

Education Policy: The Road to Recovery

Condoms in the classroom, quotas for kids, parents without choices...how did U.S. education policy stray so far? More importantly, what can we do to get it back on track?

In FRC's expanded and virtually all-new Education Recovery Packet, you'll find a collection of FRC releases on some of today's most pressing education issues. The packet includes the results of FRC's national survey of classics and American libraries, FRC education policy chief Bob Morrison's testimony on abolishing the Department of Education, and policy papers on such varied topics as classical education, the new, "dumbed-down" Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT), and the dangerous federal CAREERS bill.

Use the other side of this card to order these resources today. Use it as well to obtain a copy of FRC's new Family Policy report, "The One-House Schoolroom: The Extraordinary Influence of Family Life on Student Learning."

The Internal Revenue Code permits you to deduct the amount you give to Family Research Council that goes beyond the value of materials we send you. To help you determine the tax-deductible portion of your gift, we'll show the fair market value on your packing slip. Please note that gifts credited to 1995 must be postmarked no later than December 31, 1995.
