Robert Sharpe was born in Nottingham, England and obtained his doctorate from the University of Sheffield. In 1979 he gave up his career as Senior Research Chemist at London's prestigious Royal Postgraduate Medical School, having reached the conclusion that the methods by which colleagues tested his chemicals (on animals) were both unethical and profoundly unscientific.

Dr Sharpe is consulted by many international organizations including the American Anti-Vivisection Society, the International Association Against Painful Experiments on Animals and Animal Aid in the UK. His articles appear in many magazines and newspapers and his book, The Cruel Deception—The Use of Animals in Medical Research has been widely recognized as the definitive work in its field.
