UNION COLLEGE HEAD DELIVERS ADDRESS IN FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Annual Ceremony Held to Give Recognition For Work of Distinction.

Subject of Speech by Dr. Day
Is "The Banks of the Susquehanna."

At a special service held at the First Baptist Meeting House, the annual honors day ceremonies were held. The address was delivered by President Frank Parker Day of Union College.

President Day declared that the University and Union College are very close. He told the honors day audience of Eliphalet Nott, the country boy who threw the officers of the University, back in 1795, into consternation by demanding a diploma because he could pass all the examinations despite the fact that he had never attended class a single day. Further consternation was caused when Eliphalet did pass the examinations. Dr. Day declared, but he was given an M. A. The boy who had never spent a day at a college became President of Union College in 1804, the speaker said.

Jonathan Maxcy, one of the early Brown Presidents, also became President of Union, while Francis Wayland, a graduate of Union in 1813, became President of the University in 1827, Dr. Day said.

The speaker's subject, "The Banks of the Susquehanna," was chosen, declared President Day, "with the hope that for a few moments I may catch and hold your attention." He used the title as a symbol for the Age of Gold, the land of the poet's dream.

Golden Age Ahead

Elaborating upon this golden age, President Day declared it his belief that this era lies ahead

SPECIAL EXHIBITION

The special attention of undergraduates and visitors to the University is called during this Inaugural period to an exhibition now on display in the John Hay Library. A collection of historic documents relating to the former Presidents of the University along with many interesting reminders of the remarkable history of the University to be found there.

The University's Tenth President

DR. BARBOUR HAS LONG CAREER IN MINISTRY

President Known as Vigorous Preacher and Worker For Civic Betterment.

Clarence Augustus Barbour, whose inauguration as tenth president of the University takes place today, has for many years been a leading figure in the Baptist denomination of the United States. Like his predecessor, Dr. William H. P. Faunce, he is known for his liberal views, his ability as a speaker, and his wide acquaintanceship with men and young men in all parts of the country.

One of the unusual facts of his career as a minister is that since his ordination in 1891 he has held only one pastorate, that of the Lake Avenue Baptist Church in Rochester, N. Y. Immediately after he was ordained, May 15, 1891, he became pastor of the Rochester church, and in the 18 years that he occupied its pulpit

Yesterday.

In the final workout in preparation for the Yale game Saturday the University football squad went through a light drill consisting principally in a further development of the passing attack which worked so effectively against the Tiger. In the absence of Fogarty whose injury is not improving as rapidly as was expected, Caulkins, Gurll and Edwards took turns in throwing passes in the attempt to develop more deception in the work of the backfield.

According to Coach McLaughry, the entire team which faced Princeton and returned with the first victory over the Orange and Black team in history, with the exception of Ferrebee, would

INDUCTED WITH ACADEMIC RITUALS

Representatives from 130 Universities and Colleges Included in Procession; Largest Ever Seen on College Hill.

Amid a scene of academic pageantry such as has never before been seen on College Hill, Dr. Clarence Augustus Barbour will be inaugurated as tenth president of the University in, the historic First Baptist Meeting House where he received his degree 41 years ago. Delegates from 130 other colleges and universities, including 64 presidents and representatives of the six colleges in the United States that are older than the University, all in full academic regalia, will form the most colorful feature of an inaugural procession that will include also the Governor of Rhode Island, the United States Senators from this state, and the administrative officers and faculty of the University.

Sheriff Leads Procession

Tradition also will play an important part in the ceremony. President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, who is to be one of the principal speakers, maintains the old custom by which the president of Harvard, the oldest college in the country, is always present whenever a new president is inaugurated at the University. The inauguration procession will be led by the Sheriff of Providence Country, attired in evening dress and a high hat, with a blue ribbon across his bosom and a sword swinging by his side. The Sheriff has marched in Commencement and other academic processions since 1790.

The inaugural procession, marshaled by Colonel Henry Brayton Rose, 1881, will form on the campus at one o'clock. It will proceed through the Van Wicklegates and down College Hill to the First Baptist Meeting House, where the inauguration ceremony will commence at two o'clock.

The first division will be led by Professor Thomas Crosby, Jr., 1894 bearing the golden mace. He will be followed by Dr. Barbour, Chancellor Arnold B. Chace 1866 Theodore Francis Greene 1887, the speakers of the day, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and President Livingston Farrand of Cornell, Bishop Perry and Rev. Dr. Arthur W. Cleaves, the Board of Fellows, the Board of Trustees, the Deans of the University, the faculty and other officers.

The second division will be made up of the visiting delegates, representing 130 colleges and universities and many preparatory schools academic societies. They will wear full academic regalia and will march in the order of the founding of their respective institutions.

Officials Follow

The third division, which will be headed by the color guard, will include Governor Norman S. Case 1908, and his staff, the United States Senators and Congressmen from Rhode Island, Lieutenant Governor James G. Connolly 1909, Speaker Roy Rawlings of the Rhode Island House, United States Judge Ira Lloyd Letts

UNIVERSITY SOCCER TEAM MEETS AMHERST

Rasmussen, Injured in the M. I. T. Contest, to be in Lineup When Game Starts.

Yesterday finished a week of intensive drill for the University soccer team, the remaining practice session will be devoted to simple limbering up exercises to keep the men in shape for the second contest of the season, that against Amherst on Saturday.

No radical changes were made in the lineup because the weaknesses that were noticeable in last week's game were not of any one position, but rather of the team as a whole. Coach Fletcher ran his men through several stiff scrimmages in the hope of strengthening the offensive play of the team, for it was in this department especially that the weakness was evident in the last contest. Rasmussen, who sustained a knee injury in the game with the Mass. Tech team is fully recovered and will be in the lineup when the University men face Amherst. He was the only man able to score last week, and it was his quick kick from an off-side angle that saved the Brown team from defeat.

A hard game is expected with the Amherst team, for reports of their last encounter in which they defeated the strong Worcester Tech outfit, 4-0, say that they have the strongest team in years.

DR. BARBOUR HAS LONG CAREER IN MINISTRY

he came to the front as a vigorous preacher, a strong administrator and a quiet, effective worker for civic betterment.

"For forty years Dr. Barbour has helped Rochester keep its ideals high," said the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle editorially at the time of Dr. Barbour's election to the presidency of the University in October, 1928.

Dr. Barbour was born in Hartford, Conn., April 21, 1867, the son of Pudge Heman H. and Myra A. (Barker) Barbour. Four of his five brothers became ministers. The fifth was Joseph L. Barbour, lawyer and political leader in Connecticut for years. Rev. Dr. Thomas S. Barbour 1874, served as foreign secretary of the American Missionary Union and as trustee of the University. Rev. Heman H. Barbour held pastorate in Connecticut, New York, Ohio and New Jersey. Rev. Dr. Henry M. Barbour is pastor emeritus of the Church of the Beloved Disciple, New York. Rev. John B. Barbour 1891, at present living in Rochester, has supplied churches in several towns and cities in New York and Pennsylvania.

Among Dr. Barbour's classmates at the Hartford High School was William Lyon Phelps, otherwise the beloved Billy Phelps of Yale. With Phelps he organized the high school debating society, which is still active.

Enrolling at the University in the class of 1888, Dr. Barbour soon made a name for himself as student and all-around college man. He was a prize speaker, Class Day orator, manager of the Glee Club, business manager of Liber Brunensis, member of Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Kappa Ep-

To help meet college expenses he taught in the evening schools of Providence throughout his four years on College Hill. In his Senior year he was principal of the Richmond Street evening school, with 16 teachers and 450 pupils under his supervision.

He was graduated from Rochester Theological Seminary in 1891. Since that time until he accepted the presidency of the University, his life has been closely interwoven with the life and progress of Rochester. He was one of the men chiefly responsible for a change for the better in the election of members of the Rochester Board of Education, on which he later served. He participated in the improvement of Rochester's public library facilities and for eight years was vice president of the Rochester Good Government Club. He also belonged to the Rochester Athletic Club. His interest in sports dates from his college days when he was president of the University football association. He plays a commendable game of golf and he knows how to sail a boat.

In 1909 Dr. Barbour resigned as pastor of the International Baptist Church to become associate secretary of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. of North America. In the same year the University conferred upon him the honorary degree of D. D., President Faunce's citation describing him as "minister and public teacher, reaching by his message all creeds and parties."

After six years of work that carried him all over the United States and Canada, Dr. Barbour gave up his secretaryship to accept the call to the presidency of Rochester Theological Seminary. Under his leadership the seminary grew in numbers and prestige. He developed the present faculty, increased the endowment and made the seminary a progressive training school for his ministry.

In 1928 he was instrumental in bringing about the union of the seminary with the seminary at Colgate University under the name of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School. Before he left the school to come to the University, he saw to it that the campaign to increase the general fund was successfully completed, that land for the new site of the school was bought and that plans for new buildings were begun.

"Dr. Barbour has done a tremendous piece of work," said Dr. Albert W. Beaven of the committee. "And this campaign may be looked upon as the crowning achievement of his career in Rochester and in a sense a monument to him on the eve of his departure for Brown University."

Dr. Barbour was president of the New York State Christian Endeavor Society in 1896 and president of the Northern Baptist Convention in 1917. He has been a member of the Board of Education of the convention ever since its organization, with Dr. Ernest D. Burton, later president of the University of Chicago, as chairman. Dr. Barbour is the present chairman of the board. He is also president of the World Baptist Alliance Congress.

During the World War he acted as religious work secretary at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., and as director of the personnel department, overseas speaking service of the Y. M. C. A. His "Service Song Book" was used by the American sea and land forces throughout the war. He had likewise written or edited "Fellowship Hymns," "The Bible in the World Today," "Principles and Methods of Religious Work Among Men" and "Making Religion Efficient."

Dr. Barbour was married to Miss Isabelle Florence Newell of

AN INTELLECTUAL INSTITUTION

At the alumni reception to President Barbour Wednesday night, Senator Colby and Mr. Rockefeller indulged in a battle of wits over Dr. Barbour. Mr. Colby attacking him and Mr. Rockefeller defending him.

Mr. Colby's attacks were all made in a humorous vein and all were answered in a like manner except for one remark of Mr. Colby's. "Dr. Barbour seems to think that a University is an intellectual institution," remarked the Senator. When Dr. Barbour was called on to defend himself, he made a very witty introduction and then went on to say in a serious tone that he really did believe that a University was an intellectual institution and in no way a country club. He made clear to his audience that he intended to do all he could to make this University a more intellectual institution than it is.

We are beginning to get glimpses of the policy of the New Administration and we are strongly behind this move to make the University stand for more to the undergraduate than a four year vacation. We have always been surprised to see how quickly any intellectual move on the campus was smothered by a feeling of general disinterest. We do approve and always have approved of any organization or movement that will promote thinking and are more than pleased to learn that our new president is with us as he said "heart and soul."

A TIDE IN THE AFFAIRS OF MEN

This afternoon, this minute in the life of Clarence Augustus Barbour, this moment in the life of the University, has been set aside and dedicated to the official ceremony of recognition of a new personality as the leader of a great educational institution.

It seems to us that the time has been reached which is most auspicious and favorable for a new president. Nine times has the sheriff led the procession down the hill and into the Meeting House, but never, we believe, has such an optimistic light fallen upon the inaugural ceremony as we will today.

Manning, Wayland, Andrews, Faunce—the names of four great men whose efforts and ability have step by step guided the University forward and upward. Three of these have passed from the affairs of men; their battle was hard and their sincere efforts and constructive works were not always recognized by their immediate contemporaries. The fourth, who seems to have left the administration building but yesterday, has not only been recognized, but has undoubtedly left to his predecessor the University at the highest point it has yet reached.

Educators from every corner of the country have come to our campus today to help celebrate the inauguration of our tenth president. Many of these men are University or college presidents themselves and realize the great responsibilities that have already fallen upon Dr. Barbour. But there will be that fine spirit present that marks the time when the work of one great leader is being taken over by still another. We frankly expect to see the University continue to make greater and greater advances as an educational institution of true liberal and progressive spirit. The report of the Corporation, pointing toward every measure which may tend to raise the University upon higher plains, is but one of the many waves in this tide.

As undergraduates we pledge our loyalty and only as men may pledge it when they firmly believe in the ideals and the leader of a great institution.

Providence on July 28, 1891. Mrs. Barbour is a musician, composer and poet. Several of her piano suites, "Forest Sketches," "A Day in Arcady," "Holland," are well known.

At most of the leading preparatory schools in the East Dr. Barbour is a familiar and admired figure. He has met hundreds of boys at Andover, Exeter, Hill, Peddie, Lawrenceville and other schools which have high reputation for preparing boys for college. He is also a welcome college visitor. He has honorary degrees from the University, University of Rochester, Denison, Williams, Syracuse and Colby.

Among his friends Dr. Barbour is known as a good mixer, a ready conversationalist and a golfer with whom it is a pleasure to play. "He has a genius for friendship," one of his Rochester neighbors said of him. President Emeritus Faunce wrote that Dr. Barbour's choice as the University's next president "brings satisfaction and hope to all our faculty," and commends him for soundness of judgment, qualities as a public speaker and the extraordinary range of his acquaintanceship.

DR. FAUNCE MARKED FOR LIBERAL POLICY

tion, Dr. Faunce declared the liberal policies which have marked his whole administration and said that he was unalterably opposed to co-education. It is largely on account of his stand on the question that Pembroke College has developed as a separate institution.

In the thirty years of his administration the University has made great strides. Its endowment has been increased by over five million dollars. There has been a doubling in physical equipment. The new gymnasium, the stadium, and the athletic fields have all been added.

Nor has the intellectual side of the University been neglected. The faculty has been enlarged and the curriculum enlarged and broadened. Among the first institutions in the country to adopt the honor system, the University has been one of the most progressive schools in the country. Dr. Faunce has made the University into a liberal institution. Although it has never lost its denominational character, it has permitted broad liberty of conscience, in keeping with the spirit of its organization.

During the 30 years that Dr. Faunce served as president of the University, he has commanded the respect and admiration of the thousands of students who have known him. He has become nationally known as one of the finest speakers in the country and has written several books. For years he spoke every day in chapel, and even during the last few years, he has spoken frequently.

Last year he retired from active leadership and was made President Emeritus of the University.

1913, the judges of the Supreme and Superior Courts of Rhode Island, and Mayor James E. Dunne of Providence.

In the fourth division will be the guests, former officers of instruction at the University, ministers of Providence, members of the Advisory Council of Pembroke College, the Advisory Board of the Associated Alumni, visiting committees of the University, and representatives of the undergraduate classes.

At the First Baptist Meeting House Theodore Francis Greene will act as chairman. The ceremony will be opened with an invocation by Dr. Cleaves, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Presidents Lowell of Harvard and Farrand of Cornell, representing the visiting delegates, will greet Dr. Barbour. Chancellor Arnold B. Chace will speak for the Corporation, and then Dr. Barbour will give his inaugural address. The benediction will be given by Bishop Perry of the Episcopal Diocese of Rhode Island. John B. Archer, director of the Providence Festival Chorus, will have charge of the music.

The ceremonies will be concluded at the Biltmore Hotel tonight by a dinner for delegates and invited guests. The presiding officer will be the Hon. Noble Brandon Judah 1904, former Ambassador to Cuba. There will be speeches by Governor Case, President Angell of Yale University, Principal Stearns of Phillips Academy, Dr. Faunce, Professor Theodore Collier, Charles Evans Hughes 1881, and Dr. Barbour.

"THE UNWILLING GOD" MARKS' LATEST NOVEL

Harper and Bros. announce that Percy Marks' latest novel, "The Unwilling God," was published Oct. 16. "The Unwilling God" is heralded as a work which will arouse much discussion on the problem of college and athletics.

Mr. Marks was a prominent member of the English department here until 1924, when he became known throughout the country as the author of "The Plastic Age," a novel on college youth. In subsequent works many references have been made by him to life here at the University here and in Providence.

PRES. DAY OF UNION SPEAKS AT CEREMONY

and not behind. To bear out this declaration, President Day debunked the glories of primeval civilization by stressing its hardships.

The speaker declared the golden age in education has not been reached. "Advance in secondary schools has been splendid," he declared. Pupils progress through enthusiasm rather than by compulsion, President Day said.

"Yes, in spite of ignorance, foolish restricting laws, slipshod work, mass education and poorly paid teachers," President Day said, "I see glimmers in the East of the Golden Age of Education. Still we are hampered by many overhangs from the middle ages, the hand of the church which has done an enormous educational service in the past still restrains, but the church is following now rather than leading in matters educational.

Success Defined

"We no longer tell all of our students, if you work hard enough you can achieve anything because that is untrue. Success we define as the nearest approach to a man's capacity."

The breaking down of the "piece meal education in colleges" and the adoption of honors systems under which the students specialize in subjects they like was seen by President Day as another advance toward the educational golden age.

"Before us lies the Age of Gold, when students will enter schools and colleges because they wish to acquire wisdom and have the capacity for such acquisition. When in the universities, they will study freely," the Honors Day speaker said, "and without compulsion those subjects that will fit them to live in the world of men."

President Day concluded by quoting Henri deSaint Simon, who in 1814 wrote "The imagination of poets has placed the Age of Gold at the cradle of the human species, amid the ignorance and grossness of his earliest days; it is rather the age of iron which should have been put there. The Age of Gold of the human race is not behind us but before us. It lies in the perfection of the social order. Our fathers have never seen it. Our children will reach it some day. It is for us to clear the way for them."

"Honor students of Brown University, Iron men in the academic world, I congratulate you upon your achievements," President Day said, "I hope you will believe in the Age of Gold before you and press on to the land flowing with milk and honey."

start the game against the Yale eleven. As yet it has not been decided who will fill the vacancy left in the first string lineup by the luckless Ferrebee. At present the men who are afforded the opportunity to step into a regular position are Mackesey, who worked with the first string men yesterday, Anderson, Richardson and Babcock. Anderson has been bothered with a slow recovering injury which may keep him from advancing to this position.

Thirty-four men will make the trip to the Bowl on Saturday. These men are practically the same who made the trip to New Jersey with the extra man being Ferrebee who will travel with the team, but will not be in uniform. It is not known exactly how long the Sophomore tackle will be out, but it is hardly probable that he will see any more action this year. The men who will be available against Yale are Allen, Anderson, Babcock, Carton, Caulkins, Chaiklin, Demler, Edes, Edwards, Fogarty, Gurli, Hapgood, Harris, Hardt, Hemingway, Henn, Horton, Johnson Makesay, Mahood, Marshall, Morey, Moulton, Munroe, Munson, Richardson, Rotelli, Sawyer, Schein, Schneider, Snyder, Tillinghamst, and Wentworth.

For the first time in the history of the University, the practise session on the day before the Yale game will be suspended. There will be no practise today. The players will rest up for the game so that no more injuries will hamper the chances of the University team against Yale this week-end.

In commenting on the chances for Harris, the hard running quarterback, to see action in one of the coming major games, McLaughry was high in praise of the diminutive Andover player. Were it not for a bad shoulder, it is probable that another able signal caller would be at the coaches disposal.

The game, previously scheduled to start at 2:30 P. M. will be called at 2 P. M. instead.

of the race, since they have all had experience on the University team before and have raced over the Kingston course at least once already.

The Freshman squad, the largest in many a year to turn out for this sport, will meet the Rhode Island State Freshmen over the same course. The men who have been selected by Coach Powers to make the trip are Mertz, Dickey, Reinhard, Smart, Spector, Stockbridge and Kapp.

In an effort to continue the Rhode Island streak to ten straight victories, the State team will include Bean and Hersey, its only two letter men, along with Armstrong, Ward, Minor, Hathaway and Goodwin. In the final standing, the first seven men on each team will be counted.

The telephone grows air-minded

THE BELL SYSTEM has made many successful experiments in two-way plane to ground telephone communication. This new development illustrates how it marches a pace ahead of the new civilization. It is now growing faster than ever before.

New telephone buildings are going up this year in 200 cities. Many central offices are changing from manual to dial telephones. A vast program of cable construction is going on.

This is the period of growth, improvement and adventure in the telephone industry. Expenditures this year for new plant and service improvements will total more than five hundred and fifty million dollars—one and one half times the entire cost of the Panama Canal.
