interested in the home.

S. Foster Hunt has been re-elected a member of the Board of Trustees of the Citizens Savings Bank of Providence.

Abbott Phillips, son of our late classmate, has become a professional skier after winning several championships. During the war in the 86th Mountain Infantry he won the Bronze Star Medal for "heroic achievement in action." "Automatic Rifleman Phillips volunteered to overcome enemy strongpoint . . . his rifle fire so devastating and accurate entire strongpoint, some 30 enemy, surrendered in a body," said the citation. He had been in the running for the 1948 Olympic team until he twisted a knee preparing for the tryouts.

The January reference to Willard G. Wood was a typo, of course, as his classmates realized. Our apologies for carelessness in thus identifying Willard Ward of Jersey City.

William G. Collenberg has retired from the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. where he has been employed since 1903. Connected with the Renewal Department, Mr. Collenberg has participated in the growth of that department from a staff of 7 to 123 persons.

Lewis H. Conant, retiring Superintendent of Schools in Methuen, Mass., was given a reception and dinner by the Methuen Teachers Club. Mr. Conant has been Superintendent of Schools in Methuen since 1926.

Fred A. Otis was one of a group of Providence citizens who organized in February in support of "an adequate relief plan for Europe." Albert W. Claflin was another member.

When Rushing Ended ◀ ◀

Fraternity Pledges

▶ ▶ RUSHING at Brown ended March 12 with the pledging of 326 students to the 17 chapters on the Hill. Rushing and pledging were deferred until the second semester this year "to permit the fraternities to know more about the men and the men to know more about the fraternities than was possible last year when rushing was held in November."

The quotation is from the Brown Daily Herald, which noted that the new pledge group includes 261 second-semester Freshmen, 52 Sophomores, 12 Juniors, and one graduate student. Earlier in the winter the men in their second and third semesters received fraternity information and were asked to fill out cards as to whether they were interested in joining a fraternity. Of the replies, 272 said yes, 302 no, 10 undecided, with 70 not answering. By agreement of the Interfraternity Governing Board, the Freshman delegations were limited to 20—a total of 340. Men ineligible for initiation because of low grades number 228, the Herald reported. A minimum average of 1.75 (about a C minus) is required by the University before initiation is allowed.

There are in Brown 817 men previously initiated or pledged, making a total of 1143 fraternity men with the addition of 326 new pledges. The percentage of undergraduates pledged or initiated approximates 38%.

Fraternity statistics are given in the nearby table, based on information provided by the chapters and printed in the Herald.

Elisha C. Mowry recently addressed the Fall River Rotarians on "Anglo-American Relations." Mr. Mowry is a Providence lawyer and President of the R. I. Branch of the English Speaking Unions.

W. Howard Barney, Vice-President of the Collyer Insulated Wire Co. of Pawtucket, is living at 249 Narragansett Bay Ave., Warwick Neck. He's been in Florida this winter, at Ft. Lauderdale.

Fred C. Broomhead, State Senator from Barrington, has strong support in certain quarters as a candidate for the U. S. Senate from Rhode Island. He hadn't given a definite answer as to his availability, the last we knew. He is a member of the Corporation of the new Edgewood Junior College in Barrington, lately converted from a school to become the State's first junior college.

David Davidson has issued a questionnaire in connection with his annual appeal for contributions to the $25,000 Endowment Fund for '05.

DeWitt C. Eggleston has just returned to his home in New York City after a six weeks' stay in Virginia where he visited his firm's branch offices. His friends are delighted with his hobby of making sketches of his travels. As a member of the firm of Wilfred, Wyler & Co. in New York, Carl is in constant demand as a Certified Public Accountant.

Clarence W. Holmes has retired after 30 years of service as Principal of the Douglas Memorial High School in East Douglas, Mass. He is planning to make his home in New Hampshire.

Frank G. Howard was renamed Assistant Treasurer of the Providence Institution for Savings at its annual meeting.

F. E. Marble hopes to meet B. B. Wood at an April convention at Amherst. The latter is Librarian of Massachusetts State College there.

Leon Gay made most of the circuit of the Vermont Forums in February, speaking for the affirmative answer to the question, "Can Private Enterprise Bring More Prosperity?" The Forums are held a day apart in Rutland, Burlington, St. Johnsbury, Brattleboro, Bennington, and Barre-Montpelier. He was a pinch-hitter for Senator Warren Austin before the spring assembly of the Rotary Governors of New Hampshire and Vermont, explaining the organization of the United Nations. It was so successful a performance that he has had to fill a number of Rotary dates on the same topic since. As a member of the Northern Baptist Convention's finance committee, he came to Providence recently to inspect the First Baptist Meeting House.

Dr. Prescott T. Hill is admitting physician for the Saint Elizabeth Home, elected at the 66th annual meeting recently. Dr. Herbert E. Harris '07, is a consulting physician.

Robert L. Knight will serve three years as a Trustee of the Roger Williams General Hospital in Providence. He was elected at the recent annual meeting.

Edward W. Weikert has a new address at 8 S. Dearborn St., Chicago 3, Ill.

The Rev. Eugene C. Carder D.D., former associate minister of the Riverside Church, New York, has left the city for Greensboro, Vt., and in a note reporting change of address says: "This seems to be about the time, in the ordinary course of events, for men of 1907 like John McLean, Merrick Streeter and others 'of the cloth' to retire, and I am doing just that. It is my good luck to have long since acquired a little home in Northern Vermont. Now we propose to make believe it is summer all the year — or most of it."

Ira Leston Nickerson writes that he has moved from Hollywood (where his son-in-law, Eddie Bracken, is one of the select circle of comedians) to 10747 Rochester Ave., Los Angeles 24, Calif.

"No snow on the Boardwalk," wrote Dr. C. W. Way the last Sunday in February on a postcard showing a hotel at Atlantic City. And in the previous day's mail was a note from W. W. Reynolds reporting that he was dieting again at Mount Pocono, Pa.

Henry G. Clark has been re-elected as President of Roger Williams General Hospital, Providence.

William P. Burnham, Claude R. Branch and A. H. Gurney attended the 1948 meeting of the Advisory Council of the Associated Alumni. Bill is a Past President of the AA; Claude, as you know, is National Chairman of the Housing Fund Campaign. Al held the proxy of the Brown Club of Alta California until George Channing '11 arrived from San Francisco.

George Campbell's correct business address is General Electric Co., Electric Bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

Claude R. Branch was re-named a director of the Anchor Insurance Co. at its recent annual meeting. It is a subsidiary wholly owned by the Providence Washington Insurance Co.

George Hurley is active again this winter in the councils of the Rhode Island State Civil Service Commission.

Prof. Vernon K. Kriebel, chairman of the Department of Chemistry at Trinity College, Hartford, is on leave of absence this term from his academic duties.

Associate Justice James Harvey Baugh of the Texas Court of Civil Appeals, 3rd Supreme Judicial District, died in Austin Nov. 25, 1947, after a long illness. Since 1923 he had been continuously on the bench except for two years, 1942-44, when he was on military duty with the Judge Advocate General's Department in Washington. He was also a veteran of the First World War, having enlisted in May, 1917, as a private. He went to Officer Training School, and on his discharge in August, 1919, held the rank of Major. He did not go over seas. When he returned to Austin in 1944 he was Lt. Col., JAGD. For 29 years he had a commission in the Reserve.

Born in Brownwood, Texas, March 11, 1884, the son of W. M. and C. Z. Baugh, he prepared at Howard Payne College in Brownwood, entered Baylor University with the Class of 1906, won his A.B. there, and came to Brown on an E. L. Marston Scholarship. He was with us on the Hill for Senior year, served on the staff of the Brunonian under his room mate, Leon E. Truesdell, received his A.B. in course, and went back to Brownwood to teach history and civics at Howard Payne. After two years he resigned to enter the Law School, University of Texas, from which he was graduated in 1911.

As lawyer, soldier, and State Senator he was active in Brownwood and Austin until 1923 when he went on the bench. His hobby was golf; he had five holes in one to his credit and, as he admitted, was "rather proficient" in the game. Because of arthritis in one knee he gave up golf a few years ago. "I have had numerous impulses and a continued intention to come back to the old Alma Mater and see what changes time hath wrought," he wrote in May, 1947. "In 1932 all of us were broke. In 1937 I was overwhelmed with work. In 1942 I was in the Army, and then on duty in Washington. Now Father Time has taken his toll. . . . I have been hopeful that Texas opportunities would lure more Brown men to take advantage of them, but it seems that New Englanders are a good deal like Texans. When they once take root it is hard to pull them loose."

On Dec. 2, 1917, Judge Baugh married Miss Rosa Moffett of Brownwood, who survives and who is living at 1508 Parkway, Austin.

Hill Griffith and Mrs. Griffith are occupying their new house in Littleton, N. H., which Griff designed and which the village contractor built for him. "The house is proving most comfortable and generally satisfactory," Griff wrote, "although we're still waiting for storm windows and a few other items 'in short supply'." . . . "Partly as a result of this little house," he received a commission to design and supervise construction of a much larger house for a summer resident of Littleton. He's already done the sketches and found a builder to start work this spring.

Earle W. Peckham is one of four Worcester Academy instructors who this year are marking periods of 25 years or more with the school. "Mr. Peckham came to the school in the fall of 1923," said the Worcester Telegram, "as an instructor in French and Latin and has also taught mathematics. He is master of the dining hall, faculty advisor of the Chess Club and has been class advisor to the classes of 1937 and 1944. He has been head of the Latin Department for 21 years." Earle's son, Edmund T. Peckham, is a student on the Hill. His daughter Virginia lives at home in Worcester.

Judge Edward L. Leahy has been re-elected President of Rhode Island Child Service. He also serves on its investment committee.

Williams the Warrior

► THE FRAMEWORK for a lively biography of a great editor, Alfred Mason Williams '60, was shaped with understanding admiration by George W. Potter '21 recently when the Pulitzer Prize winner began a series of columns in the Providence Journal.

"I hope to relive the days of Mr. Williams," wrote Potter, "as a student at Brown, as a volunteer in the Civil War, as a newspaper publisher in the Southwest; as the editor of one of the best anthologies on Irish poetry and the biographer of Sam Houston, as the student of folklore; review his part in introducing the Celtic Renaissance to the United States and of his long fight in behalf of Irish freedom; and revive some of the bitter and heated Rhode Island political battles in which his sharp sword cut and slashed until fat corruption bled and was hurt." ◀

Dane '11, William H. Edwards '19, Arthur L. Perry '00, and William P. Sheffield, Jr., '15.

Back in Harness

► IT WAS a good gag. The Providence Sunday Journal brought John T. Winterich '12 back to town the other day to revisit some of the scenes made famous in his best seller, "Another Day, Another Dollar." He put on a conductor's hat and collected a fare for the U.E.R., then switched to a Providence Gas Company hat and read meters—just as he did in his college and near-college days, just as he said he did in the book.

The Treasurer of the Gas Company said he'd bought a copy of the book for each director. "You ought to have more directors," said Winterich.

W. T. Scott '31, Literary Editor of the Providence Journal, who accompanied Winterich on the nostalgic ramble, had another quote from the author: "There's something I forgot to put in the book. One day a man got on my trolley and he had only a $10 bill. I couldn't change it. I refused to let him ride. I put him off the car. Thank God, he didn't protest; he just got off. But it's been on my conscience ever since."

Winterich, by the way, will be the principal speaker at the light-hearted Alumni Dinner set for June 18, the Friday night of the Commencement weekend.

Embassies sponsored at Brown by the Christian Association, came back to the campus to lead a discussion group at his fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, this February when the ninth Embassy was held.

The January issue of the Mechanical Engineering is full of high praise for Eugene W. O'Brien, retiring President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. His speech at the annual banquet in Atlantic City was reprinted in full and struck a sympathetic chord with its theme, "Accent on Youth." "Mr. O'Brien is one of the very few men who really knows young engineers," said the magazine. . . . Here is a man to whom we should listen when he talks as we know that he speaks with authority." In his presidential address, Mr. O'Brien said young engineers want several things: 1—action, not merely reports and surveys; 2—protection, against unionization, "trade-school engineers," against a public opinion which doesn't give him his due, and against an economic system which does not give him full pay; 3—educational guidance; 4—unification of the profession. Mr. O'Brien felt the ASME and the Engineers Joint Council had been of real service to youth.

Hartley F. Roberts, Republican City Chairman in Providence for the past four years, was unseated in February as a factional fight within the City Committee came to a head. After the adverse vote, Roberts said, "I'm still a Republican. Call on me anytime." Applause greeted this sporting remark, and the committee gave its official thanks for his past efforts.

"It is the duty of the United Nations organization to meet its responsibility immediately by setting up in Palestine some sort of international police force," Samuel Temkin, Providence lawyer, wrote in a recent letter to the editor of the Providence Journal. The Jews, he felt, are in Palestine by right—historical, legal, and moral.

Dr. John Harriman recently addressed the sixth session on small business problems at Utica College. Prof. Harriman has been teaching at Syracuse University for a couple of years.

Dr. Herman A. Lawson is a new member of the executive committee of the Providence Medical Association and a delegate to the House of Delegates of the State Medical Society.

Charles H. Lawton, Jr., of Pawtucket is a member of the Executive Committee of the new Rhode Island Swimming Coaches and Officials Association. The group will endeavor to foster amateur swimming, select all-star teams, and conduct an annual school for officials.

After a few refinements, the 25th reunion program is taking on its final form and should meet universal satisfaction. It permits our taking part in the general events of the University Commencement weekend, while setting aside the major portion of the time for our own devices. Reunion Chairman Nat Chase and his committeemen have really been working to do things up Brown, as befits a top anniversary. From the field, in the meantime, comes word from more and more men. From early indications it appears that we may be one of the first Brown classes to hit 100 on reunion attendance.

Hegman Hall, favored among Brown dormitories, has been reserved for our reunion headquarters, and the plan calls for spending every night there, with day trips to country club or clambake club to supplement the campus interest, displayed so widely. The men will arrive Friday, June 18, and the committee will arrange for lunch if there is sufficient call. Otherwise, the first official event will be a cocktail party at which the Rhode Island members will be host to their classmates. In the evening the Class will attend the "reunion of reunions," the Alumni Dinner in Andrews Hall. The Class Night Dance and Promenade are held that evening later.

The feature event of Saturday, June 19, will be a clambake at the Squantum Club, famed on the Atlantic Coast as providing the best in bakes—a privilege even for epicures. The Class Dinner will be held on Sunday at a country club near Providence, and the annual Alumni Meeting comes that evening. The annual Class Breakfast will usher in Commencement Day as preliminary to the procession and graduation.

On both Saturday and Sunday golf and other sports will be available near Providence, while there will be plenty of opportunity for campus rambles, reminiscence, and all that reunion means for men 25 years out.

Ronald Smith has agreed to serve as Treasurer for the reunion. The full committee is being set up, although major assignments have been accepted. The cost of the reunion should not exceed $35, Chase estimates.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Ballou have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Paula Jane Ballou, to A. Richard Swenson, Brown undergraduate and son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl R. Swenson also of Providence.

Prof. Clarence E. Bennett, head of the Department of Physics at the University of Maine, was worried that a trip to Texas on University business would make him miss our 25th reunion. Now it appears that he will be with us at least from Saturday noon on.

Lt. Col. Marsden P. Earle was back in action Feb. 21 when a theoretical battle was fought by officers of the Army's organized reserve corps in Providence. The infantry worked from the Industrial Trust Building, the artillery from the Blue Cross Building, and the problem involved some mountains in Oklahoma.

It was good to see Harold Engstrom at the New York Dinner. He's been in New York for two years now, with American Home Products Corporation, and lives in Pelham. During the war he was in Baltimore as supervisor of production standards

Louis L. Redding, formerly Special Trial Attorney and Enforcement Unit Chief with the Regional Office of OPA in New York City, has returned to Wilmington, Del. He has opened offices for the resumption of the general practice of law at suite 303, 921 Market St., Wilmington 7. Louis took a lot of good-natured kidding at the New York Brown dinner when someone recalled the trouble he had in passing off his swimming requirement in College. It was good to see him.

Dr. Daniel V. Troppoli has been re-elected Secretary of the Providence Medical Association. The organization held its 101st annual meeting recently.

Robert M. Bent was co-author (with A. M. Impagliazzo '34) of a paper on "Low-Pressure Steam-Heated Marine Distilling Plants," presented at the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and scheduled for early publication in Mechanical Engineering. Both engineers are with Griscom-Russell Co., New York.

Malcolm L. Berrian is Comptroller for the Louttit Laundry Co. in Providence. His home is at 64 Moorland Ave., Edgewood.

William A. Dyer, Jr., General Manager of the Indianapolis Star, attended the last February luncheon of the Chicago Brown Club when he was a visitor to the Windy City. He reports a pleasant time, particularly since he encountered Jack Monk, one of the Chicago regulars. Bill had read of the luncheon in this magazine.

Alfred Elson, Jr., was host at a dinner for the coaches and football varsity of the Providence Country Day School, according to the March issue of the Country Day Bulletin. His son was captain of the team.

On Feb. 22 the Providence Journal noted, in its regular department "25 Years Ago" that Capt. Davy Jones, "Brown University's crack swimmer," had broken the national intercollegiate 100-yard record in a meet with Rutgers in Colgate Hoyt Pool. Davy's daughter Roberta will be a June graduate from Pembroke, and he will come East for Commencement, he tells Bill McCormick. He instructs Bob Goff to save a place for

Those Who Give "Doctor's Orders"

►► "DOCTOR'S ORDERS" has been a Rhode Island institution for three years, a New England familiar for several months, and this winter gained a foothold beyond the Hudson. It is a Sunday afternoon radio program, on which home-town doctors have their say about health and disease. It now has the sponsorship of the New England Council and the six New England State Medical Societies.

Many a Brunonian is involved, from top to bottom of the enterprise. Frank Jones '28 of Radio Providence Productions produces "Doctor's Orders" for broadcast over the Yankee Network, of which Linus Travers '27 is Executive Vice-President. Regulars in the drama which precedes the medical talk are Walter Covell '38 and Tilden Mason '35, two Sock and Buskin alumni. But the co-operation of dozens of members of the medical profession really makes the program possible. The following doctors, Brown alumni and R. I. residents, have appeared as guest speakers on "Doctor's Orders":

Irving A. Beck '32, D. William J. Bell '31, Morris Botvin '32, Russell S. Bray '26, William P. Buffum '09, Alex M. Burgess '06, Harold G. Calder '02, Francis Chafee '27, Peter Pineo Chase '06, Edward Damarjian '32, Ralph DiLeone '17, William P. D'ugo, John A. Dziob '30, Jesse Potter Eddy '28, Francis Garside '18, John Gilbert '12, Kalei K. Gregory '23, F. Charles Hanson '29, Benjamin F. Harley '41, Herbert Harris '07, Louis I. Kramer '18, John Langdon '25, Charles B. Lewis '35, Herman B. Marks '30, Anthony V. Migliaccio '24, Himon Miller '30, Wilfred Pickles '18, Louis A. Sage '26, Lee G. Sannella '30, Carl S. Sawyer '34, Joseph Smith '20, Daniel V. Troppoli '23, George Waterman '15, Guy W. Wells '16, Edward J. West '24, Henry Weyler '16, Malcolm Winkler '30, and Coach Joseph Watmough.

him at the "reunion of reunions" June 18 and asks the dinner chairman also to see that Frank Hough, Jed Jones, Jim Stifled, Orville Cullerton, and Bob Inman are on hand so that "we can have an inner reunion." Davy lives at 829 Wisconsin Ave., Oak Park, Ill.

C. H. Klump is Vice-President of the Motor Express, Inc., with headquarters in the National City Bank Building of Cleveland. Bud hopes to visit in Providence in the near future.

Matthew W. Goring is a new member of the Providence law firm of Hinckley, Allen, Tillinghast & Wheeler, it was announced March 1. Among other Brunonians with whom he thus became associated are: Frank L. Hinckley '91, Arthur M. Allen '97, Chauncey E. Wheeler '09, Harold P. Salisbury '12, Stuart H. Tucker '22, Edward Winslow Lincoln '23, Mason B. Merchant '25, S. Everett Wilkins, Jr., '24, Noel M. Field '26, Woodworth L. Carpenter '30, Bruce M. Docherty '31, and Thomas J. Hogan '36. The late Frederick W. Tillinghast was Brown 1902.

Dr. Walter S. Jones has been designated (by the Providence Medical Association) as a member of the House of Delegates of the R. I. Medical Society.

"As official favorite professor of three Pembroke classes, Prof. I. J. Kapstein has been, is and always will be ranked among the unofficial favorites of all Pembroke," said the Pembroke Record in offering a profile of this member of the English Department and our magazine Board of Editors. His skill as a grower of chrysanthemums and his diligence as a wood-carver were noted in a section on his hobbies.

J. Lawrence McElroy, Denison W. Greene '24, and Wallace B. Bainton '25 are members of the Executive Council of the Fathers' Association of Lincoln School in Providence, McElroy and Bainton serving on the Board.

John C. Pieri is director of the R. I. Sportmen's and Boat Show to be held at the R. I. Auditorium April 19 through 27.

C. H. Polley, Jr., is stock broker and salesman for Coffin, Betz, and Sullivan in Philadelphia. His home there is at 2031 Locust St.

Jacob S. Temkin reported that the Jewish Family and Children's Service, an affiliate of the Providence Council of Social Agencies, helped 357 families and 56 child care cases last year. Jack was re-elected President at the 19th annual meeting of the agency in February. A member of the Board of Directors of the Narragansett Council, Boy Scouts of America, for a number of years, he is conducting a survey of Council operations as chairman of a special committee.

Nat R. Underdown, District Commissioner for the Fred W. Marvel District of the Narragansett Council, Boy Scouts of America, has an all-Brown staff of assistants: Benjamin P. Harris, Jr., '23, Leslie T. Chase '28, and Prof. W. E. S. Moulton '31.

William B. Widnall of the State Legislature was pictured in the February issue of the New Jersey Educational Review as one of the principals at the Joint NEA-NJEA Legislative Conference.

New addresses: Charles H. Stickel, Rt. 3, Fairfax, Va.; Dr. Reginald Farran, 6121 Hampstead Ave., Richmond, Va.

Arnold K. Brown is a member of the Executive Committee which the Providence Chamber of Commerce named at its 80th annual meeting recently. He is a Director of the R. I. Hospital Trust Co.

► VICTOR HILL '27 expressed his sentiments as follows in a letter to a Providence radio columnist: "I have decided to disregard the implications of a program entitled 'Music to Read By.' This is perhaps because of the added complication and/or paradox, that the program is sponsored by a newspaper. . . . I wonder if the newspaper is going to square things off by running a column or a page (preferably blank) headed: 'Stories to Read to Music to Read By.'" ◀

This is the year our class gathers after 20 years to renew our friendships. Early returns indicate our 20th Reunion will be the largest ever held by any class, far surpassing our own 10th.

A large committee under the able chairmanship of Lou Palmer has been working for months completing arrangements. The Norwich Inn and Golf Club at Norwich, Conn., has been selected as headquarters for our festivities. By this time every member of the Class should have received a folder giving all details. It is sufficient to say that a full program has been planned to run for two days, from Friday afternoon June 18 to after lunch on Sunday June 20. One of the features is the election of new officers for the Class.

Any member of the Class who has not yet sent in his "I-will-be-there" card is urged to do so now as all of his friends will be at the reunion.

A. Woodbury Calder is a new member of the Board of Directors of the Narragansett Council, Boy Scouts of America, and attended his first meeting in February.

We had a look the other day at the catalogue of The House of Campbell, presenting original toys and handmade gifts for infants, a very attractive and inviting line. The proprietor is J. Richard Campbell; the address 390 Waltham St., West Newton, Mass. Our guess is he would do quite a mail-order business.

Leslie T. Chase continues his interest in the Boy Scout movement as Assistant District Commissioner for the Fred W. Marvel District in Providence. Prof W. E. S. Moulton '31 is another assistant, serving under District Commissioner Nat R. Underdown '26.

Lt. Col. Dixwell Goff commanded the artillery in February when 100 officers of the Army's organized reserve corps in Rhode Island worked out a battle problem in the foothills of the Wichita Mountains of Oklahoma—all the while occupying two office buildings in downtown Providence.

Paul H. Hodge, Providence attorney, was elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Providence Urban League at its annual meeting in February.

Harvey J. Ollsen is Senior Corporation Analyst with the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington. He is living at 305 Greenwich Lane, Silver Spring, Md.

Thomas J. Paolino, member of the Executive Committee of the Rhode Island State Central Committee of the GOP, has been named to head a special Republican committee to assist city and town officials with advice on the direct primary law and its operations.

Thomas F. Peterson, Jr., is now in London, where he is an attorney for White and Case of New York City. His overseas address: 18 Rossetti Gardens Mansions, London SW 3.

Roger M. Scott, as Vice-President of the Providence Engineering Society, is apparently in line to succeed Prof. Zenas R. Bliss as President of that association.

There is now a bridge which spans the west passage of Narragansett Bay from Jamestown to Saunderstown. To provide a bridge for the second step from Jamestown to Newport, legislation has been under consideration in the R. I. General Assembly. At a public hearing on the question in March, M. James Vieira, counsel for the Jamestown Town Council, appeared as an opponent of the bill in its early form.

Lester A. Wallenstein has changed his name to Lester A. Wells and is now living at 1831 Marengo St., New Orleans, La.

Everett S. Woodmancy sends a change of address to 117 Larch St., Providence.

Dr. Powel M. Dawley was scheduled as guest preacher at St. James Episcopal Church in Danbury, Conn. on Ash Wednesday. Dr. Dawley is the St. Mark's-in-the-Bowery Professor of Ecclesiastical History at the General Theological Seminary in New York City.

Ted Giddings, City Editor of the Berkshire Eagle in Pittsfield, Mass., is now writing a hunting and fishing column in the Eagle.

Dr. Kenneth A. Scott continues as Chairman of the Training Committee for the Narragansett Council, Boy Scouts of America, in which he has long been active as Scout and Director. Dr. Scott, who is President of the Rhode Island Osteopathic Society, presided over the society's third annual two-day seminar in February.

Harold S. Sizer was one of the committee-men which arranged the successful annual banquet of the Providence Engineering Society, its 29th, late in February.

Ralph Sterritt is living at 435 Orchard Place in Meadville, Pa. He is with Montgomery Ward & Co. there.

THIS PICTURE of a Brown Bear at the switchboard is one of the gayest souvenirs which came to the University after World War II. The donor is John E. Flemming '33 of Summit, N. J., who was a Lt. Col. AGC. He explains the history of the sign, which is about 18 inches square:

"It was the general practice overseas to use a code name for each unit when telephoning. When serving as S-1 of the Airborne Training Center, North African Theater of Operations, it was my good fortune to be able to select a new code name at the time of changing station from Oujda, French Morocco, to Trapani, Sicily, in January 1944. (The indication that a word was needed which used B and R for its first two letters made the choice simple.) I, of course, selected the name BROWN, and so the name of Alma Mater was heard far and wide across the island and even to Italy.

"This sign board hung outside the telephone office during that time, and so it gives me great pleasure to present it to the University as a souvenir."

New addresses: Howard Cook, 49 E. 49th St., New York, N. Y.; Prof. Morrison Sharp, 946 11th St., Charleston, Ill.; Sidney Richards, Hunarock P. O., Marshfield, Mass.; A. M. Basile, Hurley Bldg., Shelton, Conn.; Allen Atwood, 432 Oak Rd., Janesville, Wis.; Maurice R. Seymour, 19 Colonel Hunt Drive, Abington, Mass.

Have you seen the national advertising for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York? The picture is Ed Sittler's, and the headline is "I found my career on the third try!" It tells how he became a life underwriter, how he's liked it, and why he's successful.

Woodie Carpenter, Providence lawyer and resident of Union Village, is on the Board of Directors of the new charitable organization Crippled Children and Adults of R. I., Inc. Tom Tisdell of North Smithfield is another member of this agency which sponsors the sale of Easter seals and conducts a school in the old Meeting St. School which was the first location of Brown when it came to Providence from Warren in the College's early days.

Dr. Himon Miller, consulting psychiatrist for the Jewish Family and Children's Service in Providence, was the speaker at its 19th annual meeting in February, talking on "Psychiatry in a Changing World."

We have heard that George L. Burdick is now living at 685 Pierce St., Birmingham, Mich.

We find that our California representative, Paul E. Ochs, has moved into gold fields; namely, 111 Sutter St., San Francisco.

Arty Sanborn, the outstanding wrestler of his class in college—with apologies to Captain Anderton—has moved from Marblehead, Mass., to 106½ Ocean Ave., Monmouth Beach, N. J. Sanby is still in the Navy and keeps himself busy.

Dr. G. Edward Crane, Brown's Athletic Surgeon, was a "patient" when the Providence Medical Association celebrated its Centennial in February. Several of the doctors took part in a skit which kidded their forbears and their methods. Dr. Alex M. Burgess, Jr., '33 was another who took part. Crane has been named to the House of Delegates of the R. I. Medical Society.

Thomas G. Desmond has been appointed Vice-Principal of the Woodbridge, N. J., High School. He has been teaching there since 1932 with the exception of the 42-month period of service in the Army.

Robert F. Eddy is a member of the Corporation of the Edgewood School of Barrington, shortly to become the first junior college in Rhode Island.

Ronald C. Green, Jr., Vice-President of the Providence Lying-in Hospital, presided over its annual meeting in February. He was re-elected to his office and to the Board of Trustees. T. Robley Louttit and his wife were elected to the hospital Corporation at the same meeting.

Rev. Robert W. Little was a discussion leader at Brown during the Christian Association's ninth annual Religious Embassy in February. He conducted the group meeting in his own fraternity house, Theta Delta Chi.

Judge William A. Mackenzie and Richard A. Hurley, Jr., '32 are new members of the Board of Directors of the Narragansett Council, Boy Scouts of America. Hurley has been made vice-chairman of a special committee to give leadership to council-wide re-registration.

Edward M. Read, Jr., moves on next summer to St. Paul, Minn., leaving his post at John Burroughs School in Missouri where he has been for several years principal of the Senior School and assistant director. He goes to St. Paul Academy to be assistant headmaster and will be, as he was at John Burroughs, chairman of the department of history and social studies. Mr. Read is no stranger to St. Paul, for he taught at the Academy from 1936 to 1942 before going to John Burroughs. 1936-1942; 1942-1948—sometimes he must wonder if his life goes in six-year cycles.

We are sorry to learn of the death of Russell H. Corp, father of Russell Corp, Jr.

Tom Eccleston can take a lot of credit for a fine coaching job at Burrillville High where his hockey team won the R. I. championships and made a fine showing in the New England tournament in Boston in losing to the eventful winners. Although his teams have reached the State playoffs seven times and the finals four times, this was his first title. His sons, four-year-old Donnie, and seven-year-old Tommy, also put on hockey uniforms to scrimmage at the R. I. Auditorium one February night against some other midgets.

John Glover is living at 36 Landon Parkway, Landonville, N. Y. He is associated with the Campbell Soup Co. there.

Taylor R. Phillips is on the Executive Council of the Fathers' Association of Lincoln School.

Dr. John B. Rae, Associate Professor of History at M.I.T., was the speaker at a February meeting of the St. Andrew's Society of Rhode Island.

New addresses: Lester Friedman, 92 Colonial Rd., Providence; Rt. Rev. Richard Emrich, 1705 Hill St., Ann Arbor, Mich.; L. W. Sanford, 1120 Mayfield Ridge, South Euclid, Ohio.

1933

Melvin Aselton, Jr., has a new address at 306 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

Dr. Donald L. DeNyse reported to the Corporation of the Roger Williams General Hospital at its annual meeting late in February. He is Secretary.

William J. Gilbane is vice-chairman of a special committee of the Narragansett Council giving attention to advancement in Scouting. He is a member of the B.S.A. Council's Board of Directors.

Dr. Robert W. Van Wart is located at 15 Summer St., Winthrop, Me., where he is an Osteopathic Physician.

Owen F. Walker of the law firm of Thompson, Hine and Flory in Cleveland (Guardian Building) is now living at 12700 Shaker Blvd., Cleveland 20, Ohio.

Joseph Edwards is a Salesman for the National Biscuit Co. in Yonkers, N. Y. He is living at Lake Katonah, Katonah, N. Y.

Dr. I. Gershaman has been designated a Licentiate of the American Board of Podiatrists. He is practicing in Providence at 343 Thayer St.

A year ago A. M. Impagliazzo, engineer with Griscom-Russell Co. of New York, contributed a paper on "Distilling-Plant Economy" to Mechanical Engineering which has caused a lot of interest in the profession. A recent issue of the magazine published several comments with a closure by the author. Apparently the subject was pursued further in a paper "Low-Pressure Steam-Heated Marine Distilling Plants" by Impagliazzo and R. M. Bent '24, a colleague at Griscom-Russell, which was presented at the December meetings of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in Atlantic City.

Who Owns Brunonia? ◀ ◀

▶ ▶ DO YOU KNOW who owns the name "Brunonia"? According to the American Kennel Club, it is Coburn A. Buxton '34 of Dallas, Tex., who has registered the name of his Brunonia Kennels. If the University "behaves itself," however, Brown may still make use of its derivative name, he assures us.

The specialty of Brunonia Kennels at 10025 Meadowbrook Rd., Dallas, is German Shepherds, of which the most famous is a female, Champion Susan of Flowdale, whose picture has appeared in Dog World and elsewhere. She has been handled by Peter Patterson, who assisted in her showing debut at the age of eight months Nov. 11, 1945, when she went Winner's Bitch. There were other victories at Tyler, Temple, Dallas twice more, Fort Worth, and College Station, concluding her championship with four more than the needed 15 points in 1946 and early 1947. Included were five Best of Breeds and two placings in Groups. (The gentleman on the right in the picture, with the ribbons in his hand, is Anton Korbel, AKC all-breed judge who is also a breeder of German Shepherds.)

Buxton, son of Col. G. Edward Buxton '02 was elected first President of the German Shepherd Dog Club of Dallas when it was organized last summer, and a similar club for the State of Texas has been incorporated. Every fourth Sunday the Dallas group meets at Brunonia Kennels, and seven Dallas Shepherds, including four from Brunonia, went to the Oklahoma City Show last fall. Buxton looks on a young female, Brunonia's Countess Paula, as a true successor to Susy. Several new owners (the average pup sells at $125 at seven weeks of age) have nick-named their dogs Bruno, and Buxton believes that a Yale bulldog wouldn't make more than one good meal for a 90-pound Shepherd. The day after Brown beat Yale last fall, Brunonia's King Michael licked a class of eight at Oklahoma City.

Buxton is interested in another method of spreading the name of Brunonia, too. Buxtons have always liked to sing Brown songs, and he has printed up a few thousand songsheets, which he offers to any interested alumni or Brown Clubs. Any alumnus who sends a letter or postcard will receive a songsheet by return mail, and any Brown Club Secretary may ask for enough for his meeting. They were used for the first time at the fall meeting of the Brown Club of Texas.

Buxton is proud that the German Shepherds distinguished themselves in the war, given top recognition by the Army for use in its K-9 Corps. Their sense of devotion, obedience, and protection also marked them for use as "Seeing Eyes."

► EXCAVATIONS for the new Providence Washington Insurance Company building directly across North Main St. from the First Baptist Meeting House have interested the town for months as the foundations have been prepared. Nine old foundations, some on top of older ones, have been removed. An ancient wooden water pipe was found to be made of hollow tree trunks joined together, apparently laid some time after the cove, which once split Providence, was filled in. It connected with ancient springs. Still farther down the power shovels began to unearth wooden piles by the hundred, which must have provided mooring for shipping in the town's early days. One wooden wharf was found, while there was also a little garden wall of stone and brick with a gracefully arched gateway near North Main St. Substantial heaps of clam and oyster shells indicated the early presence of shellfish.

Cover-boy for the February issue of the New Jersey Educational Review was young Fred A. Forbes, Jr., whose portrait was used because he "typifies the thousands of post-war babies who will swell enrollments in the years ahead." The magazine is the official publication of the New Jersey Education Association, for which Fred A. Forbes, Sr., is Field Representative. The idea for the photo came from an earlier one which had been taken of the boy in a sweater identifying him as Brown 1968, in which his father entered him when the baby was three hours old. Fred is in charge of public relations for NEA-NJEA.

Both Are Graduates

► FOUR-YEAR-OLD Jonathan Hartwell Harwood 3rd, who has been attending Cornell University for 2½ years while his mother finished her college course, was also a February graduate—from nursery school into kindergarten. Mrs. Harwood went back to college in 1945 to continue her studies, her husband having been killed on D-Day in Normandy as a Captain with the Rangers. He was Jonathan H. Harwood, Jr., '40.

Each morning Mrs. Harwood and the boy have taken the bus from Ithaca to attend their classes. ◀

Don't Forget the Rabbits

► IN OUR FEBRUARY ISSUE we referred to the pedigreed mice at Brown, their importance in cancer research, and a grant received to support the studies in nuclear phenomena in the mouse liver.

Dr. C. C. Little, famed leader in the work on cancer, said something recently which reminded us of another royal family in the animal kingdom which Brown University shelters. Speaking of the great need of inbred strains of rabbits, Dr. Little said, "Investigation of the interests and problems of many of the larger laboratories of experimental medicine has shown that the existence of genetically uniform strains of rabbits would greatly accelerate progress and stabilize results obtained."

There are, he noted, "at least two good strains of rabbits at Providence and nuclei of other strains at the Rockefeller Institute in Princeton. . . . It is hoped that with the rabbits from Brown University and the beginning of inbred strains which have been made at Bar Harbor (the Jackson Memorial Laboratory), a strong foundation can be laid to which other stocks can be added as occasion arises." ◀

Too Many Guns

► "GUNS are one thing from which China is suffering very acutely — too many guns," R. Tabor Jenkins '46 said upon his return to Providence recently. "The Chinese soldier who gets a gun never goes anywhere without it. And he doesn't hesitate to use it when he wants something."

Jenkins has come back for graduate study at Brown and will also teach as an engineering instructor. He had been in China for two years, first in the Friends Ambulance Service transporting supplies and later trained for X-ray repair and installation. His work involved extensive travel, a major undertaking in itself.

China's greatest need, he says is "concerned, technically qualified men and women." There is so much to be done to overcome poverty, disease, and war devastation. Jenkins hopes to return to China after studies at Brown and Harvard. ◀
