A Long Weekend in the Mountains ... and a Stimulating Examination of the Great Issues

THIS YEAR'S WORLD AFFAIRS INSTITUTE, successor to one held originally in July, 1950, at Catawba College, N. C., and later ones held at Blowing Rock and at Blue Ridge, is a unique opportunity for students, teachers, editors and others interested in world affairs and the issue of survival in a nuclear world to combine a long weekend in a mountain resort with the vital process of discussion and formulation of views and policy on international affairs.

BLUE RIDGE ASSEMBLY GROUNDS, nestling in the foothills of the Smokies, is a cool, rural retreat, with ample living and recreational facilities. Swimming, tennis and hiking are excellent. For the institute, Mrs. Sam Levering will supervise a full recreational program for older children, and a free "baby-sitting" service.

COSTS: Rooms, double or single, $5.00 per room, per person, or $7.50 with private bath. Meals included. Use coupon attached to program in making reservations or contact Blue Ridge directly.
