

Hello,

As a volunteer on AIDS Action's Speakers Bureau, I go out and talk to audiences about AIDS.

I tell them the facts about HIV, and I tell them about my own experience living with the virus.

I want them to have the facts I didn't have -- so they can protect themselves as I couldn't do.

My teenaged daughter Corinne often speaks with me. She knows what my life with HIV is like --and how to prevent it for herself.

But I worry that too many kids don't.

That's why I'm so relieved and glad that AIDS Action is dedicating so much effort to educating teens about prevention.

It's the only way to save another generation from the mistakes people like me have already made. These are mistakes that have no cure.

I'm proud of all the teens who are getting the word out to their peers. Frankly, it's work that really takes a lot of guts.

If you admire and respect what these kids are doing, won't you let them know it? The best way is by sending the most generous gift you can to AIDS Action, now.

Thank you from all of us,
