TELL CONGRESS:
HUNGER HAS A CURE

Failed health. Stunted growth. Diminished learning. These are symptoms of a chronic problem facing millions of our nation's children—Hunger. Last year, Congress and the president weakened our nation's ability to respond to hunger by changing welfare, food stamps and other programs in ways that could plunge more than 2 million people into poverty.

R This year—Tell Congress: Hunger Has A Cure. Bread for the World's 1997 Offering of Letters campaign, Tell Congress: Hunger Has A Cure, will urge Congress to enact legislation to improve and expand national nutrition programs, especially food stamps and the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC). Bread for the World and allied organizations will work together in a Hunger Has A Cure effort to support national legislation to reduce hunger, while also encouraging stronger state-level advocacy, increased charity and public understanding of how to improve job prospects for low-income people. Your church or group can help restore the nutrition safety net through the Tell Congress: Hunger Has A Cure campaign.
