

We have a choice.

We can let our government once again fall into the hands of big business. We can once again see the full power of our government unleashed against the working men and women of America. We can see it once more dedicated to serving the special interests of business and industry, forgetting the problems of the farmer, the working man, the small merchant, the white collar worker, the housewife and the consumer.

It happened before and it can happen again.

Or we can continue to build COPE, continue to make sure our members are registered and that they know the issues, continue the drive for individual contributions so that we can support our friends, continue to work on Election Day to make sure everyone votes.

As President George Meany has said,

“The more business gets in with its financial resources the greater interest will be stirred up among workers. Perhaps it will help us eventually to succeed in our efforts to encourage all workers to perform their duty as citizens by exercising their right to vote.

“And when we get down to such a contest between workers and big business we will do all right because there
