Survival Sanctuaries

The best places to live—in even the worst of times

These days, just about everyone is talking about 'survival.'

But survival from what? Nuclear attack...radiation fallout...crime...pollution...drought...depressed economy...high local taxes...or what?

Of course, survival means different things to different people. But for most people, we believe, survival does not mean retreating into the wilderness—away from other human beings—away from civilized living...away from the twentieth century. For most people, survival involves
