In early 1981 The Voice of Reason was founded in the midwest and the Center for Moral Democracy was formed on the east coast. The principal founders of the two groups were, respectively, Rabbi Sherwin T. Wine and Edward L. Ericson. In early 1982 the two groups merged under the Voice of Reason name. With the growth of membership, the organization's board voted in October 1983 to change the name to Americans for Religious Liberty.
