

For a really delightful vacation, take the two-weeks package: one week at Cape May and the second week by these Gateway to the Stars Eagle buses to Cape Canaveral Bible Conference. See Disneyworld, Jerusalem Museum, Space Center.

The Morning Star Villa begins its mile-long journey down Beach Ave., in Cape May to its present location. A radio broadcast was made from the moving building.

The Windsor, a Victorian museum

At the dedication of the Cape May Bible Conference, May 30, 1963, Mr. Don Pidgeon, treasurer of the Christian Beacon, receives the keys to the Christian Admiral from the late Clayton A. Bancroft, general superintendent of the hotel and later superintendent of the Gateway to the Stars in Cape Canaveral. Below, Dr. Charles E. Richter and Dr. McIntire at the dedication.

To all of our radio family:

Christians need a place to go. Cape May was given to us in the providence of God. It is an ideal spot for rest, vacation, and our many Bible conferences. I want you to be a partaker of the blessings.

The Lord is here. His Word is honored.

This is a personal invitation to you to come. You will respond like many who have said, "It is more than we thought." I will see you in Cape May.

Faithfully,

Earl M. McIntire