DARTMOUTH WON

BROWN'S UP-HILL STRUGGLE

Deserved Success—The Visitors Out-Played After Second Inning.

The second Brown-Dartmouth game was decided, contrary to the hopes and expectations of all Brown men, in favor of Dartmouth. The history of Brown's defeat can be told in the inexcusable comedy of errors in the second inning. In that fatal period almost the whole nine gave as weak and childish an exhibition of ball playing as has been the misery of a home crowd to witness for some time.

The rest of the game was a grand up-hill fight on Brown's part to regain the lost lead. Time and again Brown got men on bases and the much needed hit failed to materialize. Brown outbatted and, after the second inning, fairly outplayed its opponents. When Brown made two runs in the eighth and two men were still on bases with the score 8-7, the excitement was tremendous.

The cheering was continuous during the periods when Brown had men on bases and by its heartiness formed a marked feature of the game.

Sedgwick started in the box for Brown, but after being touched up for five hits in the first two innings he retired and Washburn took his place. Scarcely too much praise can be given the splendid battery work of Washburn and Le Stage throughout the rest of the game. But one run was made off Washburn and for four consecutive innings he forced the Dartmouth hitters to retire without a run. The presence of Washburn seemed to steady the rest of the nine. Certain it is that the team did not again show such a tendency to go to pieces.

Dartmouth was first at the bat. French got first on an error, went to second on the put-out of Drew and scored on Bacon's fumble and throw to first.

For Brown, Le Stage singled and went to second on Bacon's pretty sacrifice hit. The next two men were easy outs, however.

In opening the second inning, Hancock got first on a badly bounding ball to short. Wentworth dropped a well-placed single over second. Varney's scratch hit toward third scored Hancock and advanced Wentworth one base. French reached first on Holman's fumble and Wentworth came home. Drew singled, after Folsom had fouled out. Crolius made a long drive to left field, netting four bases and scoring Drew. McCarten closed the inning by going out on a grounder to first. Dartmouth's score for this inning was six runs. Holman, the first man at bat in Brown's half of the second, reduplicated Crolius' effort with a rattling hit to left giving him a home run.

Dartmouth did not tally again during the remainder of the game except in the fourth, when a base on balls, an error and put out allowed the Hanover collegians to make their eighth and last run.

After two men were out in the third, Newman reached first on a single to left field, and came in on Clark's timely three-bagger to right. Holman's single scored Clark. Richardson followed with a hit, but both men were left on bases on Detmer's high fly.

Brown tallied again in the fifth. Clark singled and Holman did the same. Wentworth's fumble scored Clark.

Another Brown runner crossed the plate in the sixth. Le Stage got first on the put out of Hous, stole second and came home on an error.

The eighth inning was by far the most exciting part of the game. After two men had got to third and second, Bacon lined out a pretty single, scoring both. Brown's hopes for another run were disappointed as the third man was out on a sharp ground hit to short. Again in the ninth, Brown just missed a chance to score. Drew made a wonderful catch of Holman's hard hit, rolling over and over, but clinging desperately to the ball.

Juniors Celebrate To-day.

The Junior Celebration comes off to-day, and although the number of those who have agreed to go is not as large as might be expected, yet the arrangements which have been completed by those in charge assure a very enjoyable celebration in every particular. Thus far the committee has the names of about fifty-five men, but many more of the Junior class will probably hand in their names before the time for departure arrives.

Any other members of the University who desire to accompany the Juniors on their good time may do so by handing their names to some member of the committee before 10 o'clock to-day.

Managers and Assistants for the Season of 1899-1900.

The election for manager of the baseball and of the track team was held Saturday from 12 until 2 p. m., in 23 U. H. About sixty votes were cast by the Junior class. The voting resulted in the choice of Clinton Chase White for manager of the baseball team and Charles Wilson Brown for manager of the track team.

As a convenient item for reference the complete list of all managers and assistant managers of the various athletic teams for the ensuing year is given below:

Undergraduate Virility.

In commenting on the recent celebrations in several of the Eastern colleges, Harper's Weekly makes the following observation:

"The undergraduate this spring seems to feel the need of a war or something to give his spirits a vent. The young Presbyterians of Princeton attacked a circus the other day and had a lively scrimmage, and the untrammelled Baptists of Brown have been scrapping with the firemen and police of the city of Providence. In a recent match between Princeton and Harvard the fielders of one team kept up a fire of irritating comment in the field on the batsmen of the other team, with the result that a base-runner finally knocked down a catcher. The experts say that inter-collegiate baseball manners are not as suave as they should be this year. Too bad! The great masterful fighting virtues that the undergraduate soldiers developed last year don't seem to be contagious."

Brunonian Board Organized.

A meeting of the Brunonian Board was held Friday afternoon for the purpose of organizing for the next college year.

C. W. Clark was elected editor-in-chief for the ensuing year, while the business manager and his assistant are to be elected at a later meeting.

C. B. Mosley, 1900, was elected to the board as artist. This officer formerly formed a part of the Brunonian staff, but the department was discontinued three years ago.

A committee of three is to be appointed by the editor-in-chief-elect to consider the question of a new cover for the publication. The heads of departments are also to be appointed and will be announced at the next meeting of the board, on Thursday afternoon next, at 4 o'clock.

Yale Defeated.

The Brown-Yale checker match which was played at New Haven on Friday, resulted in a victory for Brown by a score of 10 to 3, with 3 games drawn. The match was divided into two rounds, the first of eight games being played in the afternoon and a second one in the evening.

In the first round Ballentine was matched against Payne, and Blaisdell against Adams. Payne played remarkably clever and came out a game to the better. It seemed as though Ballentine had chosen lines of attack with which Payne was most familiar. The result of their play was: Ballentine 1, Payne 2, drawn 1. Blaisdell won from Adams by a score of 3 to 1. The total result of play for this round was: Brown 4, Yale 3.

In the second half of the contest the players were matched as follows: Ballentine vs. Adams; Blaisdell vs. Payne. Ballentine won from Adams 2 to 0 and 2 drawn, and Blaisdell won from Payne 4 to 0. The latter match was the feature of the round. After Payne had played so strongly in the afternoon it was quite natural to expect him to prove a hard man to down in the evening. But Blaisdell, by very sharp playing, forced him into unfamiliar lines of play, and won his four games with comparative ease.

In accordance with the custom of previous years, and in view of the fact that to-morrow is a legal holiday, the HERALD will suspend publication for that day.

Dr. Bumpus' Lecture.

At the meeting of the Biological Club on Thursday evening, Dr. Bumpus gave a demonstration of Edinger's Projection Apparatus, one of these instruments having just been purchased for the use of the Anatomical Laboratory. By means of this apparatus enlarged images of histological preparations may be shown much more clearly than with the stereopticon. It may also be used in place of the camera lucida for drawing microscopic objects.

After giving a practical demonstration of the uses of the instrument, Dr. Bumpus spoke briefly on some phases of the work of the U. S. Fish Commission. He referred to the shad hatching work which is carried on by the Commission steamer Fish Hawk, the vessel being fitted up as a floating hatchery. The fry thus hatched are shipped to various portions of the country for the restocking of depleted streams or for introduction into new regions.

Lobster hatching is also carried on at several of the Commission stations, but owing to the fact that the young lobsters die unless liberated soon after hatching, the practical results thus far obtained have been slight.

To prevent the growth of fungus on fish eggs and to keep them properly aerated during their development, jars of a particular pattern are used to hold them. The most common forms are the Chester and McDonald jars which are so arranged that a constant stream of sea water passes through them, keeping the eggs continually in motion.

The work which the Commission is carrying on at its various stations in the propagation of various food fish is of very great practical value.

Philadelphia's Third Baseman.

The Boston Herald, in presenting a brief sketch of Lauder, the Philadelphia third baseman, ventures the following remarks:

"Occasionally the ranks of professional ball players are joined by a college player. Many of these really clever amateurs fall by the wayside when transplanted from the easy-going, two-games-a-week college schedule to the exhausting, almost ceaseless round of baseball batting in which there are sometimes two games a day. There are a few, however, who succeed in keeping up the pace and win laurels even on the diamonds of the National League. Among such is Philadelphia's active young third baseman, William Lauder, who has just entered on his second season with the Quakers."

BROWN NOTES.

It is reported that Manager Murray of the Providence nine is trying to secure Fultz, '98, from Philadelphia.
