

riends
for a Non-Violent World
Annual Report
1988

COMMON UNDERSTANDING

Friends for a Non-Violent World has an unwavering belief in the fundamental worth and dignity of every human being and in the need for respectful co-habitation with Earth's diverse life forms and the environment that surrounds us.

With our strong roots in the Quaker tradition of non-violence, peace education and consensus, we feel we have a valuable perspective to offer in our contribution to the creation of peace and justice, locally and globally. (From the new FNVW Mission Statement currently in the process of being written by the Executive Board.)