APRIL 1967

Vol. 17, No. 4

IN THIS ISSUE

✓ George Roche looks carefully at some of the proposals for the youth of America and warns of the dangers of such regimentationp. 195

✓ An Illinois businessman turns to The Law of Bastiat (1850) for guidance back toward liberty in 1967p. 203

✓ The President of Rockford (Illinois) College deplores the power-seeking efforts of many groups in our time and suggests a search for a moral alternativep. 207

✓ Granville Wilson (no relation to the Prime Minister) seems to understand the flight from Britain of talent stifled under socialismp. 215

✓ Harold Fleming, author of Ten Thousand Commandments, affords a preview here of some ideas to be covered by him in an expanded and updated study of antitrust laws and their impactp. 221

✓ Back to Britain, briefly, as George Winder focuses on the latest bureaucratic bungling of "wages and incomes" policiesp. 231

✓ But, as William Henry Chamberlin readily perceives, not all such bungling is foreign; we have our own widening "public sector" — at public expensep. 235

✓ Check again the opening article by George Roche, and then see how Robert Tyson, finance chairman of U.S. Steel, would advise American youthp. 243

✓ Drury's Capable of Honor and Alexander's The Spirit of '76 boost John Chamberlain's hopes for a libertarian revivalp. 250

✓ And W. H. Chamberlin shares his enthusiasm for The Inside Story of the U. N. by Hernane Tavares de Sap. 253

✓ Mary Jean Bennett compliments Raymond Moley for his latter-day understanding of The First New Deal, in which he played a partp. 255
