Out-of-control immigration wiping out white race

To the Editor:

What do you think the reaction of Latinos, Asians or blacks would be to the following headline?

"Congress passes bill that will render the black, Asian and Latino races extinct in America by the year 2030."

No doubt, an eruption that would make Vesuvius' eruption sound like a firecracker would follow such a terrifying announcement and yet, white American citizens blithely accept the fact that Congress is empowered to and continually passes immigration laws that have been predicted by our country's leading demographers, publications, educators and futurists, to render the "white" population of America virtually extinct, in that same time frame.

To quote just a few of the sources of this prediction:

An article written by Paul Craig Roberts, an economist at the "Center for Strategic and International Studies" and published in the 6/28/90 issue of the "Washington Times," states:

According to Time Magazine,

(4/9/90), "by 2020, a date no further in the future than John F. Kennedy's election in the past, the numbers of U.S. residents who are non-white, will have doubled to nearly 115 million and only a short time later, the population of European descent will be a 'minority'... The average U.S. resident will trace his or her descent to Africa, Asia, the Hispanic world, the Pacific Islands or almost anywhere but white Europe!"

Following is a short excerpt from a speech given by Professor Jim Dator, a futurist at the University of Hawaii, to members of the American Judicature Society in the summer of 1988:

Speaking of the consequences of mass immigration, Dator predicted:

"By the early 21st century, nothing will be rarer than a white person but nothing will be less important than his ways."

And this from Richard Rodriguez, whose column appeared in the 12/31/89 "Opinion" column of the Los Angeles Times (And described him as a contributing editor):

"Quivering like hounds, demographers point at the growing non-white population of the United States... of this state (California), in particular. By the turn of the century, half the Californians will be non-white."

Rodriguez went on to describe "a vision he had of the future that came about on a trip to a shopping center where he discovered the 'new California'... where the rarest complexion was white, that of a blonde girl whose boyfriend was black."

What has happened that the same nation of people who adopted the motto, "Don't Tread on Me" for their country's flag, have allowed themselves, not only to be "tread on" but trampled out of existence in the stampede of "legal" immigration from Third World countries and millions of "illegal aliens"? Trampled out of existence as a race in their "HOMELAND"!

There's no pat answer to that mystifying question but the fact remains that a form of brainwashing has been practiced on the American public for more than a generation by both ethnics and whites with a political and/or financial ax to grind... A form of "brainwashing" so insidious that white Americans have been convinced that "racial genocide" is a desirable goal for them and their progeny.

This passive acceptance of whites toward the extinction of their race wouldn't have been possible without the aiding and abetting of the media, who, daily, bombard their readers and viewers with words like "racist," "bigot" and "discrimination" and coin "buzz words" like multiculturalism as a euphemism for "minority dictatorship"!

I sincerely doubt that the authors of our Constitution would have granted such unlimited powers in the area of "immigration policy" to less than 600 American citizens if they could have foreseen that those elected representatives would have used their awesome power to eliminate from America's population the descendants of those same authors through means of out-of-control immigration!
