

ACORN Organizer?

A Community Organizer is often a low paying hard working and sometimes thankless job. It requires consistent responsibility, strength of character, social awareness, the belief and the desire to make a positive difference in your community, and the ability to impart all that to others. Did I mention the long hours? On second thought some things are best left unmentioned. And the hours are unmentionable.

So what's the incentive you might say. Where are the bonuses, the perks, what's in it for me? Okay, on wealth, fame and fortune this is it. There is a wealth of information and resources to be gained that would enrich your future. You would meet, mingle, and sometimes harass the leaders of this great city and possibly other cities. You'd get to know the politics of the city and how they work or don't work. You'd gain the leadership skills necessary to make your own fortune at what ever you choose to do.

So what kind of people want to be community organizers? Those that have the time to spend some time for a time to improve their social conscious, their community and their mind. And you do get to travel, meet people, have fun, and we'll pay you too. Come on ACORN needs you!
