

- BEY, Hakim
Chaos: The Broadsheets of Ontological Anarchism (pam.) $3.50
 Poetic Terrorism; Chaos Myths; Wild Children; Tantrik Porn; Assassins; etc.
 "... fascinating!" — William Burroughs. (Back in stock in a new pamphlet edition.)
- BLACK, Bob
The Abolition of Work (pam., 16 pp.) $1.50
 Reprint of Black's well-known essay.
- B. M. CLAUDIA
I, Claudia: Feminism Unveiled (Class Whore Publications; pam., 32 pp.) $3.00
 Controversial attack on the mainstream feminist movement. Claudia argues that they are anti-working class, resent ladies of leisure, and feel threatened by women of "easy virtue." She argues for a more complete liberation without the protection of the state, hatred of men, or unnecessary "moral" values.
- BOWDEN, Jonathan
Mad (Egoist Press; pb., 108 pp.) $7.50
 One man's attempt to strip away the illusions of our society, including the necessity of the state and religion. To Bowden, politics is a matter of life and death and "the state is built upon a pile of skulls." A modern successor to Stirner.
- BUFE, Charles
The Heretic's Book of Quotations (See Sharp Press; oversize pb., 206 pp.) $11.95
 Extensive collection of quotations from anarchists and their enemies on such topics as religion, science, art, war, property, women, patriotism, sex, and nineteen other subjects. ISBN 0-9613289-1-6
- CARDAN, Paul
Modern Capitalism and Revolution (Solidarity; oversize pb., 102 pp.) $6.50
 Cardan's most significant political text. In it, he argues that the problem with capitalism is not the Marxist idea of internal contradiction, but the master/slave relationship of labor capital.
- CONDIT, Stephen
Proudhonist Materialism and Revolutionary Doctrine (Cienfuegos Press; pb., 42 pp.) $6.25
 Brief, academic study of the strengths and weaknesses of Proudhon's thought. Condit argues that despite some deficiencies, Proudhonism represents a revolutionary path "in a manner neither conventionally capitalist or socialist." ISBN 0-904564-49-5
- DANIELS, J.
Breaking Free: The Adventures of Tin Tin (Attack Int'l Press; pb., 176 pp.) $5.00
 Very popular book written in comic book form. Tin Tin gets a political education as a working-class Englishman. He and a few million friends bring England to the brink of revolution as the book ends. ISBN 0-9514261-0-9
- DE CLEYRE, Voltarine
Anarchism and American Traditions (See Sharp Press; pam., 17 pp.) $1.00
 Reprint of de Cleyre's pamphlet which discusses the relevance of anarchism to our "hallowed" American traditions. She argues that anarchism is often closer to the American ideal than her United States of the 1930's.
The First May Day: The Haymarket Speeches, 1895-1910 (Soil of Liberty; pam., 84 pp.) $5.00
 Collection of speeches by de Cleyre on the Haymarket martyrs and what they died for. Introduction by Paul Avrich. ISBN 0-904564-35-5
- DOLGOFF, Sam
Fragments: A Memoir (Refract; pb., 200 pp.) $14.95
 Autobiographical work by long-time New York anarchist activist. Sam's life has spanned the years from the I.W.W. through the Spanish Civil War, the Modern School movement, the founding of the Libertarian Book Club, and the New Left, up to the anarchism of today. Personal portrayals of Carlo Tresca, Reitman, Maximoff, Rocker, Hippolyte Havel, and Paul Goodman.
- ECCARIUS, J. G.
We Should Have Killed the King (III Publishing; pb., 190 pp.) $5.00
 New novel by the author of The Last Days of Christ the Vampire. The story of Jack Straw, child of the 50's, who wanders through the "air conditioned night mirror" of modern America, meeting outcasts and radicals while trying to survive as a wage slave. Jack ultimately moves towards anarchism and the struggle for a free society. ISBN 0-9622937-1-7
- Freedom Press (eds.)
World War—Cold War: Selections from the Anarchist Journals War Commentary and Freedom, 1939-1950 (Freedom Press; pb., 422 pp.) $16.95
 Volume Three of the Freedom Press Centenary Series. Contains reprints of news and commentary covering the World War II—Cold War era. Presents news and contemporary viewpoints ignored by the mainstream press. ISBN 0-90038-448-4
- GALLEANI, Luigi
The End of Anarchism (Cienfuegos Press; pb., 83 pp.) $7.50
 Written in the thirties, Galleani's text is a very personal argument for the continued relevance of anarchism in a modern industrial society. He outlines a series of practical tactics for the anarchist movement. ISBN 0-904564-55-2
