Southern Populism and Black Labor
by Vince Copeland

Is all the hullabaloo about "Proposition 13" and "tax reform" really "populism" as the media calls it, or is it just right-wing demagoguery? Covers the vast difference between the modern brand of pseudo-populism and the early Populists at the turn of the century who challenged this country's rulers. Also explains the strengths and weaknesses of the early Populists in their attitudes and positions toward the struggle of Black workers and farmers.

Imperialism

and the Crisis in the Socialist Camp

- A Historic Betrayal
- Behind the U.S. "Neutrality" Posture
- The Early Harvest of the Deng-Hua Policy
- The Great Socialist Destiny of China and Viet Nam

This pamphlet consists of four articles written immediately before and after China's invasion of Viet Nam.

The tremendous danger this event posed for all progressive forces throughout the world is viewed in the context of a global class struggle and the de facto alliance consummated between China's leadership and the imperialist camp.
