Classified copy is made up of lists of books for sale and books wanted. The lists should be arranged alphabetically by authors' names, for the convenience of your customers. Books In General will also accept other classified advertising related to the book trade. It is suggested that advertisers use the standard terminology and abbreviations of the trade; a useful reference is the Bookman's Glossary, compiled and edited by S. M. Malkin.

There are 45 characters per line, and 156 lines per page.

Deadline for copy is the 15th of the month preceding publication. Space contracted for in advance will be held open until the 20th of the month before publication. Books In General cannot be responsible for unreadable copy.
