

In 1945 there weren't enough heroes to save 6 million Jews and 8 million other "unwanted" people in Hitler's Europe. But for 1,200 Poles at least there was

OSKAR SCHINDLER

Newsweek magazine says Schindler was, "A hedonist in love with cognac, night life and motorcycles, a womanizer incorrigibly unfaithful to his wife, a war profiteer, gambler, black market dealer, and heavy drinker." ...Hardly the picture of a hero, yet the German businessman who is the subject of Steven Spielberg's became a savior of sorts to people otherwise destined for the ovens of Auschwitz.

Schindler's List

In America today -- every day -- there are over 4,000 innocent people whose lives are doomed in facilities like Auschwitz. For most of them there is no one who will come to their rescue.

Abortion is America's own holocaust and you may be the hero an unborn child is waiting for.
