

the river of His bounty is ever flowing, and the well-spring of His love is constantly over-flowing. As the King can never die, so His grace can never fail.

Daily we pluck His fruit, and daily His branches bend down to our hand with a fresh store of mercy. There are seven feast days in His weeks, and as many as are the days, so many are the banquets in His years.

Who has ever returned from His door un-blessed? Who has ever risen from His table unsatisfied, or from His presence unblessed? His mercies are new every morning and fresh every evening. Who can know the number of His benefits, or recount the list of His bounties?

Every grain of sand which drops from the glass of time is but the tardy follower of a myriad of mercies. The wings of our hours are covered with the silver of His kindness, and with the yellow gold of His affection. The river of time bears from the mountains of eternity the golden sands of His favor. The countless stars are but as the standard-bearers of a more innumerable host of blessings.

Who can count the dust of the benefits which He bestows on Jacob, or tell the number of the fourth part of His mercies toward Israel? How shall my soul extol Him who daily loads me with benefits, and who crowns me with loving kindness? O that my praise could be as ceaseless as His bounty! O miserable tongue, how canst thou be silent?

Wake up, I pray thee, lest I call thee no more my glory, but my shame. "Awake, psaltery and harp: I myself will awake right early."

— Charles H. Spurgeon
