

From The Atheist Bookshelf

... "I do not see how any responsible American can be unaffected by this book's eloquent and cogent argument."

George W. Ball, Former Deputy Secretary of State

362 pp. Hardbound

Lawrence Hill & Company
Westport, Connecticut

This is the first book to dare to speak out against the pervasive influence of AIPAC (The American-Israeli Public Affairs Committee). With careful documentation and specific case histories it demonstrates how the AIPAC lobby helps to shape important aspects of U.S. foreign policy and influences Congressional, Senatorial, and even Presidential elections.

The author served twenty-two years as a Republican Congressman from Illinois. In 1982 after losing his seat by a narrow margin to a candidate heavily backed by AIPAC, he started work on this book. In it he describes the influence AIPAC exerts on the Senate and quotes Thomas A. Dine, head of the lobby ... "We made a difference (on election day) and as a result we can set our own foreign policy agenda"; its influence in the House where the Chairperson of the Sub-Committee which deals with Foreign Aid pledged to support "whatever AIPAC wants"; on the Presidential race in which of all the Democratic candidates only George McGovern and Jesse Jackson dared to criticize Israel.

Findley also describes the attempts of AIPAC to influence curricula of university Middle East departments and to undermine the careers of teachers and professors who seem too sympathetic to Arab and Islamic States. He shows how leading Jewish spokespeople such as Nahum Goldman, I. F. Stone, Phillip Klutznick and others are shunned and criticized for questioning some of Israel's policies. He describes the pressure that AIPAC brings to bear on public officials, newspapers, and even book publishers to soft pedal criticism of Israel and her policies.

Price $16.95 (plus $1.50 postage)

Fill out and send this order form to American Atheists (see address below)

[] copy(ies) of They Dare to Speak Out at $16.95 (plus $1.50 postage)

Texas State Residents please add 6½% sales tax

TOTAL $ _____

Make check/money order payable to: AMERICAN ATHEISTS, P.O. Box 2117, Austin, TX 78768-2117

Name _____
Address _____
City _____
State _____ Zip _____
Signature _____

Or charge to my:
[] VISA or [] MASTERCARD
Number _____
Expiration date _____
Bank no./Code letters _____