

Other points made by Mr. Fish about "For America": It will not be a "little Business group of rich men" but a mass organization of "little people." It is starting too late to do much in the primaries but hopes to have influence in the fall elections. It intends to give an organized voice to grass roots people of similar opinions. It hopes through its power to offset the "internationalist viewpoint portrayed by most of the TV, radio, press, commentators, and moneyed groups which do not reflect the opinion of the average people."

Mr. Fish drafted the declaration of principles for the organization based on the preamble of the American Legion which he helped formulate for that organization at its 1919 meeting in St. Louis. As revised by the luncheon group it states:

"Dedicated to God and country:

"To save America, regardless of party:

"To promote peace;

"To restore and uphold our Constitution as our basic law;

"To safeguard our freedoms from our enemies within and without;

'Squandering' Target

"To provide adequate armed forces to protect our sovereignty and the rights of our citizens throughout the world;

"To oppose so-called preventive wars or "police actions"; and

"To stop sending our American boys to fight all over the world without the consent of Congress;

"To combat superinternationalism, interventionism, one-worldism, and communism;

"To prevent squandering and giving away our money and resources - a burden that falls upon all Americans - threatening our financial, economic, and political structure, and that can only end in bankruptcy and ruin, thereby aiding any nation planning world conquest;

"To demand the return to Americanism, enlightened nationalism and keeping our own interests uppermost instead of our costly, dangerous imperialistic foreign policy of tragic super-interventionism and policing the world single-handed with American blood and treasure;

"To organize for America on a states rights basis and irrespective of political affiliations with equal rights for all Americans and to support candidates, in 1954 and thereafter who are in accord with the principles herein enunciated."
