

in the Teapot Dome scandal and President Harding's "American plan" for an open shop in the fight against Franklin D. Roosevelt and the legislation of the New Deal days in the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act in 1947 in the effort to destroy unions by legislation in the election of a textile mill owner as governor of a textile mill state and the use, by this governor, of troops to break a strike of textile workers in the passage of the Landrum-Griffin bill in 1959 to further harass unions.

Now business says it is going into politics because unions are in politics.

Challenge to Unions

NOW BUSINESSMEN ARE GETTING INTO POLITICS

Something new is being added to politics. Businessmen are out to match labor's role in coming campaigns.

Political education, party work, "get out the vote" drives—they're among the goals of front-office men in industry.

Idea got a test run this year in some areas. Result: It's to be a country-wide campaign between now and the 1960 election.

