
The ultimate effect of our work, of course, is in God's hands. Whatever comes, whatever happens, we will celebrate Thanksgiving this month rejoicing in all that our Father in Heaven has done for our families and for our nation.

Please keep us in your prayers, and remember FRC generously as you consider your end-of-year giving. We need your financial support this year more than ever. We continually face powerful, well-funded opponents, and we must never be forced to back away or to give up.

May God bless you and your family.

Sincerely,

Chuck Donovan
Executive Vice President and
Chief Executive Officer

P.S. In late October, FRC's Board of Directors adopted a strategic plan for this organization's short-term needs and long-term future. It's an exciting plan designed to spread our message even further, to influence and motivate more of America's families, and to stand strong on the policy debates we are on the verge of winning. Please call us toll-free at 1-800-225-4008 if you would like to receive a copy of the plan's executive summary. You have a right to know how this organization will spend its resources – and a right to be confident that we are good stewards of every precious penny we receive.

P.P.S. A number of FRC's supporters have expressed concern about the possibility that mail communications may be temporarily interrupted because of the Y2K bug. If you share these concerns, or would like to save FRC the administrative costs of processing your gift, please call us toll-free at 1-800-225-4008 and ask for information on our direct debit giving program. This service will allow you to make contributions electronically from your bank account directly to FRC. Each gift will be acknowledged. We'd also appreciate having your e-mail address, as it provides us with the most timely and cost-effective means to communicate with you.
